Committee To Promote Racial Harmony

Councillor Michael Cheney said a meeting will be held this week to form a city-wide committee to promote racial harmony in Quincy.

Cheney said he will meet with the Rev. Francis Kelley, of St. Boniface Church, and Charlene MacDonald, the Planning Department's representative to community centers throughout the city, to discuss the committee.

They will also discuss utilization of federal, state and city resources, he said.

According to Cheney, the committee will meet once a month, and the first meeting will be held in Germantown.

"We want to assure that every neighborhood in the city of Quincy is safe," said Cheney.

The idea for a committee came out of a meeting last week of 35 county and city officials and community group members to discuss steps to prevent possible racial and other civil rights violations in the city.

The meeting followed an incident in Germantown which involved 15 to 16 white and black youths, an arrest, and two minor injuries.

Potato Pie A Little Bit Different

Our daughter Suzie and her six month old daughter were leaving for Germany and with all her brothers and sisters wanting to see her (but not to say goodbye, Sue doesn't like that). I decided to have a brunch.

After precooking the ham and bacon and keeping it in a warming oven, I wanted to serve potatoes a little bit different from the usual home fries. I began to shred the potatoes on the grater and was prepared to make potato fritters. However, with some of the family arriving early (to play with the baby), plus her aunts and uncles and cousins, I just put the potato mixture into a baking pan and presto, potato pie. Not only was it easier, but it cut into such nice squares that it served even more than I had anticipated. Here is the recipe.

POTATO PIE

4 large potatoes

3 eggs
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup flour
1 onion
1/4 cup grated cheese
salt and pepper

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Grease a baking dish (such as you would use for brownies). Shred the potatoes and onion. In a large bowl, mix all the ingredients together. Blend well and bake for 35 to 40 minutes until top is starting to get brown. It could be baked ahead of time and warmed when ready to serve. The kids loved it and I think you will too.

Touseley has traveled across the United States and to England and Ireland with his community music programs and has been featured in radio and television broadcasts.

Teenage Depression And Suicide Program At Bethany Church

A special educational program on "Teenage Depression and Suicide" will be held Sunday, March 22, at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. in the Allen Parlor.

Speaker will be Dr. Luleen Anderson, who holds a doctorate in clinical psychology and is the coordinator for psychological services for the Quincy Public Schools.

Following Dr. Anderson's presentation there will be opportunity for questions and answers.

Among the topics to be addressed are: Why do young people become depressed in our society? What are the early signs of depression? How can we recognize suicidal symptoms? What are the reasons for teenage suicide? Is it "psychologically" contagious?

While for years there has been much anxiety surrounding this subject, due to the recent high incidence of attempted and successful suicides, it has now become a major concern for parents, school officials, church leaders and others who work closely with young people.

Parents and friends from the community are most welcome to attend this program. It is open to the public and there is no charge.

For additional information contact the Bethany Church office at 479-7300.

The City Council unanimously adopted a resolve Monday night, introduced by Council President Stephen McGrath, that the Planning Department assist in locating another supermarket at the site of the Supreme Market, Wollaston.

McGrath noted that if the market closes at the end of the month as expected, a section of the city which once had three markets, will now have none.

According to McGrath, who represents the area, the markets served many senior citizens who will now face the prospect of travelling farther to shop for groceries.

"I feel that a market of this type is necessary for the area, due to the senior citizen population," said McGrath. "Senior citizens are deeply concerned about the loss of the last supermarket," said Ward 4 Councilor James Sheets. "I hope the Planning Department will make this one of their priorities."

"It would be a severe setback if there ceases to be a market in the area," agreed

Councillor at large Joseph LaRaia.

Ward 6 Councilor Thomas

Nutley also lent his support to the resolve.

"Somewhere we have to bring sanity back to society, and stop pursuit of the all mighty dollar," he said.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Do you ever get up in the morning feeling like you already have two strikes against you? Do you ever get up in the morning feeling defeated as you enter another day? This happens to all of us at some time or another. We all have been guilty of allowing the troubles of yesterday to color our outlook on today. When a baseball batter gets two strikes against him, he may lose a bit of his confidence ... unless he has learned to overcome. A skilled batter knows how to "shake it off" (as players sometimes say) ... to feel that each pitch is the only pitch. The batter approaches the plate as if there are no strikes in the count. He makes a fresh start each time he bats.

It is true that yesterday doesn't have to put a dent in today. It is true that if you were unproductive yesterday, it doesn't mean you'll be unproductive today. Today is new and different from yesterday.

Today can be the day to leave your feelings of defeat in the past and start seeing each day as different from the preceding day. Maybe you did get two strikes against you yesterday. TODAY, with God's help, you CAN HIT A HOME RUN! ...

Questions On Victims Of Violent Crimes *

Q. What is a violent crime?

A. Any act constituting a crime which involves the application of force or violence or the threat of force or violence by the offender upon the victim.

Q. Why does Massachusetts have such a law?

A. To provide innocent victims of violent crimes with compensation for loss of earnings or support and for medical care or other necessary services, including mental health counseling required as a result of the crime.

Q. Who is eligible to receive compensation?

A. Any victim of a violent crime who sustains an out-of-pocket loss of at least $100 or who has lost two continuous weeks of earnings or support. These conditions do not apply to victims over age 65 or to rape victims. In the case of death of the victim as a direct result of the crime, a dependent of the victim is eligible for compensation for loss of support and for the cost of medical care rendered to the victim. Members of the victims family are eligible for compensation for mental health counseling necessitated by the death and for a maximum of $2000 in funeral expenses.

Q. Are there any exceptions?

A. The offender or his accomplice is not eligible for compensation. Generally, members of the offender's family are ineligible. Also barred from recovering are victims of motor vehicle accidents, unless intentional injury was inflicted. In no case may compensation be paid if police records show that the crime was reported more than 48 hours after the occurrence of the crime, except in the case of rape or unless the court finds good cause for delay.

Q. How do I file a claim?

A. If you are eligible for compensation pursuant to Chapter 258A of the Massachusetts General Laws you must file a claim with the Clerk of the District Court within the jurisdiction in which you live or, if you are an out-of-state victim, in the district court within the jurisdiction in which the crime occurred. The claim must be filed within one year after the occurrence of the crime but the Court, in its discretion, may extend the filing period for good cause, but in no event can it be extended beyond three years after the occurrence of the crime.

Q. What happens after I file?

A. The court immediately notifies the attorney general of your claim. After conducting an investigation, the attorney general will present any evidence he may have in support of, or in opposition, to the claim. At this hearing, you may present evidence and be represented by counsel, if you wish. A finding will be made by the District Court. The State Treasurer will pay you the amount of the award determined by the Court.

Q. What is the amount of the compensation I can recover?

A. Compensation for loss of earnings or support and for medical care of other necessary services shall be in an amount equal to the actual loss sustained by in no event exceed a total of $25,000. Compensation will also be reduced by the amount of payments received under insurance programs or from public funds. If two or more people are entitled to compensation as a result of the death of a victim, compensation will be apportioned among those applying. The court will determine and allow reasonable attorney's fees, which shall not exceed 15% of the awarded compensation. Attorney's fees shall be paid out of, not in addition to, the amount of compensation. The court may direct that payment be made jointly to you and to your attorney or to the provider of medical or funeral services.

Q. How much has the State Treasurer paid to innocent victims of violent crimes?

A. Since 1969, the State Treasurer has paid over $11,000,000 to innocent victims of violent crimes. This amount will increase dramatically because the Treasurer can now pay a maximum award of $25,000 to a victim of a violent crime. Formerly, the maximum amount payable by the Treasurer was $10,000.

For additional information, call the office of State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane at (617) 367-3900.

ordinance was clear."

McCauley said he had discussed the matter with Quinn Monday.

"I told him I had no objection if he wished to bring this up," said the mayor. "I had no objection if he went there as a private citizen or as an assistant city solicitor."

McCauley also said he had "no big disagreement" with LaRaia over the proposal.

"If we're going to make changes, we want to make sure we're tight on definitions," he said.

"In a studio, what is a bedroom?" asked McCauley.

"In drafting an ordinance you have to be specific. In general, I'm in agreement with Councillor LaRaia."

McCauley said that he has proposed a zoning change for parking requirements in Business D.

The Planning Board took no action on LaRaia's proposal when it met after the hearing, according to Planning Director Richard Meade.

It's about time that someone put TV in its place.

There's a time and a place for everything.
At American Cablesystems we believe cable TV is a unique and valuable tool for childhood learning. So we're proud to present wholesome entertainment and fascinating documentaries as part of our regular programming.

We also know cable TV can't teach everything. Which is why we would like to suggest that, for one hour every day, you turn off the set and read to your children.

They'll learn much from the written word, and what's more, so will you. You'll learn that reading aloud brings you closer to your kids.
And that, too, has its place.

Public Hearings On Zoning March 23

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, chairman of the Ordinance Committee, reminds residents that public hearings will be held Monday, March 23, and Wednesday, March 25.

The hearings will be to consider both the zoning task force's recommendations and the citizen's petition which calls for even more restrictive zoning changes, including a limitation on height.

The task force's recommendations will be considered on Monday and the citizen's petition on Wednesday, he said.

The public hearings will be held in the media center of Quincy High School, both nights, in order to accommodate the crowd.

Sheets explained that council rules dictate that the public hearing be convened in the council chamber. But immediately after this, the meeting will be moved to the media center.

Because the formal advertising in the newspaper lists the meeting as City Hall, Councillor Sheets said he felt this would confuse some who wanted to attend. All residents should go to the media center, according to Sheets.

The balance of the task force recommendations will be dealt with in a public hearing in April, Sheets said. He said it was necessary to have two public hearings because of the extensive number of zoning changes. Once the public hearings have been held, the Ordinance Committee will meet and take action on the proposals, according to Sheets.

He urges all citizens to attend and voice their opinions on the control of development.

Quincy Teams Shine In Youth Basketball Tourney

The first Presidents Youth Basketball Tournament was held last week at the Quincy Vo-Tech gym with 18 teams from nine South Shore cities and towns competing in over 50 games during the week.

There were three divisions (sixth, seventh and eighth grades) battling it out to make the finals last Sunday.

The host teams from Quincy had a fine tournament with the three teams compiling a 12-5 record.

In the sixth grade division Quincy was led by the fine play of Sean Donovan and Mike MacDonald, who combined for an average of 22 points a game. Tim Byrne came into his own by dominating the offensive and defensive boards throughout the week.

Defensive specialist Jason Fennessy and Brad Douglas caused trouble for opposing guards all week, while the reckless style of Pat Shea sacrificing his body for loose balls was a highlight film in itself.

Other members of the team were Dave Bogan, Joe MacDonald, Brian Rafferty, Rob Kane and Matt Dwyer, all of whom were outstanding.

The team lost a 44-43 squeaker to Sharon in the championship game with Donovan scoring 17 points in the fourth quarter.

In the seventh grade division it was the offensive power of Joey Crespi and the all-around play of guard Christian Ciavarro that led Quincy to a 6-0 record.

Crespi and Ciavarro continually made the key basket when it was needed and both handled the pressure defenses with excellent ball handling.

The forwards, Scott Marino, Mike Chicino, Pat Clifford and Chris Olsen, controlled the boards all week and their low post defense against bigger players was exceptional. David Jolley and Jamie Arstein were the defensive standouts, always being matched up against the tough players. Other players were Matt Flynn, Matt Fennessy and Rafferty, who hustled all week.

In the championship game Quincy edged Milton, 30-28, with Ciavarro leading the way with nine points, followed by Crespi's seven. Unsung hero Scott Marino played a super game covering Milton's big scorer, Wayne Evans, holding him to three points.

In the eighth grade division Quincy was led by center Peter Ryan, who led the team in scoring and rebounding.

Keith Douglas was not far behind Ryan in controlling the boards at both ends, while Mark Bogan added some needed inside muscle to a powerful front court. Guards E.J. Nordstrom and Ralph Bevilacqua did a fine job running the offense and handling the full-court pressure throughout the week.

The Presidents' blue team came off the bench to inject sparks at both ends of the court. The players included Sean Segrue, Kevin Nichols, Bobby Crespi, Evan Kiley, Mike Norton and Peter Kelley.

Their all-out hustle and desire enabled Quincy to tie for second place. In the championship game Sharon defeated Hanover, 51-45, in an outstanding game.

"The tournament was a huge success," said tourney coordinator John Franceschini, head coach at Quincy High. Former Resident Creates 'Tell A Fortune' Game

If you'd like to know the good things that your future holds for you, but not necessarily the bad, then you might be interested in a game invented by a former Quincy resident.

"Tell A Fortune" by Daphne Weld Nichols, a Boston photographer who lived for many years in Wollaston, is an adult board game with an astrology-like fortune telling format for one or more persons.

Mrs. Nichols, who started her photography career in a makeshift home studio on West Elm Ave., tapped into her card reading and astrology skills to create the game.

"The game was created to enhance a person's life and tap into the positive," said Cynthia Delleville, director of marketing for Fantasy Enterprise, a company formed by Nichols and her partner, Diane Dalpe.

It includes a playing board depicting the 12 houses of the zodiac and the astrological sun signs, 52 playing cards with messages which are read in relation to the house where they fall, and sun card revealing a player's energy and where their capabilities are concentrated.

There is also a moon card revealing a player's innermost feelings, and an interpretive instructional audio cassette which complements the instructions included in the game, she said.

It covers such topics as love, sex, health and career, according to Delleville.

"The game is for the creative novice or anyone versed in astrology and fortune telling," said Delleville.

"It emphasizes the positive - there is enough doom and gloom.

"The game is not to forecast death or sickness.

"It answers questions about love and life," she said.

'Tell A Fortune' by Daphne is available at Remick's, Quincy, and other stores.

For more information, call 641-2400 or 641-0318.

WEEK OF: March 19

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19
Thursday-Friday offer opportunities for joining a new social group. Weekend spotlights local travel and perhaps a romantic getaway. Financial reviews and accounting chores occupy Tuesday-Wednesday.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20
Legal negotiations may take place prior to the weekend. Some detours and re-routings can occur through the weekend. New interests and perhaps a new relationship occupy time after Monday.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20
Property matters involve your time from Friday through Tuesday. Don't neglect health and fitness programs, however. Unusual hobby may attract you, but go easy on the expenses.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22
You might be enrolling in some interesting classes, while at the same time you take on the role of teacher (although in an informal manner). Relationships generally improve now.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21
You can overcome hurdles on road to romance, a commonsense attitude is the key. Going after a professional goal requires new determination. The results should be worth the effort.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22
Arranging parties and other social events is a present strength. Romantic roadblocks may be moved away with help of some creative thinking. In negotiations, you gain the edge.

LEO - July 23 - August 22
Being more spontaneous, more natural, can lead to an enhanced relationship. Brainstorming sessions yield a solution to difficult dilemma. Capitalize on opportunity to forgive friend.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22
Chance meeting may lead to a new partnership endeavor. Physical fitness regime is accentuated, but don't take on too much, too soon. Be cautious if embarking on a shopping spree.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22
New friendship may not be progressing according to your hopes, but don't force the issue. Open-minded approach to values of relatives helps to ease some tensions.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21
Interesting offers present themselves, in career sphere, especially, avoid rash moves. Willpower is stronger than it has been. Weekend finds you enjoying some nostalgic sessions.

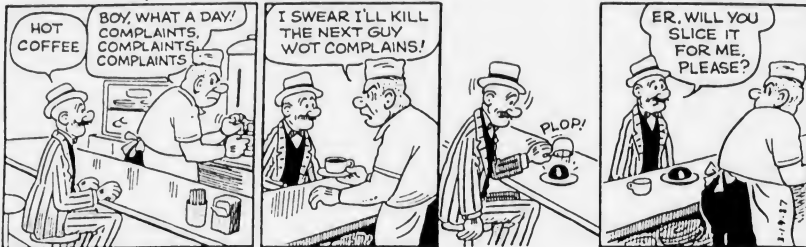

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22
Loved one is more assertive -- thanks largely to your encouragement. Creative activities are spotlighted through the week. In legal matters, be sure you understand all the fine print.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20
Thursday-Saturday are favorable for romantic or family patch-ups. Vague instructions from higher-ups require clarification. If traveling, renew your itinerary early on in the trip.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
A quick portrait: Pioneering, adventurous, impulsive, restless, enterprising and independent. Family tensions ease over the years as relatives see eye to eye. Opportunities for travel are numerous through 1987. You're increasingly sharp in business negotiations.

BORN THIS WEEK
March 19th, actor Patrick McGeehan, 20th, actor Hal Linden; 21st actor Richard Kiley; 22nd, actor William Shatner; 23rd actress Joan Crawford; 24th actor Norman Fell; 25th, singer Aretha Franklin.

Lydon Urges Mayor Give Priority To North Area Traffic Pattern

Ward Three Councillor John Lydon Jr. has urged the mayor to give top priority to correct traffic patterns in the north end of the city that were recommended by the Traffic 2000 Study.

In a letter to Mayor Francis McCauley he said:

"I am requesting that you establish as first priority for implementation of the Quincy 2,000 Traffic Study those recommendations as they relate to the areas bounded by Newport Ave., Furnace Brook Parkway, West Squantum St. and the Montclair area of the city.

"The Quincy Traffic 2,000 Study recommendations have been formally presented to the Quincy City Council and during the committee meetings of the Council much debate was centered around the downtown and several differences of opinions were aired with regard to the report's findings.

"It is not my intention to differ with the report's findings. It is, however, to confirm the report's findings with regard to Quincy traffic and how development has affected the Newport Ave., West Squantum St., Montclair and Wollaston areas of the city.

"It is reasonable to conclude that the north end of the city has had intensive development over the past ten years. It is reasonable to conclude, further, the report establishes these areas in the north end of the city as a priority, and many of the suggestions of the Quincy

Traffic 2,000 Study do not require a great deal of city monies to correct the traffic patterns which now plague the residential communities. When funding might be required for key intersections of Newport Ave. and Beale St. or other key intersections along Newport Ave. I am prepared to pledge monies from Ward 3 U.D.A.G. reserve to implement changes.

"I strongly urge consideration by your office be given to establishing these areas as a priority and direction from your office be given to implement the suggestions of the Quincy Traffic 2,000 Study as they affect the areas of Wollaston and Montclair."

Dog Licenses Available April 1

Keep a collar with a current license tag on your dog.

That is the aim of the city's dog officer, who announced licenses for 1987 will be available commencing April 1.

According to Dog Officer Phyllis Berlucchi, the license cost is $4 for a male or spayed female, and $7 for an unspayed female. Owners must show spayed certificates when licensing their dog for the first time.

Owners also are required to show a rabies vaccination certificate if the dog's former certificate has expired or when registering a dog for the first time. Rabies vaccination certificates are required on all dogs six months old and over, said Berlucchi.

A late fee of $10 will be added for any dog not licensed by April 30. The fine for owning an unlicensed dog is $15.

Berlucchi said the city clerk's office is open 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays and licenses can also be obtained by mail. Send a check for the proper amount and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the city clerk's office at City Hall.

She pointed out that all dogs three months of age and older must be licensed.

McGrath Urges Mayor To Move On Hiring Traffic Coordinator

City Council President Stephen McGrath has asked Mayor Francis McCauley to move forward with the hiring of a full-time City Traffic Coordinator.

In a letter to McCauley, McGrath urged the mayor to begin advertising for the position so that an individual could be brought into place.

McGrath noted that with some of the major projects now being planned for the downtown, such as Presidents' Place, traffic planning should be going on now.

"A Traffic Engineer is needed now to properly plan for the major projects now on line," said McGrath.

"In addition, several recommendations of the Traffic 2000 Study are, in my judgement, not sound and should be reviewed by the traffic coordinator," said McGrath.

"Also, many neighborhood streets are currently used as cut-throughs from main streets. The traffic coordinator could provide solutions to these problems," said McGrath.

Contract Signed For Painting Wollaston School

City Council President Stephen J. McGrath announces that he has signed a contract for the interior painting of the Wollaston School to be reopened in the fall.

"I'm very pleased that work is progressing on the renovation and refurbishing of the Wollaston School," McGrath said.

"The council and parents worked long and hard on the reopening of this facility, and I look forward to the September reopening of the school," said McGrath.

McGrath signed the contract in Mayor McCauley's absence in his capacity as acting mayor.

Crowd Fills Council Chamber 17 New Zoning Changes Debated

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Zoning continued to be a hot issue this week as an estimated 250 people filled the Council Chambers at City Hall Monday night to speak in favor or against 17 changes proposed by the City Council's Zoning Task Force.

The changes, discussed at a joint public hearing of the City Council and Planning Board, would increase parking requirements, lower building heights, reduce the density of housing units, and raise minimum setbacks.

No action was taken at the two and a half hour hearing. Proponents generally favored the changes as a way to preserve the city's neighborhoods. Some called for stricter restrictions.

Opponents noted that development allows revitalization and urged caution in tightening zoning restrictions. Both sides also debated whether the changes would mean loss of legal nonconforming use to rebuild some structures if destroyed by such things as fire or tornado or similar event.

City Council President Stephen McGrath and City Solicitor Joseph (Jay) MacRitchie both said there would be no loss of legal nonconforming use.

However, Roger Lyons of the Quincy Apartment House

Owners Association, who ran an ad on the subject, and realtor Russel Kelcourse disagreed.

McGrath began the hearing by praising the task force and its report which included 47 recommendations, 17 of which were covered at the hearing. Task force members are Councilors Thomas Nutley, chairman, Michael Cheney and Patricia Toland.

Nutley said task force members considered asking for a one or two year moratorium on all building in the city but decided that would be too harsh on developers.

The only way to address problems such as sewerage and traffic is by reducing density, said Cheney.

"We don't want the neighborhoods of the city to be distorted by buildings which shouldn't be allowed," said Councilor Toland.

A total of 26 people spoke in favor of the changes, and 12 spoke against them.

Among the proponents was Jack Walsh of Squantum.

"If we don't stop this (development), people who built the city, who made it into a rural urban city, will be leaving," he said.

Robert McCauley of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association said, "You can't see the skyline anymore."

Mary Welch of Bates Ave., West Quincy, said that she lives in a house built by her grandfather who worked in the quarries.

"You see how Boston has been destroyed by office parks," she said. "Quincy isn't a hometown anymore - it's another Boston."

Robert Naples, another West Quincy resident, said, "It's time to change the rules, let's do it right and do it now."

Eighty-one people recorded themselves in favor.

Developer Richard J. Buccheri of R.J.B. Management Corporation, West Quincy, led off the opponents.

Noting that he and many other developers are Quincy residents who care about the

Ross Garage To Get New Fresh Look

The Ross Garage and its entrance on the Parkway in downtown Quincy are scheduled to receive a new look this spring at no cost to the city.

According to Mayor Francis McCauley, Kinney Systems will remove graffiti from the garage, which it leases from the city, and Ricciardi Co. will landscape the entrance.

Peter Kenney, McCauley's executive secretary, said that he toured the garage recently with the mayor, Planning Director Richard Meade and City Solicitor Joseph (Jay) MacRitchie.

"It was clean as far as litter," said Kenney, "but there was a heavy graffiti problem."

"This vandalism which occurred over the winter months is an eyesore and will be removed as soon as weather permits," he said.

Ricciardi Co. will landscape the entrance to the garage near Granite St., according to Kenney, who explained that the company will refurbish the area after construction of its nearby building.

"The beautification will include planting and streetscape work on both public and private areas," he said.

"The areas include the sidewalks from Hancock St. around Ricciardi's new building at One Parkway and all existing landscaped and grass areas at the entrance to the Ross Parking Garage," Kenney said.

He noted that the work will be done in conjunction with the city's efforts to beautify the downtown areas this spring.

Some of the sites that will be refurbished are Christmas Island, Liberty Tree Island, the Ross Memorial and Robert Burns Park.

MDC To Operate Sobriety Checkpoints Over Weekend

Sobriety checkpoints will be held this weekend in two MDC districts which include Quincy.

Officers will be operating in the Old Colony District which includes Boston and Quincy, Saturday from midnight to 3 a.m.

Officers and their supervisors will be in a highly lighted area and easily identifiable.

Officers from the Blue Hills District will be operating a sobriety checkpoint Saturday, March 28, and into the early morning hours of Sunday, March 29.

The Blue Hills District has roadways in Milton, Quincy, Dedham, Boston and Brookline.

Checkpoints are conducted in accordance with the guidelines set down by the Office of the Attorney General and promulgated by the Executive Office of Public Safety.

Licensing Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following actions at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a request from the Boston Area Irish Children's Program for a one day alcoholic license for a fund-raiser to be held at The Fore River Clubhouse Saturday, April 4 from 6 p.m. to midnight.

- Granted a request from the Quincy High School Basketball Alumni for a one day alcoholic license for Thursday April 9 from 6 p.m. to midnight. The event will be a social dinner and a fund-raiser for the Quincy High School Basketball Program.

- Granted a request from The Catholic Daughters of The Americas, Court Corpus Christi 369, for a one day alcoholic license for their fourth annual Irish Cabaret, to be held Saturday, March 28 from 8 p.m. to midnight. The board stipulated that a paid police officer be present and that no refreshments other than drinks be served.

- Allowed to be withdrawn without prejudice a request from Mark J. Gannon for a permit for a portable cart to be placed on the sidewalk at Chevy's, at 79 Parkingway, for the purpose of selling Italian sausages. Fridays and Saturdays between the hours of 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. Chairman John Gillis said that the property in question is owned by the city and that no license can therefore be issued. He also indicated concern that the propane used for cooking may present a fire hazard.

- No action was taken on a hearing regarding the request from Barbara Guillo of 118 Everett St., for a permit to hold canning days for North Quincy High School Track Team March 27 and 28. She failed to appear before the board.

City Offering Low Interest Loans For Home Improvements

The City of Quincy is seeking applications from Quincy homeowners interested in obtaining low-interest loans to rehabilitate their homes.

The home improvement loans are offered at a fixed rate of five per cent interest with a payback period of eight years or less. The maximum amount which can be provided is $7,500 per loan.

The Housing Rehabilitation "Low-interest Loan Program" is designed to offer Quincy homeowners the opportunity to do improvements such as plumbing, wiring, painting, plastering and other types of general home repairs and energy efficient measures which will bring the property up to building code standards and improve its value to the owner.

In order to qualify for participation in the program, the homeowner must meet certain income limits which vary according to the size of the family.

In addition to the Low-interest Loan Program, the City of Quincy also offers loan programs aimed at helping rental property owners and their tenants to upgrade their property and rental units, eliminate code violations and increase energy efficiency.

The "Rental Rehabilitation Program" loans are offered at zero per cent interest, have a maximum loan amount of $5,000 per unit or 50 per cent of total rehabilitation costs (whichever is lower) and are to be paid back over a 15 year period with the first payment not due until the sixth year of the loan. Rental property owners are encouraged to apply for this program.

The "Handicapped Home Adaptation Grant Program" provides grants of up to $7,500 to improve the mobility within homes or apartments of handicapped people by adapting the property to the specific needs of the individuals.

Projects such as access ramps, new "accessible" fixtures and other improvements suitable to the specialized needs of the handicapped person are eligible.

Quincy residents who are handicapped or who have a handicapped person in their family are encouraged to apply for this program.

For further information on any of these programs or an application, please contact the Office of Housing Rehabilitation in the Quincy City Hall (1305 Hancock St.) or call 773-1380, extension 397 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Construction Underway At Crown Colony Place

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Construction is underway on two of the office buildings planned for Crown Colony Place in West Quincy, the largest project in the city.

According to Building Inspector Kenneth Johnson, Linpro companies has put in the foundation and is working on the steel erection for a five-story, 125,000-square-foot office building.

Estimated construction cost is $4.5 million, Johnson said.

The foundation has also been put in for a three-story, 40,000 square foot office building being constructed as the corporate headquarters of Bay State Milling Co., he said.

According to Johnson, the estimated construction cost is $1.7 million.

He said that two other companies are close to applying for building permits.

"Crown Colony is a great project for the city," said Johnson. "The developer has taken a lot of precautions to make sure that it is aesthetically pleasing for the city."

"They have their own architectural review board, and their restrictions on the office park are even more stringent than our zoning ordinances."

One of the restrictions is that the companies building the structures also be the tenants, he said.

"They are not allowing speculative builders," said Johnson, who noted that the building department visits the site about once a week.

The project is being planned by the Musaad Al-Saleh family of Kuwait on the site of the Old Colony Crushed Stone land off Centre St.

At some two million square, the project has been called the largest in the city and has been likened to the size of the State St. complex.

Planning Director Richard Meade said that when the project is complete, it may be the premier commercial office space in the state.

Two years ago, the Planning Board approved subdivision of the property.

About a year and a half ago, the board and city council approved a hotel use on the property.

No permit has yet been issued for a hotel.

Placed On Probation

Creedon Pleads Guilty To Indecent A & B

Former Quincy School Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon was placed on three year's probation and ordered to undergo counseling after he pleaded guilty to indecent assault and battery on a mentally ill, homeless woman last year.

Creedon, and Dennis Anderson of Boston, had originally been charged with rape in connection with the incident which took place in his South Quincy home March 21, 1986.

But according to prosecutor in the case, the plea bargain was reached to spare the victim the trauma of any additional court proceedings.

Anderson received the same sentence as Creedon.

It is also acknowledged in the agreement that the victim, a middle aged woman who has suffered from chronic schizophrenia for the past 10 to 15 years, has given conflicting statements about what occurred.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Marianna C. Hinkle told Superior Court

Judge Andrew G. Meyer that "it is not in the best interest of the victim for her to continue to be involved in this case."

"I'm just very relieved that it's all over and sorry for the pain it has caused my family," said Creedon. He also said he has been undergoing counseling on his own for some time, and is currently employed.

Creedon resigned as Quincy school superintendent in 1984 amid allegations of sexual misconduct.

Pizza Take-Out Restaurant License Granted

By JANE ARENA

The City License Board Tuesday granted a request from Antonio Guccione of 100 Chapel St., Norwood, to open Pizzeria Paradise, a take-out only restaurant, at 294 Water St., South Quincy.

The request had previously been continued due to concern over parking facilities, the possible fire hazard of a trash dumpster on the property, and debris in the neighborhood.

The board stipulated that Guccione fully enclose the dumpster behind the restaurant, that he install a commercial garbage disposal, and that a team inspection be conducted by the Health Inspector, the Building Inspector, and the Fire Chief before any construction or remodeling begins.

On behalf of Councillor James Sheets, his secretary, Jackie Quirk, said that two area residents wanted to go on record as opposing the restaurant, but that there was "general neighborhood consent" for the opening, provided that there is parking space available for the residents and that all of the board's stipulations are observed.

Pizzeria Paradise will be open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m., but with an earlier closing hour on Sundays. Along with pizza and sandwiches, canned beverages will also be served.

Stop Smoking For Good Program At Quincy Hospital

Quincy City Hospital, will conduct "Smoking Cessation," an effective five-day stop smoking program starting April 6.

The 1983 Surgeon General's Report on Smoking and Health called it "a particularly successful" stop smoking program because quitting rates are 2-3 times the national average.

Dr. Don R. Powell, the program's founder, has presented Smoking Cessation at the national meetings of various organizations including the American Medical Association, American Public Health Association, and the American Heart Association.

After a free introductory meeting, participants in the Smoking Cessation system enter into four consecutive one and one-half hour skill development sessions where they are taught how to prevent cigarette urges from occurring and how to immediately eliminate an urge if one should present itself.

The smoking habit is viewed from psychological, physiological, behavioral and sociological viewpoints. In addition, a proven maintenance program to keep people off cigarettes permanently is included. Research has also shown that the occupying problems of weight gain and irritability are prevented or reduced through the program.

The next program will begin with free introductory meetings at Quincy City Hospital Thursday, April 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the Conference Room, on the second floor of the Administration Building. The first class will be Monday, April 6 in the Conference Room at 7:30 p.m.

The program is presented by Jean Hodgkins, R.N.C., Health Educator at Quincy City Hospital, who is an Instructor certified by the American Institute of Preventive Medicine.

For additional information, please call 773-6100, Ext. 3005 or 3056.

McIntyre Government Center

James McIntyre has been gone three years.

But he is not forgotten. He was one of the most powerful political figures in Quincy's history. His influence is still here and will be here for years to come.

However, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro is somewhat concerned over the fact that a tribute to McIntyre less than a year and half ago seems to have already been forgotten.

DeCRISTOFARO

A bronze plaque was also placed at the Hancock St. entrance for future generations to read and know who Jim McIntyre was.

"But," says DeCristofaro, "people still call it City Hall out of habit."

He hopes to change that.

At the April 6 City Council meeting he will introduce a resolve calling for old City Hall to be referred to in the future as the "James R. McIntyre Government Center."

This will include, he says, the name being placed on City Hall stationery and other official papers.

Current City Hall stationery shows a photo of the building when a City Hall sign was on the front of the structure.

DeCristofaro will suggest an up-to-date photo be used.

The James R. Government Center designation does not actually apply to the glass paneled addition built during Joseph LaRaia's administration as mayor.

But that doesn't matter, says DeCristofaro.

"Old City Hall is the real city hall," he says. "The new is an addition."

"We renamed old City Hall after Jim McIntyre as an honor and that's what it should be and referred to: the James R. McIntyre Government Center. It's as simple as that."

McIntyre loved that old building. Some of his happiest political years were spent there -- in the City Council chamber and in the mayor's office when it was just off the Council Chamber overlooking Hancock St.

Renaming old City Hall in his honor was a fitting tribute. He was a history buff who could tell you that John Quincy Adams, 11 served as moderator at town meetings in what is now the City Council chamber.

Of course, he also knew Charles Francis Adams, another member of that illustrious family, served as mayor of Quincy and later became secretary of the Navy under President Herbert Hoover.

But he could also tell you that old City Hall was designed by famed architect Solomon Willard and that he received $280 for drawing the plans and supervising the construction.

He could tell you, too, that it cost exactly $19,115.93 to build in 1844.

And that figure probably included 88 cents paid to a John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

McIntyre died March 7, 1984 of a heart attack in the recovery room at Massachusetts General Hospital after undergoing surgery. He was 53.

"I think," says DeCristofaro, "that if we thought so much of the man to name old City Hall after him, we should call it that."

COUNCIL PRESIDENT Stephen McGrath will kick off his campaign for council at-large Wednesday, April 8 at Morrisette Legion Post.

McGrath will make his official announcement during the 6 to 9 p.m. reception. Tickets are $5 each and may be obtained by calling 472-2974.

They will also be available at the door.

McGRATH

JOHN KEENAN is waiting for Stephen McGrath to officially announce that he is running for City Councillor at-large before he officially announces he is running for McGrath's Ward 5 seat.

But, there is no doubt that Keenan is a candidate. He has named Caryn Smith of Thornton St., Wollaston chairman of his recently formed campaign committee.

Smith, a lifelong Wollaston resident, is a Bentley College graduate with a degree in Management and Marketing. She is also a North Quincy High School graduate.

SENATOR PAUL HAROLD got an unusual greeting when he attended the special legislative preview of the Omni Theatre at the Museum of Science in Boston. David Mugar, president of Ch. 7, had donated money for the theatre in memory of his parents, Stephen and Marian Mugar.

When he saw Harold, his first response was, "Get a haircut."

In the 1960's, Mugar had been manager of the Star Market on Granite St., owned by his parents, and Harold had been a bundle boy. That's how he used to greet Harold every Saturday morning during a time when crew cuts were in style.

Did Harold take the advice? "When I worked there, there wasn't much choice," laughed Harold.

city, Buccheri said, "It is important to realize that a lot of the development in the city is a revitalization of an old community."

Robert Quinn, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, said he was concerned about the effect of changes in Residence C on the downtown area.

Lyons asked that no action be taken until the task force records are observed by outside professional planners.

Quincy resident Patricia Daly said that there won't be housing for future generations if development is curbed too much by zoning restrictions. Thirty-five people were recorded in opposition.

After the hearing, the Planning Board tabled the 17 recommendations to allow more time for review, according to Planning Director Richard Meade.

The board, which will hold its next meeting April 29, will make a recommendation on the changes to the City Council, Meade said.

Another joint public hearing was scheduled to be held last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers on proposed zoning amendments by a citizens group.

Special Needs Athletic Night At NQHS Gym

The seventh annual Special Needs Athletic Night was scheduled to be held last night (Wednesday) from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the North Quincy High School gymnasium.

Students in the Special Education Department classes of the Quincy Public Schools were to participate in a variety of athletic events under the direction of Vincent McGuire, Adaptive Physical Education teacher.

Each student who participated was to receive a t-shirt and ribbon.

Parents, friends, students, and interested spectators were welcome. There was no admission charge.

Committee Recommendation: Homeless Shelter Only At Registry

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Mayor's Committee to Find a Permanent Location for the Homeless intends to recommend that a homeless shelter be the only tenant of the Registry of Motor Vehicles building expected to be vacated next fall.

At its meeting last week, the committee had discussed whether there would be room to house the Quincy Detoxification Center at the registry's Broad St. site as well, according to chairman David Smith.

But members agreed there would not be enough space for both groups at the city-owned building expected to be vacated when the registry moves to Quincy Fair in Quincy Sq., he said.

"We met with Joseph Balley, Division of Alcohol, Mass. Department of Public Health, and discussed the standards and guidelines for a detoxification program for 20 people," said Smith.

"Balley indicated that his division had no problem with a shelter for the homeless and detoxification center sharing kitchen space and a dining area," said Smith.

"But bathroom, sleeping, storage, office and recreational space must be kept separate and distinct," he said, "according to Smith."

"After Balley's presentation, it became obvious to the members of the committee that although the present registry building is perhaps larger than necessary to shelter the homeless, it is much too small to house both the detoxification center and homeless shelter," Smith said.

"With that in mind, the committee will be recommending to the mayor that the registry building be used for purposes of housing the homeless only," he said.

Smith also said that a subcommittee was formed with members Lary Cretien, aide to Rep. Thomas Brownell, Fr. William McCarthy, and himself, as well as Nancy Powers, executive director of the Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, as advisor.

The subcommittee will sit down with Paul Barbadoro, the city's attorney assigned to the committee, to formally write an agreement and proposal between the coalition and the city concerning use and function of the building and responsibility of both parties, he said.

The committee for the homeless will meet again

Thursday, April 16, at 9 a.m. to discuss the agreement, after which a presentation of plans for renovation of the building will be requested.

When the entire package is compiled, it will be presented to the mayor for his input, according to Smith.

In the past, the mayor has expressed his support for a homeless shelter at the registry building.

"As committee chairman, I would like to thank both members of the detoxification center and their board, and members of the coalition board for their attendance at the early morning meeting," Smith said.

"It was heartening to see their active participation and enthusiasm in support of each other and this worthwhile project."

Stress Management Course At Hospital

A free introductory session on Systematic Stress Management will be held Wednesday, April 1, at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room of the Quincy City Hospital Administration Building.

The introductory session will be followed by three two-hour sessions to begin Monday, April 13, at 7 p.m. in the Hunting Building, Room 121.

Individuals who are not able to attend the introductory session are invited to arrive 15 minutes early for the initial session to be oriented with the program.

The program will be conducted by Jean Hodgkins, R.N.C., health educator at the hospital, who is an instructor certified by the American Institute of Preventive Medicine.

More information on the program is available by calling Mrs. Hodgkins at 773-6100, ext. 3005 or 3056.

The program, sponsored by the hospital, is designed to teach individuals to cope more effectively with stress in their lives.

As part of the program, participants will learn a systematic technology that is designed to prevent and minimize all types of stress.

The techniques are effective, easy to learn and can be readily used in a person's normal living and work environment, according to Mrs. Hodgkins.

Topics covered in the program include how to identify the causes of stress in your life, how to relax your mind and body, and how to recognize erroneous, self-defeating thoughts and replace them with realistic, relaxing beliefs.

Stress is a complex pattern of biochemical and behavioral changes organized by the body in order to cope with any increased demand placed upon it, said Mrs. Hodgkins.

"We begin life with a natural stress level and a capacity to adapt to life events. Over time, this adaptation energy is slowly spent fighting emotional and physical emergencies. Every stress event leaves an invisible scar that causes our bodies to become more run down," she said.

Calling it "a nervous age," Mrs. Hodgkins cited several reasons for inner turmoil. They include the high cost of living, crime, unemployment, over-demanding work and the changing roles of men and women.

"We pay a heavy emotional price for all this. The costs include tension symptoms, psychosomatic illnesses, physical complaints, and unsatisfying relationships. Developing effective ways to cope with the stresses of life has become a necessity," she added.

Co-chairmen of the planning committee are Dorothy Dignan of Braintree and Jerry Dacey of Hingham. State Senate President William Bulger, a supporter of Red Cross efforts, will participate in the dinner dance project.

This annual event is the chapter's major fund-raiser and closely follows the month-long observance of "March as American Red Cross Month."

Entrees Colorful And Easy

During my recent teaching course, which takes place in the dead of winter, one has to try very hard to make the class interesting and prepare foods that are appealing as well as tasty.

One of the entrees I prepared was done with chicken and a lemon sauce, featuring artichoke hearts and black olives. Colorful enough and quite easy to prepare (my brother John's favorite recipe).

CHICKEN WITH LEMON SAUCE

- 6 to 8 chicken cutlets
- 2 cups of seasoned bread crumbs
- juice of two lemons
- 1 can artichoke hearts
- (plain or seasoned, I've used both)
- 1 small can black olives
- (you'll need about 10-15)
- fresh parsley for sprinkling on top
- (parsley is optional)
- 2 tablespoons cooking sherry
- ½ stick of unsalted butter
- In the bread crumbs, add the juice of one lemon mixing with your fingers until blended. Dredge each cutlet in this mixture, saute quickly in hot hot oil turning so they won't brown. Place in a baking dish and set aside while you make the lemon sauce. Heat oven to 350 degrees.

LEMON SAUCE

Heat the butter, add the juice of one lemon, the sherry wine and if you want to thicken it, use about half teaspoon to one teaspoon of corn starch mixed with a little water. After this is cooked, put the artichoke hearts and the olives which have been cut in half and heat. Pour over the cutlets and bake for 15 minutes. Goes great with Fettucine Alfredo!

Drinking Drivers Suffer Worst Injuries

DON'T drive drunk!

Can anybody argue against that frequently-heard bit of safe driving advice? No Way!

Robert Campbell, director of the breath analysis section of the Illinois State Police, has this to say about drunk drivers: "When accidents occur, drivers who are under the influence of alcohol can't react quick enough. Their vision is impaired and their reflexes are slower."

But one myth persists. Some people still think that a drunk driver or drunk passenger in a vehicle is less likely to be seriously injured because they are "loose" and "relaxed."

Now there's evidence to the contrary.

When accidents occur, drivers who have been drinking aren't "protected by alcohol," as popularly believed, and are more likely than sober drivers to suffer serious and fatal injuries, according to a North Carolina study.

Dr. Patrick Waller, of the University of North Carolina School of Public Health, reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association that drivers who had been drinking were more than twice as likely to be seriously injured or killed in auto crashes.

Waller said it's popularly believed the "drunk can roll with the punches, and thus escape more serious injury than his sober counterpart."

Previous research has shown that drinking increases chances of getting into a crash, but studies have been inconclusive about whether drinking protected drivers from injury in crashes.

Waller and her colleagues conducted a large-scale study of more than one million drivers involved in accidents over a five-year period.

Researchers were surprised to find that drinking drivers who were in low-speed, low damage crashes were more likely to be killed.

Waller said these drivers were more than four times more likely to be killed in low-speed crashes. In comparison, such drivers who were in the most severe accidents were twice as likely to die.

Waller said intoxicated passengers also may face increased risk.

The red, white, and blue birthday cake centerpieces were made by Paula Gordon's Blue Bird club. Adult door prizes of gift certificates from A&T Video and youth door prizes of "Camp Fire is Big Fun" t-shirts were awarded.

Quincy Hospital To Celebrate Week For Children

The health care needs of children will be highlighted through Saturday as Quincy City Hospital kicks off its annual observance of Children and Hospitals Week.

The week will consist of hospital tours to students of the Furnace Brook School, Quincy, and students from the Let's Have Fun Nursery School in Wollaston.

Children and Hospitals Week is a week-long observance sponsored each year by the association for the Care of Children's Health (ACCH). This year, the theme is "Commitment To Caring."

"We want people to know that children have very special needs when it comes to health care," said Lynn Reilly, R.N., local ACCH coordinator and Nurse Manager of the Pediatric Unit at Quincy City Hospital. "That's why we are opening up the hospital for tours by students, so that the health care professionals at their community hospital can demonstrate and show that children are special people to us."

The hospital tour will consist of a pediatric puppet (pre-surgical theme) show and a tour of the hospital, including the departments of radiology, the laboratory and the newborn nursery. Some students have been preparing posters and paintings which they are presenting to the hospital to decorate the Play Room in pediatrics.

"We believe these tours and activities will help to focus attention on the need to help children deal with the stress and fear of hospitalization,"

Reilly explained. "Children and Hospitals Week comes only once a year. But lessening the trauma of hospitalization is a 24-hour, year-round commitment."

For more information on hospital tours throughout the year, call the Community Relations Office at 773-6100, ext. 4016.

Why play games with your retirement nest egg?

Your IRA is too important to juggle from "hot" investment to "hot" investment.

Opening a 1 IRA at The Hibernia Savings Bank gives you plenty of choices—12 different Term Certificates that guarantee your return for anywhere from 31 days to 60 months. And because we're members of both FDIC and DIFM, your entire IRA is protected from loss—whether it contains $500 or $5 million.

So bring your nest egg to The Hibernia Savings Bank. And the next time the market swoons (or bonds bomb) you'll be sitting pretty—while everyone else is scrambling.

Daffodil Days Raise Over $22,000 For Cancer Society

Daffodil Days, a special fund-raising event for the American Cancer Society, has generated $22,350 from the Quincy Milton area this year, according to Mrs. Pauline Sweeney who chairs the annual festivity.

"Even though there has been a bit of winter chill still in the air, 74,500 daffodils provided a touch of spring throughout our area," she said.

The Milton school children, under the direction of Mrs. Mary Cobb, raised $4,137.

The Quincy students, under Mrs. Helen O'Rourke, brought home 2,936 bunches, raising an additional $8,809, a total of $12,946 from the children alone.

Joyce Kulhawik from WBZ-TV, the Massachusetts Chairwoman of Daffodil Days, paid a visit to Quincy's Furnace Brook School to thank the children of both towns and to praise them for a job well done.

Kulhawik told the students, "The daffodil is the first flower of spring and, as such, symbolizes hope and renewed life. Buying flowers is always pleasurable, but buying daffodils to fight cancer brings a special reward."

Proceeds of the event go toward the American Cancer Society's research, education and patient services programs.

Quincy students present included:

Kara McSweeney, Nicholas Resevdes, Roberto Bago, of Daniel Webster School; Adrienne Morash, Patricia Spinosa and Andrew Meyers, Merrymount School; Heidi Daggett and Michael Smith, Broad Meadows School.

Bethanie Donovan and Julianne Battaglia, Atherton Hough School; Eric Griffin and Vivian Kam, Parker School; John McCarthy and Amy Parsons of Squantum School; Jean Healy, Melissa

Anderson and Heather Rendle, Central Middle School; Susan Creedon and Kristin Priscella, Lincoln Hancock School.

Shawn Burke, Katherine Hennessy, Chandra Leister, Montclair School; Vincent Pivnicny and Stephanie Corkery, Furnace Brook School.

Additional sponsors in the neighborhoods and business community were:

DAFFODIL DAY activities raised over $22,000 for the Quincy and Milton unit of the American Cancer Society. More than half of the money was raised by students such as these who enjoyed a visit from Ch. 4 entertainment reporter Joyce Kulhawik at the Furnace Brook School. From left, are volunteer Annie Roesner, Heather Randle, Central School sixth grader; Bethany Donovan, Atherton Hough second grader; Melissa Anderson, Central School sixth grader; Kulhawik; and Stephanie Corcoran, Furnace Brook School fourth grader.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

We are all fortified by traditions. They play an important part in our lives. Traditions provide patterns on which we can depend and they give us security, a sense of belonging. But sometimes when traditions are followed too rigidly they can be a block in the path of new progress... a block to new learning. True, we owe it to ourselves to preserve some traditions. Yet at the same time we owe it to ourselves not to be so conditioned that we become stagnant...

How many of us ride the fence, walk the middle of the road, to keep from betraying a tradition that says we should do a certain thing... believe a certain thing... think a certain thought? To break out of the set molds in which we have been hand-pressed can be difficult for there are many invisible hands still pressing. But isn't the freedom and joy of being a new person worth all the effort? ...

Ministry Fair Held At Squantum Church

The First Church of Squantum held a Ministry Fair Sunday after the morning service.

The morning began with an all-church breakfast sponsored by young people of the church, continued with a lively worship service in the sanctuary, and concluded with the Ministry Fair held in a colorfully decorated Fellowship Hall.

At the fair, worshippers were invited to extend their own ministries in any one or more of 36 ways. They ranged from planting and caring for the flowers in the church flower beds to joining the church Peace Committee to deal from a Christian point of view with such political issues as American support for the contras in Nicaragua or for the outlaw regime in South Africa.

Other examples of possibilities for ministry were using art for Christian witness, working on specific worship services, tutoring young people in need, visiting the sick, or walking in the walk to support the work of the Protestant Social Service Bureau.

As the fair-goers moved from table to table, they could see that the various forms of ministry fell under six general categories: fundraising projects, worship and witness, office and property, youth ministry, visitation, and outreach in service.

The morning was sponsored by the Board of Deacons but many others helped as well. Those assisting with the enlistment process were Ruth Swenson, Hazel Mayne, Valerie Gorriell, Diane Lindblad, Grace Holmes, Evelyn Ahearn, Pat Olson, Dana Olson, Barbara Edgar, Steve Williams, Stewart Scott, Mary Ruth Scott, Silas Porter and Barbara Waller.

During the service, church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the topic, "What Is Your Ministry?" His text was taken from Matthew: "And the King will answer them, 'Truly, I say to you, as you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it to me.'" (25:40)

The hymns sung, "Christ for the World We Sing!" and

"Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life," were accompanied by organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson.

The Chancel Choir sang Samuel Wesley's "Lead Me, Lord" as the first anthem. The combined Youth and Crusader Choirs sang the second anthem, "To Be As God Wants Us to Be" by Rev. Stanley E. White. Mary Ruth Scott directed both anthems. Guitarists Robert Dixey and Andy Ogilvie accompanied the second one.

Greeters for the morning were Carl and Barbara Anderson, and their daughter, Marsha. Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott were the ushers. During the Ministry Fair, Adelaide Nelson and Rene Johnson were in charge of refreshments.

The young people of the church sponsored a ham and bean supper last night (Wednesday) at 6 p.m. before the regular Lenten program at 7 p.m. The program included a videotape on the miracles of Jesus. The meal on April 1 will be a meal-of-supper.

There will be two worship services at church again Sunday morning: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

Sunday School and nursery are held during the second service.

Other events coming up are Covenant Sunday, April 5, and a big Squantum musical on May 1 and 2.

Hughes Sparks Catholic Memorial To State Title

The Catholic Memorial High School hockey team recently won the state championship for the second year in a row and one of the major reasons for the Knights' success was the stellar play in goal of Quincy's Chuck Hughes.

The 16-year-old junior was backup goalie a year ago and this year shared the duties with Weymouth's Paul Hickey.

Hughes was out of action with the flu and a strep throat at the start of the season, but he earned the starting position midway through the season and kept it the rest of the year.

Hughes, who attended the Atherton Hough elementary school and Broad Meadows Middle School, turned in his best effort of the season in the state championship game in which CM defeated Chelmsford, 4-1.

The Quincy goalie turned away 28 Chelmsford shots and earned the praise of coach Bill Hanson.

"Hughes was great tonight," he said "He made several outstanding standup saves and covered just about every rebound. He's been doing that all year."

CM defeated Boston College High, 3-1, to win the Catholic Conference crown, sparked by another super job by Hughes.

Hughes had 29 saves, 12 coming in the third period, including several spectacular ones.

"We can skate with them," said Boston College High coach Bob Hayes of Quincy. "Tonight we didn't capitalize on our opportunities. Hughes was outstanding in goal for them."

In the Knights' South sectional semifinal games against Silver Lake, Hughes led them to a 3-1 victory as he had 31 saves.

This set up another meeting with conference rival B.C. High and Catholic Memorial, which also met the Eagles in the sectional final a year ago, pulled out a 5-4 decision.

CM led, 5-2, late in the game but was plagued by unnecessary penalties. B.C. High captain Chris Marshall of Quincy, who had two goals and an assist, scored with 1:11 left and 52 seconds later cut the lead to one with his second.

"We came back, but not far enough," said Hayes.

Hughes had 17 saves and many of them were of the outstanding variety.

Hughes, a member of the honor society, was named to the Catholic Conference all-star team and the 'Hockey Night in Boston' Div. I all-star team.

It is hard to see how he can improve much on this year's performances, but coach Hanson expects the Quincy goalie to be even better next season as CM seeks another state title.

Hughes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes, Sr.

CM's performance extended the Catholic Conference's domination to seven straight Div. I state championships.

Public school coaches have been clamoring for some time to have the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA) make a constitutional change calling for separate public and private school tournaments.

Member schools will meet on April 15 to vote on such a change.

A Surprise Party And Fairy Tale Evening

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

It all began that cold Tuesday night about 10 p.m. when a car pulled up in front of the house and someone dropped a white envelope in the mailbox. It was an invitation written in calligraphy filled with mystery.

It began with the words "we invite you" and then told us to be at a certain place at 6 p.m. Thursday where we would be met with a man with a red rose. A limousine would whisk us away to a secret place. Sound intriguing?

My husband and I knew from the return address on the envelope that it came from a friend, but we didn't know what the event was all about. Since I love surprises, I followed the advice in the invitation which said not to reveal the contents to anyone. Such excitement!

So at 6 p.m. sharp we met at the designated place and sure enough just minutes after that, a silver limousine pulled up and picked up six of us all who had been told to meet at that same place. (We later found at least six or eight other limousines had picked up passengers from other parts of the city.) Each of us received a red rose to wear, and a glass of champagne and off we went.

Although the destination was kept a secret, it wasn't long before we were on the expressway heading towards Boston. The limo stopped and as we stepped out, other limousines were arriving also. Someone came out of a huge building and greeted us directing us to the 33rd floor of the Sheraton World Headquarters Building on State St.

What a spectacular view from this vantage point. When we arrived, we saw other family members and friends. Suddenly, a couple walked in to the room and within a few minutes, the guest of honor's son gathered us all together and announced it was a surprise party.

The party was for William F. "Bill" O'Connell, executive vice president of the O'Connell Management Co., who seemed truly surprised.

Well, it was a fairy tale evening with almost 100 friends and relatives enjoying food, a birthday cake, slides depicting the O'Connell family through the years and speeches by Bill and sons, Peter, William S. and Tom. We were thrilled to be part of it all.

The next day, there were two red roses in a vase in my living room in full bloom.

Mayor Proclaims Knights Of Columbus Week

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed the week of March 22 to 29, as Knights of Columbus Week in Quincy.

McCauley said that the K of C, the largest order of Catholic laymen in the world, will celebrate its 105th anniversary on Founders Day, March 29.

"The 1.4 million members of the K of C throughout the world stand for the cardinal principles of charity, unity, fraternity and patriotism," he said.

McCauley noted that Bernard Cardinal Law will celebrate the Founders Day Mass Sunday, March 29, at noon at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

The public is welcome.

Mayor Francis McCauley, Frank Kearns and William Corcoran of the Quincy Housing Authority, were guests at the ninth anniversary party of the Martensen Street meal site in Quincy Point.

This program is sponsored by the South Shore Elder Services and is served by many volunteers, among whom is Sadie Guarcello, 94.

The meal site allows senior citizens to enjoy lunches and good company and make new friends.

Westwood.

Central Relives Women In History

During a recent Women in History Week program at Central Middle School, students not only became playwrights but performers as well.

Camille Courtney, who coordinated the program, said the students used an attic setting as a renovated club meeting. In the process they explored the contents of the treasures stored in cartons and discussed the various figures who have contributed to making this a better world. The women who command their attention are triggered by the props they find.

Jana Coeto donned a scarf and a flight helmet to sculpt the role of Amelia Earhart while Jacqueline Potter locates an Egyptian catan and a sparkling tuta to present Cleopatra.

Other prop-rich historical commentaries and tributes: Irene Lutts, Madame Currie;

Kristin Manzer, Eleanor Roosevelt; Heather Powell, Pocahontas; Kara Sullivan, Beys Ross; and Christina Trilone, Mary Lou Retton. Christine Barrett played the part of Heather's mother and Michael Giese and Philip Bell completed the cast as they provided the give-and-take repartee as the girls spend time putting the role of women in proper perspective.

To complete the program The Morning Chorus, directed by Marion Clancy, sang a medley of songs which featured feminine names. The band, under the baton of director Bernard Goldstein, played "Aura Lee" and "A Pretty Girl."

Nicole Loneragan provided an introduction and was mistress of ceremonies. The writing and the coaching were under the direction of Mary Catherine Iannoni, head counselor.

Wollaston Market To Open After Easter

Purity Supreme, the last supermarket in Wollaston, closed last Saturday, but a new food store is scheduled to open the week after Easter, April 19.

"We're not quite sure of the date," said Frank Miller of Pembroke, owner-operator of the soon to be opened Wollaston Market at 615 Hancock St.

"We plan to keep it closed for renovation, painting and restocking," said Miller, who worked for Star Market for 24 years, the last 20 years as a store manager.

His last assignment was in West Roxbury.

The Wollaston Market will be an independent market supplied by Star Market Co., according to Miller. Hours will be 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Saturday, noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, he said.

"We'll be a little smaller than the conventional supermarket," said Miller. "We hope to localize to the neighborhood, provide good quality and service, and open as quickly as possible."

Depending on the needs of the neighborhood, Miller said he will experiment with merchandising ideas.

Noting that Wollaston has a high percentage of elderly residents, Miller said he had a lot of experience working with senior citizens.

He said he plans to speak to two groups of Clay St. residents.

"We'll talk about what we hope to do and meet with some of the residents," he said.

Interviews for full and part time positions will be held Saturday, 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the market.

China Star License Transfer Approved

By JANE ARENA

The City License Board Tuesday granted a request from David W. Chan, manager of Imperial Terrace, Inc., for a transfer of the common victualer-all alcoholic license held by China Star Restaurant, 105 Sea St. Merymount.

Chan, who was formerly part owner of a Pembroke-based restaurant, purchased the stock and equipment of China Star in November, 1986 and says that he plans to operate Imperial Terrace in much the same way as it has been run.

The only changes he plans to make, he said are interior decorations and minor menu adjustments. No major remodeling will be done.

The board stipulated that a team inspection be conducted by the Health Inspector, Building Inspector and Fire Chief before the redecorating begins. The board also said that Chan will need a special permit to change the face of the existing sign at the site.

Police Chief Francis Finn made it a point to commend Mrs. Lee, the former owner of China Star Restaurant, saying that in her 35 years in the restaurant business, she did not cause any problems for the License Board or for anyone else in the city.

City Receives $106,658 For W. Quincy Sewer Study

Mayor Francis C. McCauley announces that the city has been awarded a grant of $106,658 by the Division of Water Pollution Control.

The grant is for sewer system evaluation and flow monitoring in West Quincy. The project will cost $120,117 of which the city will pay $13,459. The city's share was appropriated in October at the time the city applied for the grant application.

McCauley said that the project will identify sources of infiltration and inflow which help to overload the sewers in West Quincy. The West Quincy system includes 119,000 linear feet of sewer pipe ranging from 8 to 18 inches in diameter and 525 manholes.

McCauley acknowledged the efforts of the Quincy Public Works staff, the consulting engineer, Whitman & Howard, Inc. and the Division of Water Pollution Control.

Takes Over May 1

Quincy Police Lt. Named Bourne Chief

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A Quincy police lieutenant will become chief of the Bourne Police Department at an annual salary of $51,350.

Dennis R. Mannix, 39, of Quincy, a 15-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department who earns $39,503 a year plus overtime, was offered the position Monday by Bourne Selectmen.

He is expected to start the new job May 1.

"I'm honored to be selected," said Mannix. "It's a position that I have been gearing my efforts toward as far as taking exams and practice exams."

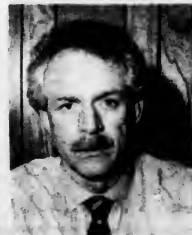

"I've had some experience in management, but now I'm going to actually have to do the job. It's a challenge."

Mannix said he reached an oral agreement with selectmen, and expects to sign a contract later this week. The appointment must also be approved by Civil Service.

He will replace retiring Chief Henry F. Maiolini who will soon reach the mandatory retirement age of 65. Maiolini will leave April 30 after serving as the chief for nearly 25 years.

He earned $46,146 a year which was computed by doubling the salary of the highest paid patrolman.

Mannix said the unanimous choice of selectmen and a screening committee for the position. Six applicants were interviewed, and three individuals were recommended for the job. Mannix was at the top of the list.

He was ranked third on the state civil service list for the position with a score of 91.

Although the base salary is $39,500, educational incentives provided in the Quinn Bill, which pays police officers for advanced degrees, adds 30 per cent to the base salary because Mannix has a master's degree.

Mannix said the decision to leave Quincy was a very difficult one to make.

"Even though I wasn't born here, Quincy is my home in every sense of the word," said Mannix, who has lived in the city for 10 years.

"I have a lot of mixed feelings leaving here. Quincy has been good to me."

"I've learned a lot at every step of my career. Hopefully I'll be able to use what I've learned here to continue the Bourne Police Department in the way that it has been going," he said.

Mannix said he has never vacationed in Bourne, at the beginning of Cape Cod, but has travelled there regularly over the last few weeks to get the feel of the town. It has a population of about 30,000 in the summer, and 16,000 the rest of the year, he said.

"Everyone has extended their hospitality to me," said Mannix. "That made my decision a lot easier."

At some point, Mannix expects to move his family to Bourne, a 45-minute drive from Quincy. They include his wife, Maureen, and two sons Christopher, 7, and Andrew, 4.

Project Feelings At Sterling Middle Friday

Brian and Jack Donahue of Project Feelings, a Quincy organization, will speak to students at Sterling Middle School Friday, April 3, at 10 a.m.

The dangers and horrors of drug and alcohol abuse will be discussed by the Donahue brothers. The two have been through the drug and alcohol scene, and now travel to schools to talk to students about their experiences.

Jack Donahue tells students that he is well-equipped to speak about drugs since he was a drug addict and former drug pusher.

He urges students to stay away from drugs and alcohol, especially beer and marijuana.

"Every drug addict I ever knew started with beer or marijuana and then moved on to pills, cocaine or heroin. Just stay away from all of it!"

he said.

Brian Donahue, a former University of Texas football star who will be trying out with the Miami Dolphins this summer, echoes his brother's sentiments about drugs and alcohol.

"For me, it started with marijuana and then progressed to the point where I was a full fledged drug addict," he said.

The Donahues are also scheduled to talk at the Woodward School for Girls Wednesday, April 8, at 1:45 p.m., at Central Middle School May 12, and at Broad Meadows Middle School at a date to be announced.

Has Questions On Racial Harmony Committee

Editor, The Quincy Sun.

As a once and future Quincy resident, I have some questions over a proposed citywide Racial Harmony Committee to deal with the issues of racial violence and civil rights violations in the wake of a recent incident at the Germantown housing project. Norfolk County D.A. William Delahunt believes, "We have to sit down and establish a dialogue." I could and do support that effort 100 per cent but I wonder if a city-wide harmony group is the best or only answer to improving the alleged poor race relations in the City of Quincy.

As someone who grew up in a racially-mixed neighborhood in the lower Roxbury South End section of Boston and who spent his young adult years in the working-class Charlestown community, I was brought up to respect the rights of everyone and to treat everyone else as I would want to be treated.

I tend to believe that many incidents that appear racial on the surface involve a host of other issues like underemployment, unemployment, poor housing etc. I may never have lived in the Germantown project but I did live in Roxbury's Orchard Park and the Cathedral project in the South End and I know project life is far from an easy road to travel.

Does Quincy have any real significant racial problems? Is the city's close proximity to Boston partly responsible? And is Quincy trying as a people to be an open community? I believe the answer to all these questions is "yes" to some degree. It is so easy for other towns to point to Quincy and the racial issue but Quincy also has the largest minority community of any other municipality on the South Shore. Quincy is facing the reality that it will have a continually growing Asian and black population but this should be seen not as a threat but a future building block.

I, however, do not see the Germantown issue as primarily a racial one. For too long as Quincy has developed with its State Street Southes, Marina Bays and Presidential Places, the living conditions at Germantown have remained, to say the least, static. For too long, it has been as if Quincy pols viewed the problems of the Germantown housing project from the shores of Weymouth's Wessagusset beach. Let's not get too close or we might have to actually deal with the issue of decent and affordable housing for poor and working folks.

It is time for any racial harmony group to deal with the lack of affordable rents and homes due to a severe housing shortage. The issue is citywide but let's not overlook Germantown because that's where the city must start.

I hope the Racial Harmony group can bring people of different races and ethnic backgrounds together but if this group isn't dealing with the other economic components involved, it will be little more than fodder for the upcoming political campaigns.

All of us must work together to make Quincy not just a mini-Boston but a city unto itself. We may not have a shining hill to stand on like a neighbor to the north but we can do the best we can to show the world that Quincy is a first-class city, a city which faces its problems.

Collins Or Siciliano Primary Key

It could be up to School Committeewoman Mary Collins or Civil Defense Director Tony Siciliano whether there is a City Council preliminary City Council at-large race this year.

At least seven candidates are needed for a run-off for the six nominations for the three seats in the final election.

There are six sure candidates. One more is needed for the preliminary tango.

If either Mrs. Collins or Siciliano gets in, it will force a preliminary election in September, something the city hasn't seen in six years. Both Collins and Siciliano are still in the "thinking it over" stage.

Two candidates have officially announced: Ron Iacobucci, who was the lone challenger in the last two elections, and Tom Koch, brother of Richard Koch, Jr. who is vacating his council at-large seat after moving to the Cape.

That empty seat and the one Joseph LaRata is giving up in a bid to return to the mayor's office, has created the unusual interest in the at-large race this year.

Council President Stephen McGrath will officially announce his candidacy for one of the at-large seats at a kick-off reception April 8 at Morrisette Post.

He is giving up his Ward 5 seat to run at-large. This, in turn, has triggered a race in Ward 5.

Councillor Patricia Ioland has not announced yet but is sure to seek re-election.

Tim Cahill, Quincy businessman and former Quincy High School wrestling coach, will announce tonight (Thursday) at a 7 P.M. reception at Torre Dei Passeri Social Club on Washington St.

Michael Condon, son of Joanne Condon, former Ward 6 councillor and 1985 mayoral candidate has indicated he will make a bid.

SICILIANO

That's six. One more needed.

Siciliano says he is still very interested in running and so far has found nothing to indicate there might be a conflict of interest stumbling block.

Siciliano, one of the most popular figures in the city who has helped so many people in snowstorms, hurricanes, floods, and in other emergencies would have to be considered a strong contender if he ran.

So would Mrs. Collins who already has an impressive campaign track record.

She has been the top vote getter in School Committee races her last three times out, finishing first by substantial margins in 1977, 1981 and 1985.

Having pulled that good a vote running city wide in three elections for School Committee she would be in a strong position running city-wide for City Council at-large.

COLLINS

The setup is similar in the final election. Voters get to vote for three candidates -- not just one. And she has been getting one out of three more consistently than any one else.

Will she get in?

"I'm leaning toward running," she says. "But I really don't know for sure. I won't decide for a couple of weeks or so."

MEANWHILE, there's movement in Ward 1. Charles Phelan, Jr., 29, is in as a candidate but Tom Baker is out.

Phelan, who worked for Steve McGrath and was School Committeewoman Steve Durkin's campaign manager in 1983, officially announced this week he seeks the Ward 5 seat being vacated by McGrath.

Mrs. Baker, long-time active in Republican clubs and community causes, bowed out after spending "considerable time" thinking it over.

Her involvement in other projects was the deciding factor.

John Keenan, 23, of Lincoln Ave., already has a campaign committee lined up and will be officially announcing his candidacy when McGrath officially announces his.

Still possible contenders: State Republican Committeewoman Kathy Roberts, Paul Bregoli, North Quincy High School girls basketball coach and Ann Kevin Burke, nephew of George Burke, former district attorney and city councillor.

AND IN Ward 3, Howard McKay who made a last run two years ago, looks like he will make another bid this year. Sign, he's been regularly attending City Council meetings.

Another name is being mentioned: Larry C. legislative aide to Rep. Thomas Brownell.

RETIRED Police Capt. Frank Valheri, one of Quincy's all-time nice guys, is a patient at City Hospital. A card would help brighten things.

YOU HAVE TO admit that Peter Kenney, Mayor Francis McCauley's executive secretary, is calm and cool under fire.

McCauley, visiting Taiwan with eight other U.S. Mayors, asked Kenney to call him at his hotel in Taiwan to update him on what was going on back in Quincy.

Kenney, cool as the proverbial cucumber, picked up the phone in the mayor's office, pushed a few buttons and presto, was through to the hotel lobby on the other side of the world and then, quickly connected to McCauley's room.

If he had pushed one or two wrong buttons on the phone in Quincy he might have reached Moscow or Tokyo.

Well done, Peter

"They were very much a part of the decision-making process," he said.

"I'm at the right age to make a move," said Mannix. "If I'm ever going to do it, now is the time."

"But I'm not doing it without some apprehension."

From what he has seen, the Bourne Police Department is very well managed, he said.

"I'll do well to continue the standards," said Mannix.

Because the Bourne Police

Department is much smaller than Quincy's, about 34 people compared to 185, Mannix expects to be more intimately involved in various areas of management.

"It's on a smaller scale than Quincy, but basically the same concepts," he said.

Mannix has been accreditation manager for the Quincy Police Department, and hopes to pursue that objection in Bourne at some point.

No one has yet been named to take over his accreditation duties in Quincy, he said.

A graduate of Dorchester High School, Mannix received a bachelor's degree in law enforcement from Boston State College in 1977. He attended the New England School of Law in Boston for one year, and was awarded a master's degree in criminal justice from Anna Maria College in 1981.

He served in the Air Force from June 1965 to April 1969.

His last day with the Quincy Police Department is tentatively April 30.

"I've received nothing but support from the people I work with," said Mannix. "They've all given me their good wishes, and I really appreciate that."

"Everyone has offered to help."

"The chief (Francis Finn) has been especially supportive."

"I don't consider that I'm losing friends, I'm just trying to gain more friends," he said.

NEW SYSTEM FOR ASSESSORS

Mayor Hall instructed the board of assessors to adopt the "card system" for their field work.

According to the mayor, the new system would allow for the property of the city to be assessed at its proper and equitable value, for the first time. Every tract of land would be recorded on a card, so that when assessors entered a street, they'd know what neighboring properties were assessed at.

BARGES TO HOUGHS NECK

It was announced that the barges would run from Quincy Square to the peninsula eight times daily.

The Quincy Police Department issued warnings throughout the city this week, warning residents to be on the lookout for a man soliciting piano tuning door-to-door.

According to reports, the man was an impostor. A $5 reward was offered for information leading to his arrest and conviction.

Quincy Hospital Nursing Program On 'Rewards Of Collegiality'

The Quincy City Hospital (QCH) Department of Nursing is sponsoring a program on "The Rewards of Collegiality" to be held at the Sheraton Tara, Braintree, Tuesday, May 12, 7 to 10 p.m.

Intent of the program is to encourage the collegiality of nurses through the identification of mutual needs and goals and to recover any lost idealism that inspired their entry into the profession.

Objectives of the program are to describe the benefits of collegial sharing; identify how rivalry can disrupt nurse-to-nurse relationships; and to develop a philosophy that will lead to strengthening the image of nursing.

To reach these objectives, the guest speaker will use the Nursing Process: identify if a problem exists, plan an action to correct it, implement that action, evaluate that act, ascertain if positive change has occurred.

Presenter for the program is author, Leah L. Curtin, M.S., M.A., R.N., FAAN. Miss Curtin is currently a member of the National Advisory Board of Health East, the Editorial Advisory Board of Nursing Forum, and the Editorial Advisory Board of Developmental Disabilities Now. She is the editor of Nursing Management and member of the adjunct faculty at the University of Cincinnati.

The program fee is $35 and contact hours will be awarded.

Gnocchi A Different Pasta

Last week my sister-in-law Billie was visiting from California and had not had a chance to come east for more than 15 years. Each family member had her over for either lunch or dinner. What was left for me was a Saturday luncheon for her and my other sister-in-law, Mary.

It just wouldn't seem right fixing a sandwich. After all, it had been such a long time since she had eaten at our house and I wanted it to be different. One of the entrees that I prepared was home made Gnocchi (pronounced noikky). It is a type of pasta that is made with varied mixtures of either flour and potatoes, flour and water or ricotta cheese and flour.

I decided on the ones with ricotta and flour and easy to make as pancakes, (well almost). Not only that, but I was able to make them and cook them at 7:30 in the morning and then heated them in the microwave. They can also be heated in a warming oven (about 225). When Mary and Billie arrived and saw what they were having, they looked at each other in such surprise because it was the one thing through Billie's visit and her many invites that she had not had. Here is the recipe.

GNOCCHI WITH RICOTTA
1 pound of ricotta cheese
1 egg an equivalent container of flour extra flour for the board and for your sticky hands

Mix altogether in a mixing bowl until the mixture becomes a dough. It takes about a couple of minutes. Take it out of the bowl and on a floured surface, knead until smooth. If you have to add a little flour, only do so if the mixture seems sticky.

After the dough is smooth, make strips of it, using both hands. Cut in little pieces about an inch long. Put an air hole in each piece by using your forefinger and middle finger and taking each piece separately and pull down slightly on the floured board. They will resemble a packaged date with a slight cut in the center, but not all the way through. Put in salted boiling water and cook until the gnocchi float to the top. It only takes about 5 minutes. Drain and add the tomato sauce. Feeds about six. Goes well with sausage and meatballs or just a salad.

FOR THE CARE OF YOUR LIFE.

A PROUD HERITAGE.

On May 22, 1922 - flush with a $14,000 mortgage loan from one of its 12 founding fathers - Weymouth Hospital opened its doors in the H.B. Reed Estate with an operating room, a delivery room, a nursery, an X-ray machine and 20 patient beds. Today, the 280-bed South Shore Hospital has a total service area of more than 20 towns with nearly 400,000 residents. With 1,600 employees, it's one of the largest businesses on the South Shore. Its emergency room - the third busiest in the state - handled more than 45,000 visits last year.

Between then and now, numerous milestones have helped make South Shore Hospital the area's leading health care institution. It pioneered group insurance. It saw our area through the Depression and World War II, concerning itself with making people better and less with how or if patients could pay. It went through countless additions, implementation of new technologies that kept it current, and an on-going "boot strap" philosophy that kept it solvent and contributing where others had failed. It had a nursing staff that was always preeminent in care and concern; and it brought over 75,000 new friends and neighbors into this world - perhaps the best gift of all.

From this proud and involved past, South Shore Hospital today is stronger than ever - and poised for future growth and innovation that will aid all of us.

A SOUND DIRECTION.

People are the backbone of any successful institution or business. In its first 65 years, this has always been the case at South Shore Hospital. The staff, physicians, trustees, members of the Corporation, volunteer groups such as the Friends of South Shore Hospital, Inc., and others all serve as both advisors and concerned partners. Tapping this wealth of resources is a leadership that welcomes positive change: a leadership that realizes its success comes about only when it assesses daily the needs of its community. South Shore Hospital and its parent company, South Shore Health & Educational Corp., seeks your continued help and scrutiny as it continues planned expansion of quality health and wellness-related services in southeastern Massachusetts.

PROGRAMS NEEDED TODAY.

Never has more been demanded from hospitals. And only those that recognize this will continue to function in the manner called for by society. South Shore Hospital and South Shore Health & Educational Corp., recognizes this with services and technology as diverse as a state-of-the-art full-body CAT scanner and a home communications system for the elderly. With a critical care unit ranked among the tops in the nation; a trauma room to ease the strain on emergency facilities; and a birth defects and genetic counseling clinic. With a walk-in clinic in Marshfield and an outpatient surgical and diagnostic center in Weymouth - current examples of a hospital's need to grow outside its walls as it takes its services to its community. With hospital tours for children to ease their anxiety before admittance and with free, courtesy coach transportation to and from the hospital to aid those on fixed income. With teletypewriters for the hearing-impaired and important wellness programs such as occupational health for businesses and nutrition counseling for all of us.

South Shore Hospital is healthy today. Because it has been ever aware that its constituencies must be healthy tomorrow.

EXCITING PLANS FOR TOMORROW.

Thank you for allowing us to care for your life. We will continue to view this as a sacred trust. As we perform 10,000 surgical procedures and receive some 80,000 outpatient and ambulatory visits annually. As our volunteers contribute 75,000 hours a year. As we continue on-going efforts to reduce the length of patients' stays and remain both economically responsive and responsible. As our revenues and our fundraising is directed toward physical expansion, capital equipment, medical technology and physicians programs aiding all of us. As we continue innovation on home health care, elder services, diagnostic capabilities, sports medicine, cardiac rehabilitation, cancer therapy, stroke prevention and treatment, and countless other programs and services.

So there is much that is new about South Shore Hospital, including our new logo. But although the care we provide has changed, the caring is the same as it was 65 years ago. Total, and committed.

South Shore Hospital. For the care of your life.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Be Suspicious!

Be suspicious of unknown delivery men and salesmen. Don't invite them into your home at any time. Some are not what they may appear to be.

Beware of a package that is delivered that you did not expect. This method has been used as a means to gain "peaceful" admittance.

Demand proper identification from all unknown persons.

Beware of so-called "inspectors" who will examine your home without charge to determine the safety of your furnace, roof or foundation. If you do require any of these services, consult a reputable dealer.

Be suspicious of a stranger entering your neighbor's home when you believe him to be away, or a truck or moving van parked outside his home when you have not heard anything about his moving. Call the Police immediately and have us check out the situation.

Be suspicious of broken or open windows and doors.

Be suspicious of persons loitering about the neighborhood either on foot or in a vehicle. If they are in a vehicle, try to get the registration number.

Be suspicious of the sound of breaking glass or shattering wood.

Be suspicious of a stranger carrying appliances, household goods or luggage from a neighbor's home. Get a good description of the person if possible.

Be wary of wrong number telephone calls. Often times they are made to determine if anyone is at home prior to breaking in.

Ask questions of the caller and inform the entire family about the call. Give no other information.

Most important of all is to call the Police if something does not look quite right.

We would much rather answer a hundred calls that lead to nothing than to let one crime go unsolved.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Many times we have heard people say, "You can't give what you don't have," and this platitude is true. You can't. Nevertheless, many people make the mistake of trying to give what they don't have. Take, for example, those who think they know everything about everything and it they don't they pretend they do ... They seem to be able to give advice on any subject. Now and then, however, they do reveal the fact that they are speaking with authority from a vacuum of knowledge.

It is well known that Abraham Lincoln was vastly disturbed during the Civil War because he was so often denounced and criticized by people who pretended to be wise on a minimum diet of information and facts. They offered wisdom they did not possess. To them he whimsically told the story of a backwoods traveler lost in a terrific thunderstorm. The rider floundered through the mud until his horse gave out. Then he stood alone in the middle of the road while lightning streaked and thunder roared around him. Even though he was not a praying man, he knelt and made a petition short and to the point: "O Lord, if it is all the same to you, give us a little more light and a little less noise."

It is not true that we cannot give light or wisdom we do not have, and we do more damage than good when we speak with authority from a vacuum of knowledge and information?

Squantum Pastor Backs American Aid To Contras

The pastor of the First Church of Squantum spoke out this week against continuing American aid to the contras in Nicaragua.

In a sermon entitled "Uneasy Lessons from the Moneychanger Incident," the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin charged that atrocities were being committed in that part of Central America with American money. He cited recent stories in the Boston Globe and the Wall Street Journal as evidence for what he was saying.

The text for his talk was Jesus' remark, "Would that even today you knew the things that make for peace!" (Luke 19:42b).

The pastor also claimed that Christians across the country are beginning to take action to protest the present policy.

Examples that he gave included the arrest of the Rev. Dr. Avery Post in Washington, D.C., on Ash Wednesday.

Dr. Post is the president of the United Church of Christ in this country. He and a number of leaders of other denominations were arrested for unlawful entry, parading and demonstrating in the rotunda of the Capitol building as part of an ecumenical Lenten witness protesting the present American policies in Central America.

Another example was the "Via Crucis 1987," a 14-day pilgrimage across the state of Massachusetts, designed to lift up the need for a just peace in Central America. The group will gather in Pittsfield April 4 and begin walking the next day, arriving on the Boston Common on the morning of Good Friday.

Later that day, in the same spirit, a group of persons from the Presbyterian, American Baptist, Quaker and United Church of Christ denominations will make a silent witness for peace and justice there on the Boston Common.

A fourth example of increased Christian activism in protest of such policies as the support of the contras is the "Mobilization for Justice and Peace in Central America and South Africa" to be held Saturday, April 25, in Washington, D.C. Protesters from across the nation will travel to the capital to demonstrate against the present American foreign policy.

Greeters for the morning were Virginia and Arthur Sorenson; ushers were Stewart Scott and Tore Wallin, and the Fellowship Hour was hosted by Barbara Walter and Linda Mooney.

After the Fellowship Hour, there was a regular meeting of the Church Council, with all members of the church welcome to attend.

The Ladies' Aid met Wednesday, at 12, for luncheon and a program. The Women's Evening Friendship Group will meet Tuesday, April 7, at 7:30 p.m. for its monthly program.

The Lenten series continues Wednesday nights. On April 1, young people of the church sponsored a meatloaf supper at 6 p.m. After the supper, everyone gathered upstairs for a videotape presentation on the miracles of Jesus. The meal on April 8 will be a turkey dinner. Reservations can be made by calling Hazel Mayne at 328-4367.

The Board of Deacons will meet the second Monday of each month beginning April 13 at 7:30 p.m. The Board of Trustees meet on the third Monday of each month. Their next meeting is April 20 at 7:30 p.m.

This Sunday is Covenant Sunday at the church. Members who wish to renew their commitment to Christ and the church but who cannot be present on that morning will want to inform the pastor by note or phone call of their intention. This is a twice-yearly opportunity.

The Covenant Service Sunday at 10:30 a.m. will be preceded by a Covenant Breakfast at 9:15 a.m. Members of the Crusader Choir, the Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir will be served at 9 a.m. so that they can be on time to their combined practice at 9:30 a.m.

A promotional videotape for the Protestant Social Service Bureau will be made at the church by members of several of the church youth groups at 1 p.m. Sunday. Orange Crush and Seven Up will also meet together that night at 6 p.m. to rehearse for the musical coming up on May 1 and 2.

Members of another youth group at the church, the Way Up, will hold a pizza party for patients at Long Island Hospital April 5.

Visitors to the church are always welcome.

Penance Service At St. John's

A parish-wide Lenten Penance Service will be held at St. John's Church, Quincy Center Tuesday, April 7 at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor, will be the celebrant and will be joined by his staff and 12 visiting priests.

The celebration is open to all.

A Special Four-Week Program

Learning About China's Rich Culture

The Parker School is located in that part of Quincy where over the past several years many families from the Far East, particularly China, have taken up residence.

Children from these new families have become very important contributing members of our student body. But, it soon became apparent to me as principal that while they were quickly learning about our country, our city and our customs we in turn needed to know more about their rich heritage and culture.

Working through the office of Dr. Richard Chrystal, assistant superintendent for instruction, a plan was submitted to the cultural education collaborative's artists-in-residence program. The cultural education collaborative is funded in part by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities which is a state agency whose funds are recommended by the governor and appropriated by the legislature. Our thanks to Senator Paul Harold and Representatives Cerasoli, Brownell and Morrissey for their continued support of this program.

In early January the program was funded and Li Min Mo came to Parker School to begin a four week program as the artist-in-residence. Mrs. Mo is a well known writer, historian and lecturer on China and its culture. She began her work with fourth grade children. Over the next few weeks the children took part in a wide variety of new experiences ranging from: conversation in Chinese, writing Chinese, geography and history of China to crafts and games and concluding with storytelling.

On Jan. 29 all fourth graders participated in a Chinese New Year celebration taking part in special food sampling, lion dancing and listening to a New Year story delivered by Li Min Mo.

During her last week at Parker School the artist-in-residence visited other grades where children were given an opportunity to hear stories of China, write poetry and do China doll craft activities.

The program concluded in early February and judging from students and staff it was successful. One small incident, however, remains clear in memory. It involves a 4th grader from China who having difficulty mastering the English language suddenly found himself the center of attention for he was now telling others how to pronounce words in Chinese. A language easy for him and difficult for others.

This small experience helped to bring a new level of awareness between students and although only one small event over the Li Min Mo's residence it points out the unexpected good thing that happened with children in our artist-in-residence program.

'A Pleasure To Work In Parker School'

From Li Min Mo to Parker School:

My month at Parker School was filled with exciting activities, from Chinese writing, speaking, singing and cultural history lessons to 3 different 4th graders. I also travelled to other classes and entertained the students with stories from China.

I enjoyed my residence at Parker because the principal was very supportive of everything I've done. The teachers were attentive in all of my core group lessons, some even took notes every day. One aspect of working with one class at a time and with full support of one teacher gave this project stability, continuity and excitement.

I felt my presence as an Asian educator and artist will never be forgotten by those I've made contact with here.

Many of my teachings aimed at making the students think and question in the tradition of great and deep teachings, for example, why Chinese people embraced the belief system of Laoist, Buddhist and the philosophy of Confucius as one grand belief system.

Geography lessons were mingled with culture and basic anthropology, and throughout my presentations I gave the students stories from 5,000 years of Chinese history, allegories, myth, folklore and legends. It was a pleasure to work in the Parker School. I'd love to come back again.

Yours Truly,
LI MIN MO

A Taste Of China Today

As part of the preparation for our "China Immersion Week," we invited Ms. Combes, a fellow Quincy teacher, to speak to the children about her recent trip to China.

Through her vivid descriptions and colorful photographs, the children experienced a taste of China "today." She left the boys and girls with an eagerness to learn more about the customs, history and culture of China.

To further stimulate their curiosity, we visited the Asiatic section of the Museum of Fine Arts, where the students studied various forms of Chinese art.

Back in the classroom we explored still another "flavor" of China. The children prepared and feasted upon such delicacies as ten flavored chicken, fried rice, and Chinese tea. Individual research and reports were encouraged, one of the highlights being a presentation on acupuncture.

By the time Ms. Mo entered our classroom, the children were eager to broaden their new found knowledge on China with an "expert." She developed a series of lessons with varying themes. During her residence, children were exposed to speaking and writing Chinese, listening to ancient Chinese tales, and playing popular Chinese children's games. She involved the children in music, crafts, history and the religious beliefs of China.

She introduced them to the Tao teaching of Chinese poetry. Another popular lesson involved a demonstration of the martial arts and the process of meditation. Throughout her lessons, Ms. Mo would flavor her teachings with interesting Chinese legends or songs in order to illustrate an objective to the children.

One of the culminating events was the celebration of the Chinese New Year. With Ms. Mo's guidance, our children were involved in a parade throughout the school and treated to various Chinese treats that symbolized good health and good luck.

Our "China Immersion Week," with Ms. Mo, stimulated an enthusiasm and excitement for a culture extending beyond the classroom walls into the children's lives for years to come.

The New Year

Linda Wong was seven years old and had been waiting for the year of the hare. Linda's favorite animal had been a hare when she was little so she knew 4684, the year of the hare would be the best... It was two days before New Year's and Linda's family was getting ready buying red paper for money. It was a tradition to give money to children and single people and Linda got lots of money.

Linda's favorite holiday was New Years... It was the night before New Years and Linda and her family were preparing. They had lots of tangerines and oranges. They were a sign of good luck. Linda's mother was in the kitchen making sweet rice balls while Linda and her sister, Leanne, were filling red paper with fifty cents a package. Linda's father and two brothers, David and Tommy, were putting red paper on the doors.

The next morning Linda awoke. She threw on her silk dress, put on new pink shoes with dragons, brushed out her hair, and put two barrettes in her hair. She ran out and saw all her relatives and friends. Then she saw tangerines, oranges, a whole chicken, and fish near two red candles for their ancestors. They had watermelon seeds and candy, the rice balls and noodles that meant long life. Linda had $15.00 she had received in her red paper. Then she went to a parade and saw dragons and fireworks. Linda fell asleep that night thinking about new days to come.

A Visit From Mrs. Mo

One day we had a Chinese lady come into our classroom and her name was Li Min Mo. We called her Mrs. Mo. Mrs. Mo taught us some Tai Chi, which is a mixture of exercises and Kung Fu. She also taught us how to make a Chinese balloon made out of paper. Mrs. Mo taught us how to write and speak in Chinese too.

One Night

One night I felt I was going to freeze. Looking outside, I saw little angels dancing to the ground, soon they touched the ground and disappeared. Snow shimmering down, I was freezing so I crawled back to bed and started to dream. I dreamed little angels were falling from the sky and running to shake me. I woke up. It was my mother putting a blanket over me. That night I felt I was going to freeze.

The Glass Case

This month we are studying China.

Our class room has lots of Chinese things. The thing I like the best is the "glass case." It has lots of small Chinese figures. We have pretty hand puppets, tea sets, and fans. The fans are very pretty. They have trees, flowers, grass, birds, writing, and pretty people. We also have scrolls in our glass case. You read the writing from right to left. We have one little statue of Buddha in our case.

Also in our case we have a little Chinese girl playing a toy. We have a small box of tea and Chinese books. How many Chinese things do you have?

An Excellent Cultural Experience

Li Min Mo captured the attention of Grade 3, Room 4 by her story of an old soldier and the immortal fruit that he stole.

By this story she vividly depicted the negative aspects of greed and the positive aspects of sharing and giving.

She also taught the children the Chinese folk craft of the never falling doll. These elaborate and colorful dolls were successfully and joyfully made by the children under attentive direction.

Li-Min-Mo provided an excellent Chinese cultural experience for the class.

Back To Earth

During the months of January and February my class, Grade 4, Room 11, studied China in-depth.

Li Min Mo, our Chinese Artist In-Residence, visited our classroom for one week. Mrs. Mo took us back in time to early China. Through songs, stories and poetry Chinese history came alive.

Modern day customs were explained through picture books, articles on display, games, etc.

As a culmination to our Grade 4 Room 11 was our

Mrs. Mo visited grade 2, room 18, Wednesday, Feb. 3.

She shared two delightful "New Year's Stories." She involved the children in choral speaking and role playing. Mrs. Mo established an appreciation and love for the beauty of the spoken word. She was an energetic, vital, gifted story teller, sweeping her second grade audience into an exciting world of fantasy.

Mrs. Mo concluded her teaching-learning experience with an art lesson. A "Chinese Dragon" was displayed and examined. The children then created their own dragons. Fierce teeth, shiny scales, eerie eyes, swaying bodies soon took form--each one different--each one beautiful!

Mrs. Mo's visit was a treat--a gift she graciously gave.

The fourth grade students at F.W. Parker School had much to look forward to with the approach of a new year.

"Happy New Year 1987!" was our first exclamation when we returned to school after our exciting Christmas winter vacation. We then started on a wonderful journey to China. The children in room 10, Mrs. Zaleskas' class, were the first to welcome Li Min Mo, an artist-in-residence for the month of January.

Li Min took the youngsters on a great adventure into the culture of China. Each day the children were given three hours of instruction so that they would be more aware of Asian culture and our new west wave of immigrants arriving from that area.

The classes included geography, history, language, music, art and basic beliefs (religion philosophy).

The children heard stories, saw slides, and were exposed to many Chinese items. Li Min practiced speaking Chinese words and expressions as well as teaching them how to write many words (characters). They especially were enthusiastic about this aspect. A part of each day was also set aside for learning an Oriental game and also doing some art work in paper folding (origami). We listened to Chinese music and even learned to sing a song.

All of these activities made the children very aware of the differences yet similarities of people. Our children will be better able to accept others of different backgrounds and appreciate their contributions to our multi-cultured neighborhood.

The end of January came and we again were able to say, "Happy New Year!" As we learned about and celebrated the Chinese new year (Year of the Hare). The children were told of the new year traditions and were treated to a celebration in which they paraded through the classrooms with instruments and doing the lion dance. All children were treated to a little gift in the traditional red envelopes. It was the perfect ending to a great learning experience.

A Visitor From China

Last week a lady came into our class. Her name was Mrs. Mo. She taught us a lot about China. The first thing she did was teach us how to speak some Chinese. Then she taught us some history about China.

She said that they have three religions and they combine them into one religion. The Chinese were the people to make up silk and porcelain. Mrs. Mo left our class and is going to another class but she'll be back in two weeks.

Mrs. Mo visited us for a week. Mrs. Mo taught us the Chinese language. Mrs. Mo taught us how to say I am an American in Chinese. She taught us how to say thank you and you are welcome. We did crafts and we played games. We made fortunes and we made a fox. We did some Ti Chi which is a martial exercise. On Thursday, January 29 we had a Chinese parade to celebrate the Chinese New Year. We got a red envelope with candy in it for good luck, and it had a fortune on the front.

Chinese New Year

On Chinese New Year people get oranges and tangerines for good luck. On New Year's people give money in a package. Chinese people make rice balls and they don't eat meat on New Years Day. People eat long noodles for long life. They don't pick a broom up on Chinese New Year because you might pick up some evil spirits. This year is the year of the rabbit. On Chinese New Year people buy a chicken for the spirits and people rang red paper on their front door.

'Old Man' And Confucius

Lin Min Mo taught us that a man called "old man" taught us to go back to nature.

A man called Confucius taught us standard of behavior. A man called Han Heung taught us standard of measurement. Many people built the Great Wall. She taught us how to write Chinese. She taught us how to speak Chinese. To say I am American in Chinese "wa shi mie len". She said if you go the Great Wall at night you could hear the people screaming that died building the Great Wall. In the north they eat noodles. In the south they eat rice.

Snow

The clear glittering snow fell from the sky like a dancing ballerina. It just fell and fell like little glittering drops. It was slow and quiet like a sleeping baby. It was soft and silky like a little white kitten. How I just wish I could have a little white kitten as the glittering snow fell.

It Was Fun

On Wednesday Jan. 7, we started to learn about China. Mrs. Mo came to our classroom. She was there until Monday. We learned that there are two great rivers in China, the Yellow River and the Yangtze River. There also is the Grand Canal. The Great Wall of China was to keep away attackers. We learned how to talk in Chinese, too.

She told us a kite was flown to ward off evil spirits and if you tied a list of your worries to a kite your worries would be gone. We learned a Chinese song and about Taoism, Confucianism, and Buddhism. She told us a Buddhist story. We learned Chinese games and how to write in Chinese.

We have a kit hung up in our room. It was fun learning about China.

Li Min Mo:

1. She loves to sculpt with clay in her spare time.

2. She was born in Shanghai in 1947. She came to America in 1960.

3. She prepares special foods on New Year's Eve.

4. She loves living in America. She will not trade it for any other place in the world because there is more freedom here.

5. She found that it was most interesting to talk about belief systems.

Canan liked the Chinese games and Chinese writing. She also enjoyed Ms. Mo's stories from China.

The soft, sparkling snow came fluttering down from the sky as delicate as tiny dancing butterflies.

Then the soft, sparkling snow stopped.

Nothing is permanent about snow. The sun can melt the snow easily. The snow is not always white. It could be crystal or even clear. It also can be crushed. It does not always stay in the air, and no two are the same. You can identify animals by their footprints. Snow is not solid unless it is put in water.

The Changes: Of Snow

Snow changes from sky to ground. Looks like silver all the way down. Turns into light, little flakes. Dances softly like little angels. Slowly it comes down. The soft, light, little snow, now turns into loud buffalo. Tramping on my roof. Snow changes from silver snow to icicles, clear, then it melts, turning to huge water puddles that splash. Snow changes.

Chinese Writing

Chinese writing is very different from English writing. Chinese writing is very complicated and hard to understand. Here are three sentences in Chinese...

A Chinese Game To Play

Mrs. Mo talked to us on China. We learned a lot and made some crafts that children make in China. Children in China don't get many mechanical toys, so they make them. One of the games was like Jacks. First take 4 beanbags and scatter them. They play just like jacks. If you get really good, pick up 2 or 3 at a time. Then put them in a row and try to pick up the 2 on the end. If you can do that, you're terrific at it!

They all have their birthdays on the Chinese new year. On the Chinese new year all the families have a big dinner. They have roasted chicken and roasted pork. When they serve roasted chicken, they leave the head on it and someone cuts it off.

Celebrating The Chinese New Year

January 29 was the beginning of the Chinese New Year. This year is the Year of the Hare. In China they do not have birthdays like we do. On each New Year they turn a different age. If you're nine, you turn ten, if you're twenty you turn twenty-one and if you're sixteen you turn seventeen. Mrs. Mo entered our classroom on the Chinese New Year and she was all dressed up in a beautiful Chinese outfit. Mrs. Mo passed out different kinds of seeds and candy. We also got a red envelope with a fortune that was different from each other. Then we had our Chinese Parade. That was the best part of all! We had a dragon that wiggled its eyes if you pulled down a string and musical instruments, and a clown. We went around the school twice. When we were done we had a parade up to Miss Weatherhead's class. Then they had their parades.

Charles Phelan, Jr. Candidate For Ward 5 Seat

Charles J. Phelan, Jr. of 26 Kemper St., Wollaston, announces his candidacy for Ward 5 City Councillor.

A lifelong resident of Wollaston, he is the son of retired Quincy Police Officer and Mrs. Charles J. Phelan, Sr.

Phelan attended elementary school at St. Ann's School, Wollaston, and was graduated from Xavierian Brothers High School in Westwood in 1976.

Following graduation from high school he attended Northeastern University and earned a bachelor's degree as a criminal justice major in 1981.

He is employed at Burke Distributing Corp., Randolph, as operations supervisor of data processing.

Phelan has been active in Boy Scout activities, particularly with Troop 20 in Wollaston. As an Eagle Scout, he served for several years on the Camp Master Staff at Camp Massasoit, Plymouth.

Phelan said, "My political involvement began with my activity in the State Democratic Party.

"I first served as a delegate to the Massachusetts Democratic Party Convention in 1982. As an active member of the Ward 5 Democratic Committee, I have served as a delegate to the State Convention for four of the last five years."

In 1983, he served as campaign chairman for Steve Durkin's successful campaign for the Quincy School

CHARLES J. PHELAN, Jr.

Committee.

"Having lived in Ward 5 all my life, I am very familiar with Wollaston's people, its neighborhoods, businesses, problems and needs, Phelan said.

"Today, in Wollaston and the city of Quincy as a whole, we are at a crossroads in terms of where we are going with property development, with education, and in our commitment to remain a city of neighborhoods and a city of families.

"I am concerned that real estate development has gone largely unrestrained for many years, and I support ongoing efforts to reduce population density, traffic problems and increased burdens on our sewerage system.

"While it is important that the city continue to prosper, and that the tax base continue to expand, we must never forget that the future of the city of Quincy depends, not primarily upon the development of residential and office condominiums, but upon our ability to attract people to live here and to raise families here.

"Of course, the attractiveness of living in any city or town depends in large part on the image of the public school system. I believe that the city needs to make a greater financial commitment to our schools, which are an essential ingredient of a prosperous city, and to our school children, who deserve the very best we can give them.

"Finally, I believe we need to continue to provide for the needs of our senior citizens, who comprise an important and substantial segment of our city, particularly in the Wollaston area. We need to continue to step up efforts to maintain security, safety, and to respond to the other needs of our elderly population.

"I am confident that as Ward 5 Councillor I would prove to be a strong, effective voice for Wollaston, and I look forward to meeting all the people of Ward 5 during the coming months prior to election day," Phelan said.

A fund raiser dance-rally will be held Friday evening, May 1, at the Knights of Columbus Hall, North Quincy.

Joyce Baker Bows Out As Ward 5 Candidate

Joyce I. Baker, a potential candidate for the Ward 5 City Council Seat has decided not to be a candidate.

She said she spent considerable time and thought before arriving at the decision.

"Everyone should be involved in the political process and running for office and serving a constituency is the ultimate goal for this involvement," she said.

However, due to the other areas of involvement, Historic District Commission; president of DOVE; member Quincy Historical Society; Board of Managers, Woodward School; WGBH Community Advisory Board; and co-chairman of Quincy's Centennial Committee, she said she could not give the extensive time commitment required for city councillors, especially ward councillors.

Her decision not to be a candidate was reached with regret, she said.

She thanked those who were willing to support her candidacy.

She said she will remain actively involved, not only in ward matters but in city matters as well.

Sylvia Optimistic Quincy Has Veteran Nucleus

By TOM SULLIVAN
A year ago the Quincy baseball team missed by one win of qualifying for the Eastern Mass. tournament and would have made the post-season event if it hadn't been forced to forfeit an opening day victory because of an ineligible player.
Coach Bob Sylvia has a fine nucleus of veterans this season and he feels, if the pitching holds up, the Presidents can make another run at making the tournament.
"I think a lot will have to do with how strong Brockton and Waltham are," said Sylvia. "They are perennial Suburban League powers and I don't know how much they lost from last year."
"I think it will be a real dogfight in the league and I think we can be in the thick of it, especially if the pitching comes through."

Heading the pitchers are two veterans, T.J. Steen, a southpaw who came along well last season, and Dan Oerby, a righthander who should have an excellent season.
Behind them are lefty Jim Dennis and Tom Logan, the regular first baseman; Larry Begueri and Wayne Chambers, who will be a starting outfielder.
"This is a promising staff and I feel they should do all right," said Sylvia.
Catching presents a question mark with Scott Logan, Bob Buttomer and sophomore Brian Taylor. All are inexperienced, but show promise.

Logan is all set at first base and Sylvia feels he is one of the best in the league. "He was one of the league's outstanding hitters last season and does a fine job at first base. I don't think there is a better first baseman in the league," the coach said.
Joe Inello, Greg Chambers and Nick Dragone are battling for the second base job.
"I think we have one of the finest shortstops in the league in Dan Biagini," Sylvia continued. "He can hit and can field with the best of them."
Third base is another question mark with Steve

Austin, a catcher last season, and Sean Thompson vying for the spot.
Sylvia has two fine veteran outfielders, Ed Flavin and Jay Lespasio, who are sure starters, and Wayne Chambers looks like the starter in right field. Steen, Ogilvie and Dragone will also see service in the outfield.
Sylvia has Bob Troup and George Peachey back as his assistant coaches.
The Presidents will open Tuesday against Weymouth North at Adams Field and will play at Weymouth South next Thursday. The first Suburban League game will be Monday, April 27, against North Quincy at Adams Field.

P.J. HUSSEY, a freshman from Quincy, recently was awarded a football letter at Norwich University. He is a graduate of Boston College High, where he played both football and hockey. He is the son of Paul and Regina Hussey.

Donovan's Hopes High

North Pitching Staff Strong

North Quincy's second-year baseball coach Ico Donovan hopes to improve considerably upon last year's 3-17 record and thinks he has the players to do so.
Although the Raiders had the same record as the previous season, they were in many of the games last year, while the 1985 team was blown out of many games, some players quit the squad and the Raiders even had to forfeit one game.
"We were competitive last year and we lost some tough games," said Donovan. "This year we have several veterans and some promising junior varsity graduates and I think we should fare much better. We are in an awfully tough league (Suburban), but I think we should give a decent account of ourselves."

Donovan is pleased with the pitching outlook. Heading the staff is veteran Dan Santry, who is backed up by Mark DiMattio, who saw some varsity action and should have a good season, and southpaws Billy McDougall, from whom the coach expects big things, and Jim Gordon.
Joe Boti, up from the jayvees, and a promising freshman, Jeff Calvert, who will see lots of action, are the Raider catchers.
DiMattio and Billy Murphy will share the first base duties.
At second base Steve

Happas, the team's peppercot, is back. "He will be our leadoff batter and I expect him to reach base a lot," Donovan said.
Another veteran, Neil Hatfield, will hold down the shortstop slot and Donovan expects a good year from him.
Santry and Murphy will split up the third base chores.
Veteran Peter Tufts is back in the outfield and also playing in the outfield will be McDougall, Steve Habbs, Jack Mullen and Martin Feeney.
Other infield hopefuls are Joe Hannon, Paul Adams and Billy Wysocki.
Donovan has Dave Perdios back as his assistant coach.
The Raiders will open

Monday against Weymouth South at Adams Field. They will be at Weymouth North next Thursday. The first Suburban League game will be Monday, April 27, against Quincy at Adams Field.

Mite A's Win GBL Title

Quincy's Mite A team, sponsored by DAV #79 and coached by Don Donahue and Jack Smith, won two 'must' games during the past week to win the Greater Boston League championship.
After defeating Triboro for the first time this year, 4-2, to qualify for the championship game, the Mite A's defeated Medfield by the same score Sunday for the title.
In the championship victory goalie Mark Smith was outstanding and was given excellent support by his defensemen, Danny Donahue, Danny Stone, Jason Fennelly and Tommy Moriarty.
The forwards, Steven Barrett, Mark Regan, John Healy, Matt Logan, Jamie

Murphy, Paul Princiotto, David Rowell, Chris Grant, Brendan O'Brien and Ronnie McGann had control of the offense.
O'Brien scored two goals and Regan and McGann one each, while O'Brien had an assist.
Hughes made only his second appearance in goal against Triboro and did an excellent job. His defense continually turned back the Triboro attack.
"The defense was the difference in the Medfield game," said coach Donahue. "The defensemen successfully contained the Medfield rush."

Beechwood Defeats Point For Jamboree Title

Over 100 boys and girls from eight different recreation centers took part in the annual Quincy Recreation Elementary Basketball Clinic Jamboree.

The morning of basketball included a clinic by the head coach of men's basketball at Curry College, Brian Buckley, and 11 mini-games in round-robin fashion.

For the second straight year, Beechwood Knoll captured the Jamboree Trophy going undefeated in four games.

Point Webster was runner-up, dropping a 9-4 loss to Beechwood in the championship game.

Teams were comprised of participants in the 25 week afterschool and Saturday recreation programs sponsored at neighborhood locations. They are in grades 3, 4, and 5.

The jamboree is held annually at the close of the winter season. Teams are coached by recreation leaders from each location.

In first round action, Merrymount jumped to an early lead and defeated Squantum 20-4. Merrymount's Greg Shea had eight points while Chris Swanton had six. Joe Manton had four first half points and Anthony Licata had two, to round out the scoring.

Despite the fine play of Chris Klier and Scott Starsvik, Squantum could only manage two points, each from Craig Pinkham and Kevin Nickerson.

Beechwood opened defense of its championship with a 22-0 win over Snug Harbor. Bobby Johnson got Beechwood off to a fast start with six of his eight points in the first half. Neil Hutchinson chipped in with four of his six while Tony Liccardi and Matt Beston each had two for a 14-0 lead.

Steve Koch led off the second half scoring with his field goal, and Mike Koski also had two points. For Snug Mike Gomez rounded out the scoring with two. For Point-Webster Walter Spadorcia and Keith Martinson each had four, and Jeff Russell had two.

Tournament host Atlantic found home court to its liking, defeating Montclair, 18-0. Atlantic showed great balance as six different players scored. Eric Zimmerman, Shawn Erler, and Steve Kuntz each had four points, while Steve Manning, Martin Shields and Paul King had two each. Montclair's George Wirtz, Chris Libo, and Kevin O'Malley all played well for Montclair.

Montclair's cold shooting continued in its second game as it could only muster three points and fell to Point, 17-3. Andy Schwendenman had two points and Mark Trabuco made a free throw. Brian Rowley, Steve McDougall, Tung Waichly and Gerald Bacallao played well for the Tom McDonald coached team.

Point coach Janice Sullivan saw five different scorers as Russell had six, David Gunter two, Jonathan Gangi three, Jim Smith two and Martinson four.

Three players scored one basket each for Ted Stevenson's Squantum team in a 6-4 win over Snug Harbor in a hotly contested defensive battle. Jennifer Doherty's second half basket proved to be the game winner, while Bobby Verney and Pinkham had the first half points. Noreen Connolly the Snug Harbor coach got two points from Tamika James, and Eric Kenney while Ming Tung, Peter Orseno and Kerri Dillon played well.

Atherton Hough coach Cindy Morrell and Atlantic coach George Dunn saw their teams catch fire in a high scoring 14-11 Atherton win. King with four points, was tops for Atlantic with Billy Manning, Steve Manning and Shields each with two while Erler had one free throw. White had eight, Gomez four, and Richie Howard two for Atherton while Keith Nichols excelled defensively.

Merrymount coach John Murphy had his team ready for the upset as Beechwood took a slim 8-6 half time lead before winning 13-6. Beechwood's Liccardi led all scorers with nine points. Johnson chipped in the other four. Mike Santoro, Danny Duncan, and Tom Mead all keyed a second half defense that stopped Merrymount cold. Swanton and Shea once again had two for Merrymount while Jay Verlicco also had one basket. Mike Dutton, Kathy O'Brien and Jeff Keddy showed strong defensive skills and great full court pressure for both halves.

Beechwood coach Rick Radzik's team continued its winning ways with a 15-6 victory over Atherton Hough. Liccardi with six points was tops. Beston had two, Hutchinson two, Koski two, and Santoro one.

Duncan had one free throw. Sean Johnson was top rebounder and Andrew Joyce made excellent passes on the offensive end of the floor. Atherton got two points each from Gomez, McPartlin, and Jamie Galligan. Doug Nolan led the team with assists. Jim Menz and Peter Penwarden were cited for their work on the boards.

Point put on an unbelievable scoring display, scoring 28 points to defeat Squantum 28-9. Gunther, Russell and Smith each had six, Spadorcia and Gangi four, and Martinson two. Todd Sullivan and Matt Gogeun led the team in assists. Verney and Pinkham each chipped in four while Jason Silverman had two for Squantum. Matt Flaherty and Ernie Conti contributed key steals and John McCarthy was top rebounder.

In the championship game, Liccardi continued to be the Beechwood top scorer this time with all five first half points. Joyce and Beston had one basket each in the second half to seal the Beechwood win.

Rod Campbell was outstanding on defense which held Point scoreless for the second half. Russell and Smith each had two and Spadorcia one free throw. Mike Sarno was the leading rebounder and David Presente had a fine defensive game.

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch and Park Recreation Board member J. Thomas Mullaney presented ribbons to members of both finalist teams, and the championship trophy to the Beechwood Knoll team.

EXTRA! Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

RETREAD OR NEW? CAN YOU TELL THE DIFFERENCE?

Ⓜ Retread or new? It's hard to tell any more. Retreaded or remanufactured tires not only look like the most expensive new tires, they offer the same safety and handling features at a far lower cost.

A quality retread offers the motorist a much better value than a comparable new tire, according to the Tire Retread Information Bureau.

Retreaded tires are used by school buses, ambulances, trucking fleets and all major airlines.

For a free booklet about what to look for when buying a retreaded tire, write to the Tire Retread Information Bureau, 621 Forest Avenue, Suite 4CC, Pacific Grove, CA 93950.

A tip-off that you may need brake service is when you feel the pedal pulsating or moving up and down under your foot. Instead of smooth, even braking, your car will shudder to a stop.

While this condition may be due to loose wheel bearings or brake parts, the most common cause is warped brake rotors or drums that are out of round. Assuming the drums or rotors are still safe for further use, the problem usually is easily corrected.

The accepted cure, generally, is to have a brake service shop remove the distortion by machining the parts on a brake lathe.

If the condition has gone on too long, however, you may need new parts — a case for taking corrective measures as soon as the condition becomes apparent.

What causes warping of drums or rotors? Heat is the most common cause, says Car Care Council. Extended periods of heavy braking, such as might be encountered on a long down grade with a travel trailer in tow, can cause extremely high brake temperatures. This heat, in addition to damaging brake shoes and/or pads, can distort drums and rotors.

Motorists should make note of changes in braking action and, as soon as possible after abnormalities are noticed, have a qualified technician inspect the system, says the Council.

When the brakes are serviced, be sure to inspect pads and linings and replace as needed. Have wheel bearings repacked. It's a convenient time to have this work done and, if an overheating condition had existed, the bearings may require repacking with fresh grease.

For an informative pamphlet on "How to Keep Your Brakes From Letting You Down," send 25¢ and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: BRAKES, Car Care Council, 600 Renaissance Center, Detroit, MI 48243.

Are your brakes shuddering? It's wise to get them checked as soon as possible

Protect car with transmission check

Three people out of four pump their own gas. That's the good news for dollar-conscious motorists. The bad news is that most people are negligent about checking their cars, according to Car Care Council.

Among the most neglected under-the-hood checks is the automatic transmission fluid. It should be looked at every month or two, and even more often when the car is subjected to "severe service" driving, which is defined in car owners' manuals.

The procedure for checking the automatic transmission is simple, says the Council. Be sure the engine and transmission are at normal operating temperature. Generally this would be after about 15 or 20 minutes of driving.

Park the car on level ground and apply the parking brake, and/or block the wheels. Move the shift lever through all positions and back to Park or Neutral, depending upon the make of the car (again, refer to the owner's manual).

Then with the engine idling, remove the dip stick, wipe it off, and reinsert it all the way. Remove it again and note the fluid level with relationship to the "ADD" or "FULL" marks.

Add fluid if needed, but do not over-fill. Excessive fluid can cause fluid loss or erratic shifting.

Be sure to add fluid of the correct type for your particular car. Check the label on the can for this information.

The fluid should be red, not brown or burned in appearance. If it has lost its clear, red appearance and/or if it has a burned odor, then it should be drained and replaced, and a new filter installed.

Consider, too, installation of an auxiliary transmission cooler to prevent further overheating.

Old, Rare Books, Topic At Historical Society April 9

There are treasures in your attic, such as old and rare books said Kenneth Gloss, proprietor of the Brattle Book Shop in Boston, who will lecture that subject at a meeting April 9, at 1:30 p.m., of the Quincy Historical Society.

"New England homes are treasure troves for old and rare books that have increased in value over the years," said Gloss, "and we're inviting the public to bring any volumes they want to know about to the lecture for a free appraisal."

Gloss will bring several examples of interesting books, magazines and ephemera from the store's private collection, such as a 1912 World Series scorecard and a copy of Life Magazine from the 1940's that has the Quincy Quarry on the cover. Gloss also owns the entire set of Life Magazines that has been published throughout its 50 year history.

"Quincy has such a wonderful role in our American history," says Gloss, "that I'm sure people have many questions about books and papers dealing with our early Presidents and other aspects of the city's history."

Following the lecture and question-and-answer session, Gloss will give free appraisals of those books and items that people bring with them or will do so at anytime at his West St. nationally-known emporium in Boston.

The Brattle Book Shop is the successor to America's oldest continuously operating antiquarian book store. Gloss succeeded his late father, George Gloss, a well-known figure both in Boston and in national antiquarian circles.

WEEK OF: April 2

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Leadership and a pioneering spirit characterize your personality. These rare skills lead to your making significant inroads in spheres of career and community activity - but in both areas, greater flexibility is critical. Travel to new destinations is highlighted over the coming 8 - 10 months.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Mutual respect continues to grow through this romance-oriented period. Leftover assignment can be swiftly and effectively completed. Financial discussions dominate time after the weekend.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

News from former employer or coworker reactivates interest in near-forgotten project. Romance prospects brighten thanks to partner's willingness to see your point of view. Legal matter demands research.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Travel options open up in a week that favors mobility and education. Friend seems to make a point of trying your patience. Home-related tasks require special attention to details.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Be sensitive if pointing out errors of others. Sense of perspective is all-important - don't blow minor infractions out of proportion. Loved one's sense of humor finally improves.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Tend to bits of household business before tackling large-scale project. Financial review requires prompt attention. Make sure loved ones look after their health - yours is a largely supportive role.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Short-cuts may prove time consuming in the long run. News from traveling friends prompts your own desire to take a trip. Volunteer assignment may lead to recognition.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Business and travel mix well. Home projects require an investment of time that should be considered before you begin work. Courses are highlighted. In romance, avoid forcing the issue.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Casual offering of help may lead to a major project that you didn't really bargain for. Check mail especially carefully - not only for what you receive, but for what you don't.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Offbeat invitation may arrive - think twice before declining. Week is favorable for launching a serious budget - not always easy for Libra. Bright ideas are winning admirers.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Mysterious Scorpio becomes more revealing thanks to a persuasive friend. You receive advance notice of an upcoming celebration. Scientific projects capture your fancy, but keep an eye on the budget.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Good week for developing a commonsense fitness program - perhaps one that you share with a favorite friend. Relative may be surprisingly tough but your sense of fairness saves the day.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

Week finds you in a playful mood, but be sure to respond seriously to new responsibilities in community or at workplace. Loved on respects your ability to review situations objectively.

Harold To Host High School Seniors At State House

Nine area high school seniors will have a chance to view state government first hand this week during Senator Paul D. Harold's eighth annual Palmer Institute to be held at the State House.

The Institute, named for Joseph Palmer, the first state senator from the Norfolk District will include seminars for the students on government, legislation, the legislative process, the role of the news media, the job of a lobbyist, and meetings with various state officials. The students will attend public hearings and sit in on sessions of both the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The in-depth program will also include a meeting with Governor Michael S. Dukakis.

Harold said, "The program is intended to provide the young people with an opportunity to learn first-hand about the political process and also to advance their awareness of government."

The students were selected for the program by their teachers based on the student's interest in government. The three-day seminar is under the direction of Ann M. Knafely, administrative aide to Senator Harold.

Quincy students participating will be: Lisa Olson, Quincy Vocational Technical School; Sarah Lemos, Quincy High School; Jennifer Shores, North Quincy High School and Debbie Vacca, Woodward School.

Nelson Yee Reports On Cancer Research

Nelson Yee of Quincy reported on the results of his 10-week internship in a cancer research laboratory at a recent reception of the American Cancer Society's Alvan and Viola Fuller Research Fellows in Boston.

Yes, one of six Fuller Fellows at the reception, performed research on a drug that may eventually be used to treat cancer, particularly leukemia.

As a Fuller Fellow, Yee, a student at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Professions in Boston, received a $1,500 grant from the cancer society's Massachusetts Division to enable him to gain cancer research experience.

He was joined at the reception by his sponsor Dr. Donald Kufe of the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, and Raymond Welsh, Ph.D., chairman of the society's state medical research committee.

This state division supported nine outstanding undergraduates with Fuller Fellowships in 1986, encouraging them to enter careers in cancer research.

McCauley Sends $96 M Budget To City Council

Mayor Francis X. McCauley submitted a record $96 million budget to the City Council Tuesday which includes increases of over $1 million each in the education and refuse disposal budgets.

"I am pleased to submit the fiscal year 1988 budget for the City of Quincy in the amount of $96,143,060," McCauley said.

"The budget reflects an increase of $2,818,220 or 3 per cent over fiscal year 1987 expenditures to date.

"I believe the amount funded for the various city departments will allow our city government to provide an acceptable level of city services in fiscal year 1988," the mayor said.

"The city has so far exceeded the current budget by $1,376,595 which actually makes the new budget $4.2 million higher than the original fiscal year 1987 budget.

The budget will go to the Finance Committee for possible pruning.

Councillor Joseph LaRaia said the council is "going to have to spend time reviewing the budget.

"It's alarming - the size of it, when you consider that Quincy City Hospital and Quincy Junior College are no longer included in it," LaRaia said.

Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon asked the mayor if he is "tipping his hand" by appropriating $1.2 million for refuse disposal.

Lydon was referring to the city's dispute with the state DEQE over the extension of the city landfill.

"I will not support trucking garbage out of town and supporting a $1.2 million increase for services we may or may not need," Lydon said.

"I'm not crazy about it either," McCauley said. "We are working hard to avoid it."

McCauley said more information will be available to himself and the council in the coming weeks on the matter.

$8.9M Contract

Police Station Project Starts Next Month

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The city Tuesday signed an $8.9 million contract for the renovation and reconstruction of the Quincy police station.

Site preparation is expected to start in early May with full construction underway near the end of that month.

Completion target is the fall of 1989.

The contract was signed by Mayor Francis McCauley Tuesday quickly following City Council approval Monday night of the $8.9 million loan order.

The contract was awarded to R.W. Granger & Sons of Shrewsbury, low bidder.

McCauley compared the project to the North Quincy High School addition being constructed first and used and then the old building gutted and remodeled.

DPW Deputy Commissioner David Colton said representatives of the Police and Public Works Departments, architects and contractor will meet at the end of this month to finalize the plans.

The City Council paved the way for the contract signing Monday by approving the bond order.

Councillor Richard Koch, Jr. supported passage of the bond issue despite some reservations about the cost and size of the project.

"I'm uncomfortable with how the plan was arrived at," Koch said.

He agreed, however, that it is necessary to establish a new facility.

"I'm running hot-cold on this but let's go forward with it," he said.

Councillor Patricia Toland also expressed reservations about the scope of the project but agreed that the renovations must take place.

The council voted 8-0 in favor of the bond. Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets was absent.

Koch said that if there are "empty rooms" in the new station the extra space could possibly be used to house Civil Defense and other municipal services that are currently cramped.

Public Works Commr. Paul Anderson told the council he would make the police station a top priority and would clear up the paperwork quickly so that work could start as soon as possible.

Public Hearing May 4 On Tax Percentages

A public hearing will be held May 4 on the question of the adoption of the percentages of the local tax levy to be borne by each class of real and personal property for fiscal year 1987.

Written comments may be submitted to the City Clerk at any time prior to 4:30 p.m. May 1, 1987.

City to Receive $153,956 More For 'Gloria' Damage

Mayor Francis McCauley announces that the city has received approval for its final payment request in the amount of $153,956 from the federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) for damages caused by Hurricane Gloria in 1985.

Hurricane Gloria hit the eastern seaboard in September, 1985, leaving behind substantial damage to the city. Damage was caused to city streets and sidewalks by driving rains, and trees uprooting.

The Adams baseball field and the Stoney Brae and O'Rourke playgrounds were damaged when falling trees hit park lights and bleachers and demolished a 44-foot chain link back stop. Also damaged was the Houghs Neck fire station hose tower.

Heading up the program as damage assessment officer for the City was Rich Meade, director of the Quincy Planning and Community Development Department.

Meade received cooperation from Anthony Siciliano, deputy director of Civil Defense; Richard Koch, director of the Quincy Park and Recreation Department; Paul Anderson, Public Works Commissioner; Robert Federico and James Gaudiano of the Public Works Department and Ray Cattaneo of the Park and Recreation Department.

Edward Lamphier was the Disaster Recovery Coordinator for the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency. The disaster recovery team carried out the preparation necessary for Federal and State inspection teams.

The total $462,017 grant from FEMA is for public assistance under the Federal Disaster Assistance Program as established by the Disaster Relief Act of 1974.

Curling Iron Blamed For $80,000 Houghs Neck Fire

A two-alarm blaze believed touched off by a curling iron accidentally left on a bed, caused an estimated $80,000 damage to a home at 85 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck Saturday.

Lawrence Callahan, his wife, Jane and son, Brian, 26, who were home when the blaze broke out, escaped injury.

Firefighter Charles Walters was taken to Quincy City Hospital for treatment of an eye irritation and released.

Fire Chief Carl Valentini said the fire apparently started after the Callahan's daughter, Kerry, forgot a curling iron she had left turned on her bed. She was at a friend's house when the fire broke out.

The fire was discovered in her second-floor bedroom by her brother, Brian, when he detected smoke around 2 p.m.

He alerted his parents who were on the first floor. Mrs.

Callahan attempted to extinguish the flames but was driven back by heavy smoke.

Two other sons, James, 20 and David, 22, were not at home at the time.

Fire Lt. Gary Stein ordered a second alarm when he found flames shooting from the windows of the second floor bedroom as he arrived at the scene.

The fire was confined mostly to the bedroom but the rest of the house was damaged by heavy smoke and water.

One pumper was disabled when part of its engine caught fire.

But Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson said it did not hamper the firefighting. He said water was being poured onto the blaze before the pumper was put out of service. There were seven pieces of apparatus at the scene.

Jackson credited quick work by firefighters with keeping the fire from spreading.

He said if flames had reached the rear of the house where a strong east wind was blowing in off the bay, the fire could have roared out of control.

The Callahans, who own the house, were put up by relatives.

Apartment Searched But:

'Nothing New' In Stabber Investigations

Quincy police detectives searched the New Bedford apartment of a suspect in the recent stabbings of four women but report no new developments in the case.

The apartment of William Marguety, 29, of New Bedford was searched last week said Quincy Police Capt. David Rowell who heads up the task force that is searching for the stabber.

He said several "items" were removed but declined to say what they were.

He said he did not know what effect they will have on the investigation and added: "There's nothing new at this time."

Rowell said a search warrant was issued in Norfolk County Superior Court and the affidavit requesting the warrant was sealed.

Marguety is being held in Boston in connection with the stabbing murder of a 29-year-old Rosindale woman in her apartment March 20.

Detectives are checking for a possible link to four stabbings on women in Quincy and Milton last December and January. No deaths were involved.

Marguety, who police say came to the United States from Cuba in 1980, is also under investigation in connection with the fatal stabbing of a woman whose body was found in New Bedford Feb. 9.

Marguety reportedly worked at a Quincy diner at the time of the Quincy and Milton stabbings.

McGrath Announces For City Councillor At-Large

City Council President Stephen J. McGrath formally announced his candidacy for City Councillor-at-large at a campaign party Wednesday night at the Morrisette Legion Post in West Quincy.

The Ward 5 councillor emphasized his 10 years-experience on the council and talked about his views on the issues facing Quincy in the future.

McGrath, who as Council President appointed the Zoning Task Force, noted that the recommendations of the Task Force would set the agenda for the future of the city's development.

STEPHEN J. McGRATH

the Board of Licensing Commissioners, two very important city boards which deal with neighborhood issues.

"In addition, I was successful in bringing the Community Development Block Grant Program to Wollaston, and through this program, a Housing Rehabilitation Program was established and numerous public works improvements have been made.

"Citizens groups were established to deal with neighborhood issues such as monitoring the development of the former Massachusetts Fields School and finding a proper use for the Beechwood Knoll School which resulted in the successful Beechwood Knoll Community Life Center."

A Boston College and Suffolk Law School graduate, the 33-year old attorney has represented Ward 5 in the Council since 1978. This is his second year as Council President. McGrath has also served as chairman of the council's three leading committees: Finance, Ordinance and Public Safety.

"I look forward to the campaign and to a serious discussion of the issues facing our city," McGrath said.

"This was the first substantive attempt to control overdevelopment in our city," noted McGrath.

"In addition, I have called for the immediate hiring of a Traffic Engineer to begin to deal right now with the problems of traffic congestion."

McGrath said that one of his previous achievements in his current Council term has been the reopening of the Wollaston School, which is scheduled for September.

"I feel that education will be a major issue in this campaign. I am proud of my role in the reopening of the Wollaston School and my appointment of the first Committee on Education in the City Council."

McGrath said his experience as a ward councillor would be helpful in his role as an effective Councillor-at-Large.

"I know the nuts and bolts of City Government—having served as a Ward Councillor.

"I have had experience serving my area before the Zoning Board of Appeals and

North Quincy Tow-Zone Proposed

The City License Board Tuesday said it will recommend to the Traffic Commissioner that a tow-zone be established between East Squantum St. and Hodges Ave. in North Quincy.

This came after Councillor Richard Koch Jr. complained that vehicles from Foley Bros. Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc., 330 Hancock St., are parking on the street and blocking traffic.

Owner William Foley said that the fault is partly due to his employees and partly to MBTA commuters. He said that he has no complaints about establishing a tow-zone there.

The board stipulated that Foley notify his employees that they cannot park in those areas, and also stated that, in the future, snow plows must keep the area sidewalks clear while plowing the parking lot.

Pub Gets 3 Months Probation On After Hours Complaint

By JANE ARENA

The City License Board Tuesday placed Delaney's Pub, 35-37-39 Franklin St., on three months probation after receiving a police report stating that there were customers drinking in the bar after closing hours on the night of March 16.

Officer Jeffrey Burrell reported he and another officer were called to the bar at approximately 1:30 a.m. because of a fight outside. At this time there were still people coming out of the bar, he said.

Once the fight had been broken, Officer Burrell went inside to find customers sitting at the bar with partially full beers in front of them. There were other beers on the counter and the bartender also appeared to be drinking, the report said. No one should have been drinking and no patrons should have been inside the bar after 1 a.m., according to the report.

Owner Maurice Foley told the board that the customers in question had come into the bar at 1:15 a.m. as other people were leaving. He said that they were not served drinks but were waiting inside the bar for the fight to break up outside. The bartender is allowed one drink, Foley said, but the board stated that he cannot drink after hours.

No one was arrested at the incident but the board said that if any trouble is reported at the pub during the three month probation period the bar would be closed for another period of time.

The board also stipulated that the bar's last call should be at 12:30 a.m. at which time the doors should be locked.

Lynch Reappointed

The city council approved the re-appointment of Barbara Lynch to the Industrial Development Finance Authority.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney described her as "very professional and very enthusiastic."

Councillor Patricia Toland noted that she has "an excellent background."

She will serve a term of five years which will expire March 31, 1992.

Readers Forum A Vote For George Zeiba

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Quincy annually has a Citizen of the Year Award or some such designation of someone whose public service entitles them to such consideration.

I've thought many times that the gentleman who operates the Bookmobile for the Public Library system, George Zeiba, is a more than worthy candidate for this type of award.

George is a perfect example of a person who does a great job for all of us in Quincy. He has a very helpful attitude, unfailing courtesy and makes a visit to the Bookmobile a pleasure. He learns people's preferences in reading and never fails to bring a new book by a favorite author to your attention.

Neither weather, people nor precarious parking conditions dampen his good humor.

We need more George Zeiba's but thank goodness we have the original.

During my stay I was treated with great care. And I wish to thank all the wonderful nurses both in I.C.U. and in Ward M. 1.

It is nice to know that when you are sick these wonderful ladies will look after you. I say God Bless them all.

Big Change In City Council

Regardless of the campaign oratory, the number of candidates and their vote totals, there is one thing sure in this year's city election:

Quincy will get at least three new faces in the City Council - one of the biggest turnovers there in recent years.

Two of the newcomers, of course, will fill at-large seats being vacated by Joseph LaRaia to run for mayor and Richard Koch, Jr. who is retiring.

The third will be Ward 5's first new councillor in 10 years, succeeding Stephen McGrath who is giving up the seat to run at-large.

In a nine member body, the three new faces will comprise 33 1/3 percent of next year's City Council.

And, some observers think there could be a fourth new face. And maybe - just maybe - a fifth.

WELL, GOOD OLD Chestnut St. in downtown Quincy is turning into Nut St. again -- on Saturdays. Cars are parked on both sides between and under signs warning "No Parking Anytime."

It narrows the street, congests traffic and would make it difficult for a large piece of Fire Department equipment to squeeze by.

We still wonder though, why parking isn't allowed on one side of the street.

And why didn't the city narrow the wide sidewalk on the east side of the street when it was doing work there a couple of years ago?

It would have made parking on one side of Chestnut St. a natural.

WHILE WE ARE on Chestnut St., the Hancock Parking lot across from Quincy District Court certainly is having its troubles.

The mechanism controlling the entrance and exit gates have been fouled up for weeks. A common sight is a yellow barrel placed in front of a gate which we have come to know means: "You can't come in this one -- try another one."

For monthly validated card holders it's an extra annoyance. The idea was to make it convenient by inserting the card coming in and going out. Insert the card, and presto, up goes the gate arm.

But, the presto isn't there. The gate arm doesn't budge. So, you have to stop at the booth, show the card, and give the number to the attendant.

Then he (she) presses a button to let you out.

Part of the problem is frequent vandalism. But, did we get the right mechanism in the first place?

Validated parking has its good points but right now, the equipment isn't one of them.

JOE STREADWICK, former Olympic wrestler who has coached wrestling at the Quincy Y for 55 years and has been an assistant coach at Quincy High for a dozen years, is a patient at the Mass. General Hospital and would appreciate cards from friends. They can be sent to P. Joseph Streadwick, Mass. General Hospital, 55 Fruit Street, Boston.

DON'T KNOW ABOUT you, but we get a little nervous at the supermarket checkout counter when the clerk zapping the order through is suddenly joined by another employee who gets him (her) into a conversation about last night's date, or tonight's date, or "Whatta ya think about Roger Clemens coming back?"

You wonder if the can of beans or tuna fish got zapped twice instead of once.

And then there's the bagger who gets distracted in a conversation and puts the heavy stuff on top of the bread, eggs or light bulbs.

Oh, well.

Council Reaffirms Opposition To Rail Line

City Councillors said Monday that they would continue to oppose construction of a commuter rail line through Quincy.

Council President Stephen McGrath said the commuter line would "do serious damage to Quincy."

McGrath was responding to a statement by state Secretary of Transportation Fred Salvucci which said that, with funding for a depressed Central Artery and a third harbor tunnel now settled, the restoration of commuter rail service on the South Shore is a priority.

McGrath, Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley and Councillor Patricia Toland, who represents the city on the advisory board of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, all agreed that the noise and fumes created by the commuter rail would have a "detrimental effect on our environment."

The Council had similar objections last summer when the state last talked about reconstructing the Old Colony rail line. At that time city officials said that they might go along with the proposal only if the restored commuter rail line stopped in Braintree. Commuters would then board a Red Line train that would make one stop in Quincy before going to South Station.

The MBTA rejected that idea in October saying that funding would be lost if the rail line ended in Braintree instead of going through Quincy and on to South Station in Boston.

City officials could appeal to state officials or block a bond issue in the legislature to stop the commuter rail line. They might also use the findings of environmental studies as a basis for a lawsuit to stop the commuter rail project.

McGrath said that it is unlikely that the city and the MBTA will negotiate on the matter.

State officials estimated that it would cost $200 million to restore service on the Old Colony to Middleboro.

Plymouth and Scituate Passengers have not traveled on the line since 1959.

New School Superintendent Could Be Named In May

By STEVE KAVANAGH

A new superintendent of schools may be selected as early as May 31.

William MacDonald, a consultant to the city for the recruitment of a new superintendent, outlined the selection process for the City Council's Education Committee Monday night.

MacDonald received input from the councillors concerning the search process.

"We want the best," Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon said. Lydon asked MacDonald what factors get the most weight in nominating candidates for the position.

"The quality of the interview, the quality of credentials, and what we hear about the candidate when we go into their community is most important," MacDonald said.

A candidate's career history is also a major consideration, MacDonald said.

The search committee, the Lesley College Consultant Service, will eventually present four to six candidates to the School Committee for in-depth interviews.

These interviews are tentatively scheduled for April 30, MacDonald said.

At that point, the school committee may interview any or all of the candidates further. The field can be narrowed or, if the school committee desires, a candidate may be chosen.

The school committee could also decide that none of the candidates are appropriate for the job, MacDonald said.

MacDonald told the council that although the hunt has been tabbed "a nationwide search" the consultants are concentrating on New England, although candidates have responded from all over the country.

Lydon and Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney asked MacDonald about consideration of minority candidates and whether the search conformed with Affirmative Action regulations.

MacDonald said that the best candidates would be recommended regardless of race, color, sex or religion.

Councillor Patricia Toland, chairman of the Education Committee, inquired about in-house candidates.

"We certainly appreciate the talent we have in the Quincy school system and would have no problem with an in-house candidate being recommended for the job by the search committee," Toland said.

MacDonald said in-house candidates who meet the criteria will automatically be interviewed. So far just one candidate from within the Quincy school system has applied.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley questioned the salary range the search committee is advertising.

Nutley said that a salary of the mid $60,000s to the low $70,000s is high compared to other cities and towns.

PLANS FOR NEW CITY HALL UNVEILED

A solution to the problem of a new City Hall was unveiled. It was proposed that the new building be erected as part of a national shrine for John and John Quincy Adams. In that way, it was thought that the federal and state governments would help pay for the cost of construction.

The plans called for the city hall to be built on the edge of the square, on Washington St. between Coddington St. and Faxon Ave., noting that the area "was not occupied by building of great value or significance."

The design was Georgian Colonial with a steeple similar to that of Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The design also showed a memorial wing, with a civic auditorium.

Emergency Reserve Fund Draws Council Criticism

A request by Mayor Francis X. McCauley to appropriate $610,000 for an emergency reserve fund was referred to the Finance Committee following a heated discussion at the City Council meeting Tuesday.

Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon was against passage of the order as it was presented. Lydon asked the council to put conditions on how the money can be spent.

Councillor Joseph LaRaia agreed with Lydon.

"$610,000 is a blank check. Would you give a blank check to someone for $610,000?" he asked.

LaRaia criticized the mayor's budget process.

LaRaia said that the city's department heads should allocate the proper amount of money for their budgets and not rely on extra money from such an emergency fund.

Councillor Patricia Toland said, "We would be asking our constituents to pay taxes and at this point we really don't know what for."

Auditor Robert E. Foy, III, explained to the council that any appropriations that the mayor could make from the reserve fund would have to be approved by the city council anyway.

Firefighter Vacancies To Be Filled In June

The city has received the Civil Service list from which seven Fire Department firefighters will be selected.

The vacancies are due to retirements and are expected to be filled by appointments June 20, Mayor Francis McCauley said.

Five applicants scored 100 per cent in the civil service examination, seven 99 per cent and 34 98 per cent. The list contains the names of 13 veterans.

All applicants are Quincy residents.

Those applicants, out of the 590 25, who indicate a willingness to accept the position of firefighter, will undergo extensive background investigations, followed by extensive physical and psychological testing before the appointments will be made.

If more applicants are needed, those with the mark of 98 per cent will be notified to report for testing.

The background checks are expected to be completed by May 8. The appointments will be made following the physical and psychological exams.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Your Home: As Safe As You Think?

Traditionally, most of us have regarded our home as a castle, a refuge and a place safe from the intrusions of crime in the streets.

But your home may not be as safe as you think. Residential burglary is a real and present danger.

You may not recognize the typical burglar. He's often one of the neighborhood kids, a young male who usually lives within a mile or two of his targets, but not always. He is usually an opportunist—and an amateur—but that doesn't mean he can't find his way into your home.

He selects homes he can enter quickly and quietly, and exit with a minimum risk of detection. And he can find those homes easily:

- In a recent year more than 6.5 million burglaries are estimated to have occurred. This is the equivalent of one out of every 12 households.

- 720 burglaries occurred every hour—one every five seconds.

- One recent national study disclosed that reported losses amount to over 1.5 billion dollars a year—an average of $526 per burglary.

Reported burglaries increased by 43 percent during a recent eight-year span. The trend is the same in big cities, suburbs and rural areas—sharply up. From all indications, the problem will continue unless you take action. You can be the single most important deterrent to residential burglary.

Solemn Blessing and procession of palms will take place at the 9:30 a.m. Mass on Sunday.

During the days of Holy Week daily Masses will be on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 a.m., 12:10 p.m. and 5:30 p.m.

'Trusting God' Palm Sunday Topic At Wollaston Congregational

Rev. Eldon D.J. Zuern will preach on "Trusting God To Be Honest" at the Palm Sunday 10 a.m. service Sunday at Wollaston Congregational Church. The choir under the direction of the organist-choir master, Donald Reade will sing the anthem, "Lift Up Your Heads, Oh Ye Gates" from the Messiah by Handel and "The Holy City" by Adams.

Palms crosses will be given out to the congregation, a gift from Rev. and Mrs. Zuern. The crosses were made in Tanzania. The sale of these crosses provide earnings to villagers, educational and health programs and needs of the refugees.

Greeters will be Frances Barlow and Irene Olson. Ushers will be Gus Oster and his son Erik Oster. Lay scripture reader will be Fran Martin. Acolyte will be Erik Schwendenman.

Church School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for preschool through grade 12. Immediately following the worship service a fellowship hour will be held.

The Youth Fellowship will meet in the social hall at 7:30 p.m. under the direction of Gus Oster.

'Jesus Is Lord' Bethany Palm Sunday Topic

The Palm Sunday worship service and celebration will take place in the sanctuary Sunday at 10 a.m.

The entire congregation will join in singing "The Palms" by Faure, as the processional hymn.

The worship service will be broadcast live directly from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 a.m. over the South Shore radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

The Chancel Choir under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will sing the anthem, "The 24th Psalm" by Lang, and as the offertory, "The King's Welcome" by Alfred Whitehead. The Cherub Choir will sing a selection by John Purifoy, "There's a Joy in Me."

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon titled, "Jesus Is Lord," based on scriptural texts in 1 Corinthians 12:1-3 and Philippians 2:5-11.

Rev. Mr. Arnold will also lead an action-scripture reading with the children, based on the Gospel of Mark 11:1-10.

The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as the liturgist. Margaret Fernald will read the two epistle lessons.

Palms in the chancel will be placed by the Bethany Churchwomen. At the opening of the service, small missionary palm crosses made by native Masasi Christians in Tanzania, Africa, will be given to all worshippers, the gift of Rev. and Mrs. Elden D.J. Zuern.

Children of the Sunday School will attend the first portion of the service in the sanctuary and then go to their classes from 10:30 to 11. Nursery care will be provided during the entire hour for babies and toddlers.

As a dramatic way of reliving the Palm Sunday experience when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a colt, the foal of a donkey, and was hailed as a king, alive colt will arrive at 11:15 a.m. as part of the festivities. Following the worship service the children will be able to ride the colt, with supervision, on the Spear St. lawn between the chapel and the sanctuary.

Long fresh palm slips will be distributed by youth of the church and persons will be able to wave the branches and join the Church School children in shouting "Hosanna."

The religious and educational aspect of this is to enable the participants to remember more vividly the details and meaning of the Palm Sunday events regarding Jesus and his disciples.

Also at 11:15 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor with light refreshments.

Individuals and families from the community are welcome to come and share in the worship, rides, and fellowship.

For additional information on any of Bethany's programs and ministries, contact the church office at 479-7300.

On Palm Sunday, the morning worship service starts at 10:45 a.m. Rev. Fred Lawson's sermon will be: "Blessed Is He Who Comes In The Name Of The Lord."

Squantum Pastor Reaffirms Opposition To Aid For Contras

The pastor of the First Church of Squantum reaffirmed his opposition Sunday to continued American support for the contras in Nicaragua.

A headline in The Quincy Sun last week incorrectly reported what he had said.

In a sermon entitled "Uneasy Lessons from the Moneychanger Incident," the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin had charged that atrocities were being committed in that part of Central America with American money. He cited recent stories in the Boston Globe and the Wall Street Journal as evidence for what he was saying.

The text for his talk was Jesus' remark, "Would that even today you knew the things that make for peace!" (Luke 19:42b)

The pastor also claimed that Christians across the country were beginning to take action to protest the present policy. Examples that he gave included the civil disobedience and arrest of the Rev. Dr. Avery Post in Washington, D.C., on Ash Wednesday. Dr. Post is the national president of the United Church of Christ. He and a number of leaders of other denominations were arrested in the rotunda of the Capitol building while participating in an ecumenical Lenten witness protesting the present American policies in Central America and particularly the continued American support for the contras.

Another example was the "Via Crucis 1987," a 14-day pilgrimage across the state of Massachusetts, designed to lift up the need for just peace in Central America. The group will gather in Pittsfield April 4 and begin walking the next day, arriving on the Boston Common the morning of Good Friday.

Later that day, in the same spirit, a group of persons from the Presbyterian, American Baptist, Quaker and United Church of Christ denominations will make a silent witness for peace and justice there on the Boston Common.

A fourth example of increased Christian activism in protest of such policies as support of the contras is the "Mobilization for Justice and Peace in Central America and South Africa" to be held Saturday, April 25, in Washington, D.C. Protesters from across the nation will travel to the capital to demonstrate against the present American foreign policy.

This past Sunday, members of the church gathered for an all-church breakfast followed by a twice-yearly Covenant service in which they participated in communion and renewed their commitment to Christ and the church.

Dr. Langevin preached a sermon entitled "The Basis of Our Fellowship" taking as his text these words of Jesus, "The cup that I drink you will drink; and with the baptism with which I am baptized, you will be baptized; but to sit at my right hand or at my left hand is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared." (Mark 10:39b, 40) The scripture readings for the morning were taken from Jeremiah 31 and Mark 10.

Seated with the pastor at the Lord's Table were Deacons Dana Olson, Gretchen Bumpus, Lew Townsend, Barbara Anderson and Stewart Scott.

The congregation sang "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," "Are Ye Able, Said the Master" and "How Firm a Foundation." The offertory anthem by the Chancel Choir was "Jesus, Priceless Treasure" sung to a traditional German melody as adapted by Johann Cruger.

Mary Ruth Scott directed. Greeters for the morning were Sue Adams and Edna Swanson, the ushers were Harry Holmes and Tore Wallin, and the Fellowship Hour was hosted by Drucilla Warnes and Allyson Barnum.

The Lenten series concluded Wednesday night, On April 8, the young people of the church sponsored a turkey dinner at 6 p.m. After the supper, everyone gathered upstairs for a videotaped presentation on the Last Supper of Christ.

The Board of Deacons will meet the second Monday of each month beginning April 13 at 7:30 p.m. The Board of Trustees meets the third Monday of each month. Their next meeting is April 20, at 7:30 p.m.

This Sunday is Palm Sunday. The young people of the church are sponsoring another all-church breakfast at 9:15 a.m. The menu is orange juice, scrambled eggs, ham, hash browns, muffins and a beverage. Members of the Crusader Choir, the Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir will be served at 9 a.m. so that they can be on time to their combined practice at 9:30 a.m.

Orange Crush and Seven Up will also meet together that night at 6 p.m. to rehearse their acts for the big Squantum musical coming up May 1 and 2.

On Maundy Thursday, April 16, the church will gather for a special observance of the Lord's Supper at 7:30 p.m. On Easter Sunday morning, members of the church and others will gather at Moswetsuett Hummock for a sunrise service at 7:30 a.m., after which everyone will return to the church for an informal Easter breakfast. The traditional Easter worship service with all the Easter flowers and the choirs will be held at 10:30 a.m. On the following Sunday, April 26, members of the Nickerson Post of the American Legion will visit to worship with the congregation at 10:30 a.m.

Middle East Events UN Council Topic

"Understanding The Contemporary Events In The Middle East" will be the subject at a meeting of the United Nations Council of the South Shore-Quincy tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m.

Correction

The headline on an article in last week's Quincy Sun regarding the First Church of Squantum was in error.

The headline read, "Squantum Pastor Backs American Aid To Contras." It should have read, "Squantum Pastor Opposes American Aid To Contras."

The article itself was correct.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We live in a busy and in many ways a pressure filled world. At this time as at other times, there are plenty of events going on around and, if permitted, they converge upon us, locally, nationally, and internationally. Lent is a time to recognize a greater value in life than the concerns of the present moment as presented to us on the evening news broadcast.

Lent is first of all a season. And, like the seasons of our calendar year, it is necessary for a proper growth in the faith-life. The calendar year is divided into the seasons of winter, spring, summer and fall. If the entire year were spring, there would be no maturing of the crop. All are necessary for nature to complete its cycle of growth and maturity. The liturgical year is the means by which the Christian relives the life of Christ, by celebrating throughout the year, his life, death and resurrection.

The season of Lent calls us to reflect upon our baptismal gifts and commitments. It is a time to reorder our lives, if need be, to respond to that call especially through prayer, penance and works of charity. Lent is that season which prepares us to celebrate the paschal mysteries proclaimed by the Resurrection of Christ...

'Street Smart Child' Documentary At VFW Thursday

The Adam Walsh Child Resource Center Boston, in cooperation with a New England Cable Association member, American Cablesystems, is sponsoring the first local public showing of "How to Raise a Street Smart Child" tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the George F. Bryant VFW Post, 24 Broad St., Quincy.

The hall is being provided by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Adam Walsh Center invites parents and their children to join members of the City-Wide Parents Council at this special showing.

The statistics on the threats facing children in America today are startling and include physical and sexual abuse as well as abduction.

Recent studies have shown that as many as 70 per cent of more than 200,000 cases of child abuse reported annually, the children are victimized by someone they know. A Houston survey conducted from 1979 to 1985 revealed that 43 per cent of the missing children studied were abducted while walking on the streets.

Child safety experts have identified practical and proven ways for children to protect themselves. The first step is to replace fear with knowledge. To be safe, children need to be "Street Smart."

"How to Raise a Street Smart Child" provides the needed information.

The unique program, based on the book of the same name by Grace Hecinger, helps parents sharpen a child's awareness of potential dangers by suggesting helpful safety tips in a straightforward, "how-to" fashion.

For more information, the public is invited to call the Adam Walsh Center at its toll-free number, 1-800-527-ADAM.

WEEK OF: April 9

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Leadership abilities are impressive - you attract friends representing a wide number of interests and backgrounds. A greater willingness to act less impulsively will lead to significant career accomplishments by late '87. Several key celebrations may be announced to you or by you over the coming 12 months.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Raising your standards can lead to impressive accomplishments - you're certainly not afraid of hard work at the present time. New friendship is spotlighted. Don't neglect health reviews.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Taking a positive approach to areas of romance and friendship proves fruitful at this time. More spontaneity helps boost a sagging relationship. Be selective if delegating tasks.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Ingenuously proves a real asset in a week that favors original approaches. You're impressive in the role of planner. Relationship with a fellow Aries or a Leo is improving.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Unconventional methods seem to bring results - but don't be offbeat for its own sake. Be sure to check details if in the process of negotiating or making an important purchase.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Closest pals now may be of the opposite sex and / or of a different generation. Good week for seeking out references and preparing resumes. Competitive edge works to your advantage.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Your sources prove more reliable, but don't take any information at face value. Household affairs become more complex - don't seek out instant solutions. Scientific projects appeal to you.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

New enterprises are highlighted through the week. Becoming less apathetic makes you feel better about yourself. Unexpected guest or two may arrive on the weekend.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Friend is in a playful mood during this week. Serious matter at work demands quick and effective action. In family situation, take things one day at a time.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Good week to show guests your favorite haunts. Nostalgic sessions are sprinkled through the weekend - this is a good period for bringing out the albums.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Small bonus may arrive by Wednesday. Imagination runs strong - this is a good week for creative expression. You and partner may be returning to a favorite place from long ago.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Novel ideas may have more value than you initially believe. Making choices is a familiar job through the week. Financial news-brightener may cheer you after the weekend.

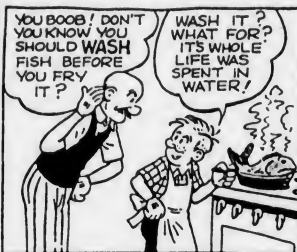

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

Trial and error bring headaches and, ultimately, satisfying results. Be sure to squirrel away interesting bits of information that you pick up this week. They'll soon prove rewarding.

$8.9 Million Budget Sent To City Council

McCauley told the council that the city will receive an increase in state aid of $1,091,475. The mayor said this is the lowest increase in state aid in recent years.

McCauley attributed the lower increase to the city's low unemployment rate and improved financial condition.

After the meeting, Council President Steve McGrath concurred with Lydon.

"I have very strong reservations about the sanitary landfill issue. I am opposed to trucking trash out of the city," he said.

McGrath said he would like to see more cooperation between the state DEQE and the city so that the city can extend the landfill.

The mayor also reviewed some of the budget highlights with the council.

McCauley said that because the city has not had to borrow any money this year he was able to make a $350,000 cut in the temporary loan interest budget.

Other decreases include $394,290 in capital outlay appropriations and $420,825 in the long term debt service budget.

The budget also includes funding for the creation of 13 new city jobs including seven positions in the police department.

The seven police positions include three sergeants.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney asked the mayor if any patrolmen would be cut under the new budget.

McCauley told the council that he agreed with Police Chief Francis Finn that there should be no personnel cuts on the force despite the recommendation of the recent police study to cut back on the number of patrolmen on the force.

The school budget, as always, makes up the bulk of the total budget - 37.7 per cent.

The School Committee has approved a request for $31,150,000. That represents a $1.35 million increase over the current year.

The police and fire budget is up $577,000 over the current year and the city's sewer & water assessment budget is up $189,000 an increase of five per cent.

Donations For CD Computer Approved

The City Council gave its approval to $750 in gifts Tuesday.

The purpose of the money is for the purchase of computer equipment for the Quincy Civil Defense.

The council agreed to draft a letter of thanks to the donors which include: Campanelli Quincy Trust, Kelly Enterprises, B. Skoler Company, Hassan Hayder, Mrs. Sidney Tallen, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, and the VFW Post, North Quincy.

Will Recommend To Council McCauley To Seek 150 Tax Percent For Businesses

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Mayor Francis McCauley said he will recommend May 4, that commercial, industrial and personal property (CIPP) be valued at 150 percent of full fair cash value for tax rate setting purposes for fiscal 1987.

CIPP categories were assessed at 130 per cent of full fair cash values for fiscal 1984, 1985 and 1986, according to McCauley.

The mayor said he expects to determine within a week the residential factor after he receives the final breakdown on the total value of the city.

Residential factors for 1984, 1985 and 1986 were less than 100 per cent of full fair cash values.

The estimated value of the city is $3.4 billion, according to the mayor.

"When we get that number, then we'll be able to talk rates," said McCauley.

McCauley said he will make his recommendations on his classification plan at a public hearing held by the City Council.

The fiscal 1987 residential and CIPP tax rates will be announced at that time, he said.

Once the classification plan has been approved by the council, the tax rates will have to be approved by the State Department of Revenue (DOR) and then preparation of the tax bills for mailing can begin, according to McCauley.

Mayor McCauley said that an analysis of over 100 properties in Quincy shows that the effect of the recent property revaluation falls most heavily on lower priced residential properties.

The increase to 150 per cent classification of CIPP properties will reduce the adverse financial effect on the residential property owners, particularly the single family home owners, he explained.

The mayor noted that voters in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, approved property tax classification as a constitutional amendment by referendum vote at the November, 1978 state election.

The 130 per cent classification factor for CIPP worked very well for the past three years, Mayor McCauley said. However, the recent three year property revaluation update indicates a decided shift in the property tax burden toward the residential property owner, he said.

McCauley also noted that the shift of the 150 per cent factor is the maximum that can be used under current law and no further increases in this category can be made.

Council To Reconsider Self-Service Gas Stations

The City Council's Ordinance Committee will consider the feasibility of the city's rescinding a 1972 order banning self-service gas stations in Quincy prior to the Monday, May 4, council meeting, according to Councillor James Sheets.

The time will be set at a later date, said Sheets, Ordinance Committee chairman.

Sheets told the committee

Monday night that he had introduced a resolve on the topic two months ago at the request of West Quincy gasoline station owners.

The station owners said they were losing business to stations in nearby cities and towns with self serve gasoline at a lower price, according to Sheets.

A motion Monday night by Councillor Michael Cheney, seconded by Councillor

Stephen McGrath, to place the matter on file was withdrawn when Councillor Richard Koch, Jr., said he would like to discuss the matter at a meeting with the Fire Chief.

After the meeting Sheets said that a similar proposal was voted down about eight years ago.

The ban had been suggested by then Fire Chief Edward Barry in 1972, Sheets said.

Enough Votes To Keep Point Middle Open

The Middle School Task Force was scheduled to make four, non-binding, recommendations to the Quincy School Committee last night (Wednesday), including one that Point Middle School be closed in 1988.

Grades K-5 would remain open.

But a Quincy Sun poll of school committee members indicates that the Point closing recommendation will not be approved when a vote is taken.

School Committee vice chairman Stephen Durkin said he would recommend that a vote be postponed until a full committee is present.

Durkin said that member Frank Santoro would not be able to attend last night's meeting, nor would Mayor Francis McCauley, who is in the hospital.

The first possibility for a vote would be May 6, he said.

"Next to hiring a new superintendent, this will probably be the most important decision we are going to make during the next few years," said Durkin.

"A decision as critical as this ought to have a full committee."

Durkin and Santoro indicated they are undecided on the recommendation, but the other members reached for comment said they were against it.

"I'd like more time to digest the task force report," said Durkin. "I think it is important for everybody to at least consider the report."

"Task force members put a lot of time and effort into the report."

"I'm not anxious to close any school, personally," said Durkin. "The only reason I would support it was if I was convinced some of the middle school students were not getting the education they should."

"It should be an educational decision, not a financial one. If we could avoid closing any school, that would make me happy."

Santoro commended the task force members

"The task force members should all be thanked for their long hours of educational debate," he said. "Their goals, which included others besides the school closing issue, should be carefully studied before any rash decisions are made."

"My decisions in these matters will be ones that reflect what is best educationally for the students in the years to come," said Santoro.

Veteran School Committee member Frank Anselmo was definite in his decision.

Mayor Doing Well After Minor Surgery

"I feel very good considering it's the first day," said Mayor Francis McCauley Tuesday afternoon after undergoing prostate surgery earlier in the day at Quincy City Hospital.

"It was good to get it over with," said McCauley. "I was feeling an awful lot of discomfort, but I decided to bite the bullet and get the surgery over with."

The surgery was performed by Dr. Robert W. Carey, a South Shore urologist.

The operation was similar to the one performed on President Reagan earlier this year.

"It's common among Republicans," joked McCauley.

The mayor said he expects to be at the hospital until the end of the week, and may take care of some city business from his hospital bed.

He expects to return to work next week.

McGrath Urges Veterans Abatement On Real Estate Taxes

City Council President Stephen McGrath urges the support of the Board of Assessors to approve the additional exemption for the veterans abatement of real estate taxes.

McGrath noted that as the city is now in a positive cash position that the additional cost of the veterans exemption could be borne by the city.

"I feel that the modest veterans exemption for those who have served our country is well deserved by our veterans, and the city should make every effort to ensure that the exemption is provided," said McGrath.

BETHANY CHURCH recreated the Palm Sunday experience when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on the foal of a donkey with children such as Sharon Capobianchi enjoying a ride on a colt on the church grounds. With her are Gerald Capobianchi and Erin Lundin.

Lydon Seeks Re-election To Ward 3 Seat

John J. Lydon, Jr., Ward 3 City Councilor announces he will seek re-election to a seventh term.

Lydon has served the city for 12 years and is seeking re-election to his seventh term.

As such, he is one of the most experienced councillors serving the city.

He has served as past chairman of the Finance Committee, the Oversight Committee and the Committee on Federal Funds.

Lydon was elected by his peers to serve as president of the Quincy City Council for a two-year term in 1982.

A 30-year resident of Quincy, Lydon expresses a deep love for the city and concern for his neighbors in Ward Three as his primary reason for seeking re-election.

"Government has allowed me to achieve many things for the people of Ward Three and I would like the opportunity to continue to serve my constituency," stated Lydon.

Expressing concern about growth, Lydon was the first to introduce the concept that the city should hire a full-time Traffic Engineer.

He has focused his attention on traffic problems in Ward Three that he sees as the result of the unprecedented growth that the city has experienced.

"Quincy in 1987 is attempting to manage traffic with equipment and techniques that were founded in the 1960's," Lydon said. Lydon further stated that traffic and growth management will continue to be his principle areas of concern.

He cites the reopening of the Wollaston School as one of his major achievements as councillor of Ward Three.

The school had been closed for many years because of low enrollment. However, in recent years that situation has changed.

Lydon, recognizing this shift, waged a campaign to reopen of the neighborhood school.

Lydon said he is strongly committed to the principles of neighborhood education.

Lydon cites, among his achievements the re-zoning of the hospital to P.U.D. to afford area residents input in the decisions that would affect the neighborhood.

His efforts to defeat the Groton St. subdivision, he feels, is indicative of his attitude toward unbridled growth.

"Our neighborhoods are this city's most important assets. We must protect them from the encroachment of uncontrolled growth," stated Lydon when he appeared before the Planning Board in opposition to this project.

Lydon cites some of his other achievements in Ward Three—the street-lighting program, park rehabilitation and a multitude of street resurfacing.

Lydon stated that he is asking voters to return him to his city council seat so that he can continue his efforts on behalf of Ward Three.

LAST WEEK'S torrential rains turned part of South St. in Quincy Point into a pond. Quincy DPW employee Dan Vecchione helped clear a storm drain.

Gasoline Spill Blamed For $60,000 Fire

An open container of gasoline accidentally overturned by two brothers playing in the cellar is listed as the cause of a two-alarm fire Sunday afternoon in a North Quincy house which caused an estimated $60,000 damage.

Fire Chief Carl Valenti, said the fumes reached the gas pilot of the hot water tank and flames erupted in the basement of the two-family home.

"The two children, Frank and Joseph Ruscio, ages 8 and 10 respectively, were very, very fortunate that they were not trapped in the cellar," said Valenti.

The chief said that a babysitter, Shannon Holmes, alerted the Fire Department and all three left the house safely.

Two firefighters were injured, apparently not seriously, fighting the fire, he said. They were treated at Quincy City Hospital and released.

Firefighter William Ellis was treated for overexertion and heat exhaustion, Valenti said. Firefighter Edward Graham received an injury to his rib cage, according to Valenti.

The Ruscio family occupies the first floor apartment, and tenants of the second floor apartment, a couple planning to be married, had not yet moved in, Valenti said. The house is owned by Paul Coulouras of 16 Lunt St., North Quincy, the chief said.

Heavy fire was showing from the cellar upon arrival by the Fire Department, Valenti said, and a second alarm was called by Lt. Joseph Varrasso. Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson was at the first alarm.

The fire extended partially to the first floor, but was checked there, according to Valenti.

One side of the first floor sustained water and smoke damage, and the top floor received smoke damage, according to Valenti who said the house is now unlivable.

Seven pieces of Quincy Fire Department apparatus were at the scene for about two and half hours, he said.

Mutual aid from Boston, Weymouth, and Milton covered the Quincy stations. Valenti said.

City Will Receive $1,837,000 In CDBG Funds

Mayor Francis X. McCauley announces that the City of Quincy will receive $1,837,000 in its annual Community Development Block Grant Program from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

This year's allocation represents an increase over last year's funds of $1,831,433, but is less than past years' grants of over $2 million annually.

Mayor McCauley has appropriated approximately $150,000 in the city budget which will supplement the CDBG grant in order to maintain all of the city's current community development programs.

Congress has designated April 11, through April 18, as National Community Development week.

McCauley has issued a proclamation recognizing the community development program's contribution toward meeting the needs of Quincy's low and moderate income residents.

Since it began 12 years ago, the community development program has provided Quincy with nearly $20 million in funding for community development, economic development and human services.

Community development funds have helped to rehabilitate nearly 700 homes in Quincy through low-cost loans or grants available to homeowners and landlords. Another 1100 homeowners received assistance for maintenance repairs, weatherization improvements and smoke detector installation.

The community development program also provides significant support for the city's efforts to offer a range of community programs and human services.

For Quincy's senior citizens, community development funds finance a van program providing free transportation, a drop-in center, a monthly newsletter and other services.

Neighborhood centers operated with community development funds provide a number of health programs, recreational activities and social services for residents of all ages.

Blood Pressure Screenings At Quincy Hospital

Quincy City Hospital will conduct a free blood pressure screening for the public Tuesday, April 21 in the Ambulatory Care Department from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

The screenings, performed by nursing staff, will enable individuals to keep track of their blood pressure, and be aware of dangerous elevations in the pressure. Persons in need of referral to a physician, will be advised to do so.

The screenings, which will take place on the first and third Tuesday of each month, are free of charge.

Businesses requesting assistance under this program must, in turn, provide a substantial public benefit such as job creation or elimination of slums and blight.

Currently, the city's Department of Planning and Community Development, in conjunction with the Bank of Boston, is offering loans to Quincy businesses at three-quarters of the prevailing prime rate.

JANA GOVONI enjoys being held by the Easter Bunny at the Squantum Community Association's Children's Easter party and egg hunt on the lawn of the Squantum School. The Easter Bunny's visit was arranged by William and Alicia Gardner.

Primary Sure In Ward 5

There will be a primary election for sure in Ward 5. And, it might be the only one on the September ballot.

Atty. Kevin Burke, 27, of Willow Ave. has decided to make a run for the Ward 5 seat being vacated by Stephen McGrath who is seeking one of the three council at-large seats.

Burke, a nephew of George Burke, former city councillor and district attorney, has been thinking about getting into the Ward 5 race and will make it official in a week or two.

He will be the third candidate for the seat, necessitating a preliminary election runoff.

Charles Phelan, Jr., 29 and John Keenan, 23, are announced candidates.

Still possible candidates are state GOP Committeewoman Kathy Roberts, and Paul Bregoli, North Quincy High School girls basketball coach who has been active in Senator Paul Harold's campaigns.

MEANWHILE the big question is whether there will be a primary race for city council at-large.

Seven candidates are needed and at this writing there are only five sure ones: incumbent Patricia Toland, Council President Stephen McGrath, Tim Cahill, Ron Iacobucci and Tom Koch.

There's speculation that Michael Condon who has indicated he would run, may not after all.

The only other names being mentioned as potential candidates are School Committeewoman Mary Collins and Deputy Civil Defense Director Tony Siciliano.

So if Condon bows out, it would take both Collins and Siciliano to create a preliminary runoff. Unless there is a someone or two waiting in the wings.

The feeling is that Collins or Siciliano might run but not both, bringing the field to six -- still one shy of a primary election.

AND, IF Ward 5 has the only primary what will it cost for that election?

"About $6,000 or $7,000" says City Clerk John Gillis.

A city-wide primary would be in the neighborhood of $40,000.

SPEAKING OF GILLIS, he has been hobbling around on crutches, because of torn cartilage in his right knee.

It's from an old football injury suffered when he played tackle for Northeastern University back in the early 1950's.

Gillis expects to "kick" the crutches anyway now.

GILLIS

MAYORAL contender Joseph LaRaia has a campaign kickoff social set for Thursday, April 23 at 8 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post. Tickets are $10.

LaRaia

LaRaia has been keeping the ticket price for his fundraisers down. In fact tickets were only $10 the night he announced his candidacy.

It will take a lot of $10 tickets to get the $100,000 or $125,000 most observers think is needed to wage an effective campaign against incumbent Francis McCauley.

LaRaia himself thinks he might be able to do it on $75,000 -- maybe $100,000 at the most.

But on $10 tickets he has a long way to go to $75,000.

JOHN KEENAN, who made his announcement for the Ward 5 seat this week, wasted little time in the fundraiser department.

His committee has scheduled one for Thursday, April 30 at 7 p.m. at Morrisette Legion Post. Tickets are $10 each and may be obtained at the door or by calling Michael or Kay Borek (479-2469), Catherine Keenan (479-3856).

BOTH MARVIN HAGLER and Sugar Ray Leonard brought home a pretty hefty paycheck for their middleweight championship fight.

American Cablesystems did pretty well, too. Some 5,500 subscribers paid $35 to get tuned in ($40 the last two days before the fight) to see the light on cable in Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

In fact some were still subscribing into the third round.

MILESTONE: Joseph Littlewood, popularly known as "Joe The Barber" recently observed his 83rd birthday at a party at the Elihu White Nursing Home in Braintree. Joe operated a barbershop on Newport Ave., Wollaston for a half century and is a past Masonic master.

Among the 100 guests at the party was Mayor Francis McCauley who was invited by Joe's niece, Dorothy Smallwood of Quincy the morning of the party. McCauley not only went but stayed for more than an hour.

His Honor has known the guest of honor for a long time.

Families Of Alcoholics St. John's Center Topic

Fr. Robert Beale, director of Priest Recovery Program for the Archdiocese of Boston will speak on issues of dependence for spouses, children and parents of alcoholics April 23 at 7:30 p.m. at St. John's Adult Center, 30 Phipps St., Quincy. A $2 donation is requested.

Adams Mansion, Presidents' Birthplaces Open Sunday

The Adams National Historic Site (NHS) which includes the Adams Mansion at 135 Adams St., and the Adams Birthplaces at 133-141 Franklin St., Quincy, will officially open for the 1987 season Sunday, April 19.

Admission will be $2, an increase of 50 cents. Children 12 and under and educational groups are free. National Park Service (NPS) rangers will provide guided tours from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. The grounds and gardens are open until dusk.

With authority from the U.S. Congress, this year the NPS has expanded entry fees at 134 areas out of 338 nationwide of the National Park System. The new $2 fee at Adams NHS entitles the visitor to a seven-day pass.

A season pass is also available for $6. This new pass, designed for frequent single-park visitors costs three times the price of a single admission and is valid for one calendar year. The traditional Golden Eagle Passport, which provides free entry to all federal recreational fee areas nationwide for the holder and all immediate family members has been increased from $10 to $25. This popular pass is valid for one calendar year.

The Golden Access Passport for handicapped visitors and the Golden Age Passport for citizens 62 years old and over continue to be free. Both passes provide free entry and half-price discount for user fees, such as for a campsite, in all federal recreation areas. All passes are available for purchase at the Adams Mansion or the Adams Birthplaces daily between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The John Quincy Adams birthplace also commemorates the drafting of the Massachusetts Constitution in 1779 as John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin joined forces in John's law office to produce one of the earliest constitutional documents still in use today. In fact, it is said to be the model used in the writing of the U.S. Constitution whose bicentennial is being celebrated this year.

Persons interested in programs at the Adams NHS may contact the Park Service at (617) 773-1177.

Stuffed Haddock Supreme

A Nice Entree For This Week

Most of us don't need an excuse to eat fish, but this week a good many of us will be preparing some kind of fish entree. Here is a stuffed haddock recipe you might like to try. Although with the high price of haddock you might want to use a substitute such as pollack or shrod (if they're any cheaper!)

The following recipe is for two pounds of haddock, approximately six good slices. If you use three or four slices, use one egg for part of the coating ingredients. The recipe is in three parts, and then everything is put together afterwards.

STUFFED HADDOCK SUPREME

Coating
flour (enough to coat fish) cornflake crumbs (or plain breadcrumbs)
2 eggs mixed with 1/2 cup milk salt and pepper to taste cooking sherry (about 1/4 cup to put on bottom of baking pan) juice of fresh lemon

STUFFING

5 milk lunch crackers
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1 Tbsp melted butter or margerine
1 Tbsp cooking sherry

Mix eggs, milk, salt and pepper. Coat fish fillets in flour, then the egg and milk mixture and then the cornflake crumbs.

Set aside.

Crush the milk crackers and then mix all stuffing ingredients together, adding as much water as it takes until blended. Set aside.

CREAM SAUCE

2 Tbsps butter or margerine
2 Tbsps flour
1 cup milk or cream
salt and pepper

Saute the butter and add the flour and cream or milk until smooth. Salt and pepper to taste.

In baking dish, put a little sherry wine. Place the fish side by side (one layer only). Put a little lemon juice over each slice. Then on top of that put the stuffing mixture. Put the cream sauce over slices and the rest into the baking pan. Bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven for about 30 minutes or until done. Serve with lemon wedges. Happy Easter!

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Once again this Easter the Christian world proclaims with solemn joy the affirmation of its belief in the risen Christ. The great stone which sealed mankind's tomb has been rolled back and has become not a barrier, but a door to eternal life for those who believe in the stunning reality of the resurrection.

No longer is life a few brief moments between nothingness and nothingness. The spark in man which calls out with all its being for fuel against eternal night has not been denied. Divinity, which has walked the earth as man, has shown the way through darkness to eternal light.

The very world around us joins in proclaiming a miracle of rebirth after the barrenness of the winter season. The message of newborn life is all-inclusive and will not be denied.

The great facts of the birth of a Savior and of His triumph over death have now been told again. In the very retelling, there is an implicit affirmation of belief in immortality.

On this Easter, each Christian, in his own church, in his own way, deep in his being, can say: "Yes, I do believe."

Last year over 200 persons came to the breakfast, sitting down to eat at the same time as a church "family." Church school classes will not be held on Easter so that children can attend the breakfast and worship with their families.

Following the Easter worship service there will be a fellowship hour at 11 a.m. in the Allen Parlor.

At 11:15 a.m. an Easter hunt, sponsored by the Bethany Mother's Club will be held on the church lawn for children, toddlers through to grade.

The beach service breakfast and worship service are all open to the public.

For additional information on these and other programs and ministries of Bethany, contact the church office at 479-7300.

Easter Pantomime Drama At Squantum First Church

Palm branches and music highlighted the Palm Sunday service at First Church of Squantum.

Four choirs participated. The morning began with an all-church breakfast sponsored by the young people of the church to raise money for summer camperships at Christian camps and conferences.

Children distributing palms to the worshippers at the service were Molly Crane, Amy Harper, Kate Johnson, Adam MacMillan, Ian MacRitchie, James Potter, Mark Potter, Matthew Potter, Michael Thornton, Gwen Williamson, and Emily Zachring.

The service began with a procession of palms around the sanctuary, led by three of the choirs singing "Prepare Ye" by Stephen Schwartz. Robert Dixey and Sarah Midland were the soloists.

After a responsive reading from Psalm 24 which was used as a call to worship, the congregation sang "All Glory, Laud, and Honor." Other hymns sung during the service were "Ride on, Ride on in Majesty" and "Are Ye Able, Said the Master."

The Cherub Choir, under the direction of Mindi Hurd, assisted by Marci Hurd, sang "We Have a King, Who Rides a Donkey." The Crusader Choir sang "Little Grey Donkey" by Natalie Sleeth, the Youth Choir sang "Song of Zechariah" by Hal Hopson, and the Youth Choir and Chancel Choir combined to sing "Palm Branches" by Jean-Baptiste Faure. Mary Ruth Scott directed the three older choirs.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor preached on the subject, "When Christ Comes In."

Greeters for the morning were Minnie Langevin, from Ferndale, Mich.; Patti Hurd and her two daughters, Mindi and Marci. Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott were the ushers. Ida Von Reigers and Del Dougherty hosted the Fellowship Hour after the service.

The Maundy Thursday service will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 16. Members and friends of the church are encouraged to worship on the next day, Good Friday, at the community worship service from 12 to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church in Wollaston.

Easter Sunday worshippers will gather on the shore on the water side of Moswetuset Hummock near the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum St. to join in a sunrise service at 7:30 a.m. An Easter morning breakfast for the worshippers will be held at the church after that service. No reservations are required.

Rehearsals are scheduled for members of the Crusader Choir, Youth Choir and Chancel Choir at 9:30 a.m. Sunday School will begin Easter morning at 10 a.m. Child care for children of nursery and Sunday School age will be available during the main worship service of the morning at 10:30 a.m.

Worshippers are advised to arrive a few minutes earlier than usual to the 10:30 a.m. service, not only to be sure of getting a seat but also so as not to miss the pantomime drama of the women at the tomb that traditionally opens that Easter service. A Fellowship Hour for all will follow the service.

The Board of Trustees will meet Monday, April 20 at 7:30 p.m. A second Easter service is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. April 26.

PALEMS were distributed at churches throughout the world Sunday, including the First Church of Squantum. The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, gave palm branches to choir members before the worship service's procession. From left, are Dorothy Abbe, Rev. Langevin, Ronnie MacRitchie, Debbie Stohlberg and Doris Sinckles.

All members and friends of the church are invited to participate in the three-hour vigil, feeling free to arrive when they are able and to leave when they must.

As people come and go during the service, the vigil will include the reading of scripture, the singing of hymns, the prayers and short meditations upon "The Seven Last Words of Christ," Herman Weiss and Giles Hazard will serve as organists for this service.

On Easter Sunday, April 19, members and friends of Quincy Point Congregational Church will join with four other area Congregational United Church of Christ congregations at Wollaston Beach for a sunrise service at 7 a.m.

The main Easter Morning Service will take place in the sanctuary of the church at 10 a.m., led by the pastors and seminarian. The congregation will sing "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today," "The Day of Resurrection" and "Come, Ye Faithful, Raise the Strain."

The Chancel Choir will sing Beethoven's "Hallelujah Chorus" and Van der Horst's "Ballad of the Empty Tomb."

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

What Can You Do?

To frustrate a burglar, reduce or remove his opportunities. Simple, practical crime prevention techniques, when implemented, are demonstrating overwhelming success at deterring the youthful burglar.

Inspect all points of entry into your home:

DOORS:

- All outside doors should be solid core in construction, or metal clad. Hollow core doors are easily kicked or battered in.

- All door frames should be solid in construction and firmly attached to the house structure.

- If any doors have hinges on the outside, they should be replaced with non-removable hinges (available commercially).

- All outside doors should have securely mounted deadbolts or rimlocks. A deadbolt lock with a one-inch throw is difficult to pry or jimmy. An intruder can break any glass within 40-inches of the lock, reach in and turn the lock. A double cylinder deadbolt will prevent this. If local laws prohibit double cylinder locks, non-breakable glass should be installed within 40-inches of the lock.

- A wide-angle lens peephole is easy to install and will allow you to see visitors without opening the door. NEVER rely on a chain lock as a security device!

SLIDING DOORS:

Sliding glass doors need special attention:

- Prevent both panels from being lifted up and out of the tracks. Secure the stationary panel with a screw from the inside into the door and frame. The top track should have small screws protruding down so the door barely clears them.

- When locked, wedge the sliding door with a swinging metal rod (a "Charlie Bar") to prevent entry even if the lock is picked or broken. A less desirable option is to wedge a wooden rod (a broom stick, for example) into the bottom track.

WINDOWS:

- Double-hung windows (the most common type) are easy to jimmy open. To prevent entry, drill a downward sloping hole through the top of the bottom sash and into (but not through) the bottom of the top sash. Insert a pin or nail in this hole to prevent the opening of either sash.

- Secure sliding windows in the same manner as sliding doors.

- Casement windows usually have secure latches. Make sure that your latches are strong and tight fitting. Locks are available for this type of latch to provide additional security.

- Jalousie and awning type windows are not very secure because individual panes are easy to pry or remove. You may want to install metal grating on the inside of the windows, or consider replacing them entirely with a more secure type.

If you would like to know more about securing your home and property "The Neighborhood Watch Program" is available. To find out more about "Neighborhood Watch" call 479-1212 ext. 368, the Crime Prevention Office.

Plan wedding in keeping with your personal taste and lifestyle

A wedding is a celebration universal yet diversified in style and presentation. No other event creates as much joy and excitement — not only for the bride and groom but for everyone involved!

What makes it even more exciting today are the different options that are available to couples. Marriage today has no one formula. Whether you opt for getting married when you are older or younger, decide to have a dual-career marriage or a more traditional union, the one thing most brides and grooms agree on is that you can make your marriage what you want it to be.

This idea also carries over to the actual planning of the wedding. Most couples today share the responsibility of planning a wedding.

Getting involved in the planning of the ceremony as well as the celebration afterwards is the best way to make your wedding a personal statement of whom you are.

Choosing the vows with which you feel comfortable, or writing a good deal of the ceremony yourselves, can help make you feel that your wedding is a reflection of whom you are as a couple.

Your reception, too, should be planned according to what you as a couple want and enjoy.

There are many types of receptions from which today's bride and groom can choose. A traditional sit-down dinner is as popular as ever. Many couples like the orderly, organized feeling this type of seating arrangement conveys. Large as well as small groups can accommodate themselves to this type of arrangement.

A buffet dinner is also very popular. More casual in feeling, this type of reception allows people to move freely amongst the other guests.

A buffet dinner also allows the bride and groom more freedom when choosing a menu. With this type of dinner, an appealing variety of dishes can be served. Also, in many cases, a buffet dinner is less expensive than the traditional sit-down reception.

Another alternative that is becoming increasingly popular is a cocktail hour reception. Similar to a buffet reception, a cocktail reception usually includes champagne with hot and cold hors d'oeuvre being circulated, or a buffet table with hors d'oeuvre that people can help themselves to, and a bar complete with wine as well as hard liquor.

For those more interested in a reception with a "country feeling," outdoor luncheons complete with tent or awning are always nice. You might even want to serve a picnic lunch complete with individual baskets that would make the event fun as well as easier to serve!

It is always the small details that really stand out when it comes to judging which receptions are the most special.

Balloons, ribbons or netting — all relatively inexpensive — can add a special flair when it comes to decorating for a wedding reception.

Flowers — whether exotic or wild — add to the ambiance, as does music. Both flowers and music can run into some money, so it is best to research the different types available to you.

Flower arrangements range from potted plants placed on tables and arranged strategically throughout the reception area to wild flowers strewn in baskets, to the very delicate single white lily in a vase.

There is music to suit everyone's taste and, because it is a universal language you can be sure that no matter what type you choose, it is sure to be enjoyed by most everyone.

With so many options to choose from in terms of both lifestyle and types of weddings, today's couples have to remember to follow their hearts and do what reflects their personal taste and style.

Gifts of jewelry sure to please the wedding party

Planning a wedding — even a simple one — can be an enormous task. There is a multitude of decisions to be made by the betrothed couple. One of the most important of these is the selection of gifts for members of the wedding.

According to Associate Editor Millie Martin, Brides' magazine recommends something of a relatively permanent and personal nature that can be worn on the wedding day. "Jewelry items are an excellent choice." And, she says, "these gifts needn't be too costly. They are tokens of appreciation and affection for close friends and family members."

The Jewelry Industry Council notes that gold filled jewelry, also referred to as gold overlay, meets all these criteria. It has the look and feel of fine jewelry at a mere fraction of the cost. This is possible because a layer of real karat gold has been mechanically bonded to all visible surfaces of each piece. With reasonable care, it can last a lifetime.

Necklaces and pendants are popular gifts for bridesmaids and the maid of honor. A gold filled pendant accented with pearls, diamonds or colored stones is a keepsake that will be cherished for years to come. Gold filled earrings, pins and bracelets are also available in a full array of stylish designs.

For male members of the wedding party, engravables bearing the date of the wedding are always appropriate. Gold filled identification bracelets, key ring tabs and money clips are ideal for this purpose. Also consider gold filled cufflinks, tie tacks or collar bars.

There are even gold filled gifts for the youngest members of the wedding. For the flower girl there are child size bangle bracelets or birthstone rings and pendants. The ring bearer will delight in an engraved identification bracelet just his size, or a gold filled tie tack or collar bar, like the "big guys" wear.

After selecting your engagement and wedding rings, ask your jeweler to show you a full selection of gold filled jewelry to consider for the wedding party. And you may run across something wonderful for your touseau as well.

For more information about gold filled jewelry write to: The Gold Filled Association, P.O. Box 2137, Attleboro, MA 02703.

FOR MEMBERS OF THE WEDDING — The Jewelry Industry Council recommends gifts of gold filled jewelry. For him, cufflinks by Van Dell, child's I.D. bracelet from Binder Brothers, men's I.D. bracelet by A & Z Hayward, key ring from Colibri. For her, child's bangle bracelet by Le Stage, pendant with freshwater pearls from Princess Pride, earrings from Carla, swirl pin and pendant by Tru-Kay.

Celebrate an upcoming wedding with a luncheon shower for the bride-to-be. Friends and relatives will enjoy the gift-giving activities even more when the menu includes a light chicken salad on rice, refreshing citrus wine cooler and a luscious lemon cake.

Deliciously tangy

Fruited Chicken Salad is a delicious mixture of melon balls, green grapes, cashews and cubed chicken tossed with a creamy dressing of mayonnaise, ginger and bottled lemon juice.

Offer a toast to the happy couple with Citrus Wine Cooler, a combination of dry white wine, orange juice, bottled lemon juice and lemon-lime carbonated beverage.

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1/4 cup bottled lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger, optional
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup cashews

- 1 (32-ounce) bottle lemon-lime carbonated beverage, chilled
- Orange slices

In punch bowl, combine orange juice, wine, lemon juice and sugar; stir until sugar dissolves. Just before serving, add carbonated beverage and orange slices.

FRUITED CHICKEN SALAD, Citrus Wine Cooler and Lemony Angel Cake make a bridal shower a memorable occasion.

LEMONY LAYERED ANGEL CAKE

(Makes one 10-inch cake)

- 1 (14 1/2 or 16-ounce) package angel food cake mix
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup sugar

- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup (1/2-pint) whipping cream, whipped
- Strawberries, optional

eggs, 1/2 cup sugar and lemon juice until foamy; set aside.

In medium saucepan, combine remaining 1/2 cup sugar and cornstarch. Gradually add water; mix well. Over medium heat, cook and stir until thickened and clear; remove from heat.

Gradually beat in egg mixture. Over low heat, cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Chill thoroughly. Fold in whipped cream.

Cut cake into 3 equal layers. Spread equal portions of lemon juice mixture between layers and on top. Chill 4 hours. Garnish with strawberries if desired. Store in refrigerator.

Making the most of your time...

Efficiency and organization are the keys to planning a beautiful wedding on short notice

Can you organize a traditional wedding for this summer if you've just become engaged? Most bridal guides advise allowing six months to a year to attend to the many details.

But a new book from Bride's magazine, entitled Shortcuts and Strategies for a Beautiful Wedding (Perigee Books), offers help to those who want or need to plan a celebration in a hurry.

You can speed up your planning timetable without sacrificing your dream of a lovely wedding, say the authors. The key is efficiency and organization.

• Network to whittle down options. You won't be able to visit every wedding vendor in your area. Instead, ask friends and business associates for specific recommendations. Then, ask the florists or photographers they've put you in contact with for their referrals.

Attend a bridal show, if possible, to take advantage of the multiple ideas and services gathered in one place.

• Manage your time. Assign a priority to each wedding task, then make lists of things to do and update them each day. Take notes each step of the way, writing down estimates, impressions, names. If you rely on memory alone, you'll end up retracing your steps and forgetting important details.

• Postpone tasks when appropriate. Pen thank-you notes now to your attendants, but shop for their gifts on your honeymoon.

• Delegate, delegate, delegate. Willing friends and family members can be life-savers. Does your mother love to shop? She might scour stores for bridesmaid's gifts. Your father could arrange for the invitation printing and order the liquor. An usher could round up the legal forms for changing your name on bank accounts, driver's license, stock certificates.

• Set deadlines to get things done. Otherwise, Parkinson's Law applies: "Work expands to fill the time available for its completion."

The book also suggests these specific time-saving ideas:

• Choose a wedding gown in a simple style; the ordering time may be shorter. Look at discontinued sample dresses on sale, or order a bridesmaid's dress — in white.

• Hire a wedding consultant to relieve you of time-consuming tasks.

• Use a wedding gift registry to organize your gift preferences.

• If feasible, pay for express service. Everything from printing to portrait finishing can be hurried — for a price.

• Shop by mail — possibilities include attendants' gifts, bridal shoes, toasting glasses, invitations, wedding accessories.

• Hire a single instrumentalist, such as a harpist, to play at both the ceremony and reception.

• Plan a weekend away right after the wedding: take an all-out honeymoon later.

Champagne adds extra sparkle to elegant, traditional weddings

Traditional weddings are back in fashion. And when your wedding includes numerous toasts by merry-making guests in formal attire, a large reception, and an extended ceremony, tradition demands the indispensable beverage: Champagne.

Champagne from France adds zest and gaiety to the happy occasion. Whether yours is a daytime or evening wedding, whether you serve a sit-down dinner or allow guests to serve themselves from a tasteful buffet, Champagne is proper at any time and with every menu.

Here are a few tips from the Champagne News & Information Bureau to enhance your traditional wedding:

• For elegant economy provide non-vintage brut Champagne with canapés and hors-d'oeuvre — what the French call amuse-bouches.

• To add a rosy glow to the proceedings, choose pink Champagne to accompany light meats, smoked fish, chicken or cheese, served on peach-colored linen.

• Opt for extra-dry Champagne — slightly sweeter than brut — if you decide to serve Champagne with the piece montée (traditional wedding cake).

• For a celebration of symphonic proportions, pour Champagne from a giant bottle. A Methusalem (equals eight standard bottles) serves 40 guests; a Salomazar (12 bottles) serves 60; a Balthazar (16 bottles) serves 80; and a Nebuchadnezzar, the world's largest (20 bottles) serves 100.

After the waiters have filled all the glasses, tradition calls for the best man to offer the first toast to the newlyweds. For a special fillip, follow the French nuptial custom of sipping from coupes de mariage, the 1980s version being engraved silver flutes which will remain mementos of the event.

Champagne can also add sparkle to special days before and after the ceremony. The "bubbly" provides a lovely grace note when served to friends at a bridal shower, to members of both families at an engagement dinner, or to bridesmaids and ushers at wedding rehearsals.

Recall the start of your life together by serving Champagne on several occasions. Begin with a tête-à-tête wedding breakfast on the following day and pop a Champagne cork for birthdays, anniversaries, Valentine's Day and other family milestones.

And whenever you serve Champagne, follow these simple guidelines. Chill the bottle well, for 30 minutes, in a mixture of ice and water.

To open, dry the bottle, remove the foil covering the cork, untwist the wire muzzle and loosen it all around the neck while keeping your thumb firmly on the cork. Turn the bottle, not the cork, and ease the cork out with a soft, gentle pop.

Champagne shows itself to best advantage in tall, long-stemmed flute or tulip glasses — not the saucer-type glasses which dissipate the bubbles rapidly. Include these in your bridal registry so you can entertain at home with style and verve.

PRETTY AND FEMINE bridesmaid dresses, available at Susie's, are the newest looks for today's weddings.

Shower her with surprises...

Bake a heart-shaped cake to honor the bride

Bake an outrageously rich and delicious cake for a bridal shower. This meringue and whipped cream fantasy looks as if it came from the best patisserie in town. It is, however, quite simple to make.

CRANBERRY MERINGUE CAKE

- 8 egg whites
- 2½ cups sugar
- 1 jar (14 ounces) Ocean Spray Cranberry Orange Sauce
- 2 packages (7 ounces each) flaked coconut
- ½ cup confectioners' sugar
- 1½ cups (2½ pints) heavy cream, whipped
- 1 tablespoon rum extract
- Lace doily

Preheat oven to 275°F. Beat 8 egg whites until stiff. Gradually add sugar; 1 tablespoon at a time, beating until stiff and glossy.

Mark three 8 inch heart outlines on sheets of foil. Place on cookie sheets. Spread half of the meringue on one of the hearts. Spoon the remainder of the meringue on the second and third hearts in a border on the inside edge of the hearts' outlines.

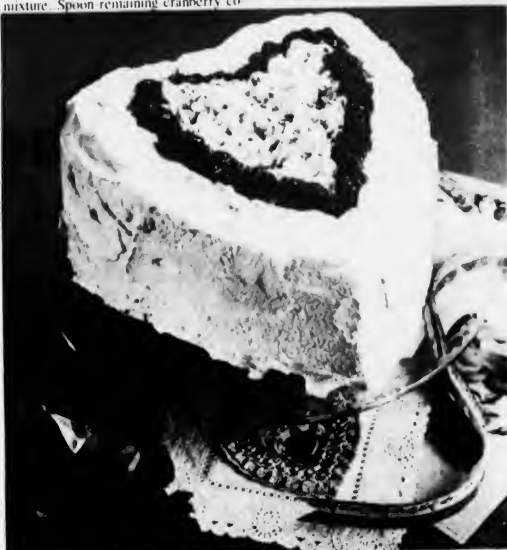

Bake for 1 hour or until dry and crisp. Cool. Mix sauce and coconut.

Fold half of this mixture and the confectioners' sugar together. Whip 1 pint cream and rum extract together; fold into cranberry mixture. Pour into a 1 quart container and freeze until hard. Whip remaining 1½ pints heavy cream until stiff.

Stack two outline hearts on top of full heart using some of the whipped cream to "glue" together. Spread remaining cream down sides of hearts.

When ready to serve, place on a platter covered with doily. Spoon in frozen mixture. Spoon remaining cranberry coconut mixture around opening of heart. Serve at once. Makes 8-10 servings.

A CRANBERRY, WHIPPED CREAM AND MERINGUE cake makes a beautiful centerpiece for a shower party.

Have you covered insurance needs?

Your wedding is less than three weeks away. All your wedding gifts, including the silver tea set from Aunt Martha, are neatly stacked in your mother's guest bedroom, while contractors put the finishing touches on your new home.

Before you sail away on your honeymoon, the Insurance Information Institute suggests that you contact an insurance agent or company representative and inquire about a wedding presents floater.

This type of floater is designed to cover wedding presents, on an "all risk" basis, wherever they are, during the period before and after, but not longer than 90 days after the wedding.

Premiums for a wedding presents floater may cost as little as 55 cents per $100 for the first $10,000, and only slightly more if it includes the risk of breakage of china, glass, marble, earthenware, furniture or other fragile articles.

As soon as you return from your honeymoon and get settled, don't forget to contact your insurance agent or company representative and choose a homeowner insurance policy best suited to your personal needs. You can insure your property against many different kinds of losses, including fire, theft, windstorm or hail and vandalism or malicious mischief.

Apartment dwellers need tenants insurance for their personal belongings and their liability to others. The landlord's insurance does not include this type of coverage.

The I.I.I. also suggests that newlywed couples make an inventory of all household furnishings and personal belongings. An inventory will help you to establish the value of your belongings and how much insurance you need. It will also help you to settle an insurance claim quickly and efficiently, if a loss should occur.

For a copy of "Home Insurance Basics," "Tenants Insurance Basics," and "Taking Inventory," call the I.I.I.'s toll-free insurance hotline: 800-221-4954.

Compromising possessions

Not so long ago, most single women lived with their parents until marriage and collected everything necessary for a home. Meanwhile, bachelors tended to live in apartments furnished with little more than stereo, couch and bar. Today, both men and women leave home earlier and marry later.

Consequently, they accumulate most home comfort "necessities" while still single. For today's newlyweds, combining two sets of possessions into one home can be the first great challenge of married life.

With space at a premium in most first homes, couples quickly become familiar with space-saving techniques. They devise ingenious ways to eliminate clutter and are likely to spend entire Saturdays installing closet organizers or building shelves.

They learn to throw away junk or, at least, items not used in the past 10 years.

And, for space-saving convenience, they buy multi-functional appliances instead of outfitting their kitchens with 20 individual gadgets.

Fortunately, solutions that save time and space do exist. One is to install appliances in under-used areas. Recently developed under-cabinet appliances, for example, unclutter countertops without trading off accessibility and convenience.

A little ingenuity goes a long way toward making a small place seem larger. And the more room a newly married couple has, the more they can continue to acquire.

Beautifully manicured nails: The finishing touch for the bride on her special day and afterwards

This year's bride will find a return to more traditional, feminine styles. Not only will gowns be adorned with lots of lace and tiny seed pearls, hair will be longer and fuller. Nails, however, will be shorter, oval and polished in go-with-everything pastels and neutrals.

Brides will be particularly pleased with the subtle shades being shown for spring of 1987," says Linda Harris, director of product development for L'Oréal Cosmetics Division, manufacturers of Colour Riche Nail Enamel.

"L'Oréal's spring '87 color story will be classic, crisp, soft and fresh colors... neutral and pastel pinks, lilacs and mauves, that will take a bride from her wedding day through the end of her honeymoon."

Expert advice

L'Oréal experts offer the following tips to help brides get through their wedding day and honeymoon looking great:

- Treat yourself to a manicure and pedicure the day before the wedding. It's an inexpensive way to have hands, feet and legs massaged and it helps reduce tension.

- Nails polished in neutral colors won't detract from you, your wedding gown or honeymoon trousseau.

- Don't use your nails as a tool when opening gifts arriving at the last minute. In the excitement, try to remember to use a pair of scissors or letter opener, or let the groom help.

- Don't forget to pack a small repair kit to take along on your honeymoon. It should contain an emery board, polish remover and cotton balls, nail glue, polish, base and top coats.

- Every two to three days, put aside 15-30 minutes to take care of your hands. Soak them in warm water for about 10 minutes, dry well and, to keep your manicure looking great, touch-up polish where needed, and apply an extra coat of a clear top coat.

- If you break a nail, simply remove the polish, repair the nail with just a drop of glue, let dry, then file till smooth. Re-apply base coat and nail polish, ending with a top coat. Remember: Never put glue on top of polish or use more than a drop or two.

- To avoid hands and cuticles drying out from sun and exposure to water, massage in moisturizer several times a day.

Nail down beautiful hands

With a little attention, you'll be able to get through your honeymoon with hands and nails looking as great as they did the day you were married.

Planning your wedding can help you plan your marriage

Countless decisions face a bride and groom in the months before the wedding: How large a wedding should we have? How will we pay for it? Where should we live? According to a recent article in Bride's magazine, how a couple handles these decisions can predict how their marriage will work later.

"All things that happen during this time are microcosms of what's going to happen in marriage," says Dr. David Stoop, author of Refresh Your Marriage with Self Talk. So it's a perfect time to head off potential problems.

If you'd like to forecast your married future, examine your wedding planning style in each of the following:

- Spending money. Is bargain hunting your idea of a good time, while your partner buys the first thing he sees, just to "get it over with?" Each approach has its place. While it might not make sense to shop for hours to save 10 dollars on a dining room set, it's probably worth the extra effort to find an apartment that exactly suits your needs.

- Wedding power. Does one of you always make the decisions? If this suits you both, it could work out fine. But, be warned: This kind of imbalance tends to grow greater over the years and, eventually, the leader can grow tired of the responsibility and the follower can become resentful. It's important to break the pattern.

Do you both shy from making any decisions at all? The "whatever you want syndrome is common early in relationships. How to break it? Ask each other, "What do you really want to see happen?" Often you'll find you do have the same goal, for example, to pick household items you'll both enjoy.

- Relating to others. Planning a wedding involves hiring dozens of wedding specialists. Are you outgoing and assertive? Is your partner very shy? You can each make a contribution in keeping with your strength. For example, your partner may research reception locations, while you negotiate the details with the manager.

- Compromising. When you're on opposite sides, can you each concede a little and agree on a third choice?

One form of compromise is "acceptance," or "agreeing to disagree." If you want to attend a traditional church after you marry, but your fiancé prefers less religious structure, you could join separate churches. You might agree to trade off — attend his church together one week, yours the next.

Do you have trouble reaching a compromise? Is one or both of you too stubborn? If so, ask, "What am I afraid will happen?" Perhaps you fear your partner is trying to change you. Discussing each controversy as you go along will help you establish good communication habits throughout your marriage.

Enough Votes To Keep Point Open

"I definitely will not vote to close Point Middle School," said Anselmo. "I am against closing any more schools."

"How can we tell what our needs will be five, 10 or 15 years from now?"

Christopher Kennedy said, "Point is important in that area of the city. It's the only elementary and middle school down there."

"It's a heavily populated area, and it would make it awkward for the people down there."

Mary Collins and Peggy Nigro, who had supported closing Central Middle School, also opposed the closing of Point.

According to Mrs. Nigro, "It doesn't make sense to leave that section of the city devastated when there are other alternatives."

"I don't think the argument that it is the only school in the city with kindergarten to grade 8 should be reason to close the middle school if it is functioning."

McCauley has said he is against closing Point, according to Middle School Task Force chairman Robert Preble.

Preble said the task force would also recommend:

- Changing open enrollment from a space available to a demonstrated need policy.

- Extending the Talented and Gifted, or similar, programs from elementary to middle schools.
- Taking no action on magnet schools.

License Transferred For 'Sports Type Bar'

By JANE ARENA

The City License Board Tuesday granted a request from Philip Gambon, owner of Lefty's Lounge, Inc., for a transfer of the common victualer-all alcoholic license as held by J.J.'s Barbeque & Lounge, Inc., 160-162 Hancock St.

Gambon, who was formerly in the insurance business, says he plans to upgrade the establishment with some remodeling and general improvements so that the bar will draw a more respectable crowd. He plans to turn the establishment into a "sports type bar" he said.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue said that the bar is not in violation of any codes, but that the conditions could be improved.

The board told Gambon that because the establishment is in a heavy traffic area, he must be extremely careful of how his customers are served so that no problems occur when they leave the bar.

The board stipulated that a team inspection be conducted by the Health Inspector, Building Inspector and Fire Chief prior to any remodeling and that a routine police check be conducted on the intended manager of the bar.

Quincy Point Bar Transfer Approved

The city License Board Tuesday granted a request from Elizabeth A. Taylor for the transfer of the common victualer-all alcoholic license as held by Ricap Corp. doing business as the 536 Bar & Grille, 532-536 Washington St.

The hearing was previously continued to allow the board to investigate Taylor's past record of experience in an establishment in Plymouth called T.K.'s.

The board found that the establishment in Plymouth was improved under her management, and hopes that she can improve the quality of the Quincy bar to an even greater degree.

The board also found that Taylor's name still appears on the license of the Plymouth establishment, thereby making her legally responsible for any problems which may occur there. She told the board that she had been under the assumption that her name no longer appeared on the license and that she is in the process of removing her name at this time.

The board reminded Taylor that they have had problems with the establishment in the past, including complaints from area residents, and told her that she would have to make a number of improvements. Taylor said that one such improvement she is planning is to have the bar's last call at 12:15 a.m.

tives. He spent last summer working in the Norfolk Superior Court Clerk's office.

In making his announcement, Keenan stressed that the next few years will greatly affect the character of the Ward 5 area. He pointed out that development, which he considers the issue most on people's minds, could begin to have a more noticeable impact on Wollaston, particularly in the center and the beach area.

"The protection of our neighborhoods should be our first concern, and so it is important to see that current zoning and parking regulations in all areas are followed. In the center, any project will impact an already poor traffic and parking situation, and any development along the beach will have to be studied for its environmental impact, especially its effect on the water table and related flooding problems. Most of the beach area is currently zoned for single or two family homes - any proposals requiring variances should be brought to the immediate attention of the residents and studied carefully so that the neighborhoods are not negatively impacted."

Keenan also pointed out several other issues affecting Wollaston that he feels have to be addressed. "The new Ward 5 councillor must closely monitor the cleanup of the bay and guarantee that the beach is maintained for the enjoyment of all residents. Efforts to control traffic and litter along the beach must continue; the M.D.C. has made great progress in this regard and the Ward 5 councillor will have to work with that agency in an effort to further that progress. The Wollaston train station is another area that must be better maintained and recent successful police efforts to curb thefts and vandalism in the parking lots should be continued."

The litter problem in Wollaston is another issue that Keenan feels should be addressed immediately. "The neighborhood residents and the local merchants are all concerned about litter. What is needed in the center are a few trash containers, regular emptying of those containers, and more frequent street cleanings. The street cleanings are needed in the neighborhoods as well, particularly in the spring so that the winter's salt and sands do not clog the gutters and cover the catchbasins."

He also pointed out that there are several streets in need of repair due to the effects of this past winter's storms. In addition, Keenan would like to see the sidewalks, particularly in the center, kept clearer for shoppers during the winter months.

North Splits With Weymouth

The North Quincy baseball team, hoping to improve upon last season's 3-17 record, split in two non-league squeakers last week.

The Raiders pulled out a last-inning 5-4 victory over Weymouth North in its opener, but dropped a 4-8 decision to Weymouth South later in the week.

Leo Donovan's North team faced Malden yesterday (Wednesday), hosts Medford today (Thursday) at Adams Field, will play at Peabody next Tuesday at 10:30 and will be home to Revere next Wednesday at 10:30 at Adams.

Jack Mullen doubled home Martin Feeney with the winning run in the seventh inning to give the Raiders their win over Weymouth North.

Trailing, 4-2, North scored a run in the sixth and won it with two in the seventh.

Dan Santry pitched six innings, striking out four and scattering nine hits and also had two hits and two RBI. Steve Haggas and Neil Hatfield also had two hits each.

In the next game North handed Weymouth South three unearned runs and an early 4-0 lead and just missed coming back and catching the Wildcats.

Mark DiMattio was the losing pitcher despite hurling a three-hitter and striking out eight.

North, trailing, 4-1, in the bottom of the first inning as a result of four errors, came back with two in the bottom half and made it 4-3 when Hatfield doubled home Jeff Calvert in the fourth. However, the Raiders were unable to score the tying run.

Hatfield and Calvert had two hits each for North Quincy.

And, So Does Quincy

Quincy's baseball team split even in two non-league games against Weymouth opponents last week.

Quincy played at Everett yesterday (Wednesday), plays at Malden today, will host Medford next Tuesday at 10:30 and will be at Peabody Wednesday at 10:30.

T.J. Steen pitched two-hit ball for Quincy in the opener and he was supported by some timely hitting. He started slowly, giving up a run in the first inning but Weymouth failed to get a runner beyond second the rest of the way.

Steen struck out the side in the second.

The Presidents scored three times in the second inning when Steve Austin walked, Steen singled, Ed Flavin walked to load the bases and a wild pitch advanced the runners, Austin scoring. Sean Thompson drove in Steen and Flavin with a ground-rule double.

Quincy added a run in the seventh when Joe Innello doubled and scored on Tom Logan's single.

Quincy Edged By Weymouth North

The Quincy girls' softball team, under new coach Jim Piccini, who took over for Barbara Webster, who went to North Quincy to succeed the retired Mary Pratt, lost a tough 8-7 decision to Weymouth North in last week's opener.

Quincy took a 5-2 lead into the third inning only to see Weymouth North tie it up. The First Ladies regained the lead, 7-5, in the top of the sixth on Terry Duggan's double and Chris Curtin's RBI single. Duggan scored three runs.

In the bottom of the sixth host Weymouth North rallied for three runs to gain the victory.

Sue Cullen walked four times and scored three runs for Quincy, while Marion Miller had an RBI single.

Kevin Jago, who had coached the North Quincy junior varsity, has taken over as Quincy's jayvee coach while Hank Conroy, Quincy's hayvee coach for several seasons, has moved with Barbara Webster to North.

The Quincy girls played Peabody Tuesday, will host Medford today (Thursday) at Faxon Field, will play at Somerville Monday and will be home to Malden next Wednesday at Faxon. The first Suburban League game will be with North Quincy April 27 at Mitchell McCoy Field.

Webster Succeeds Pratt At North

Barbara Webster, who has coached the Quincy girls' softball team for several years, has moved north and replaced the retired Mary Pratt as the North Quincy girls' coach.

Barbara has been joined at North by junior varsity coach Hank Conroy, who has been Quincy jayvee coach during Webster's tenure.

With a fine nucleus of returnees, the veteran coach is hopeful for a successful year as the Raiderettes got off to a great start last week, winning their first two non-league games. They opened with an easy 15-3 victory over Weymouth North and followed up with an 11-10 decision over Weymouth South.

"Naturally, it is a little difficult to make predictions when you take over a new team, but I've known most of these kids for a long time, many of them being from Atlantic Middle School, where I teach, so it is safe to say I have some excellent athletes," said Webster.

"They have been working hard and are eager to learn. The new girls will be excellent additions to the team. We are still trying people at different positions and are not quite solid yet. I am pretty sure you will see a very competitive and capable North Quincy team this year."

Newcomers are juniors Nancy Flukes, shortstop, and Karrie Pistorino, second base, and freshman Crystal Moffet, second base-shortstop.

"We are looking forward to a good season and our pitching should be very good with Kristin Drake, and our defense should be better than ever," Webster said. "Offensively, I am ever hopeful."

Gail Raftery, who teaches with Webster at Atlantic Middle School, is the North freshman coach.

In the opening romp over Weymouth North, Drake pitched five-hit ball and the Raiderettes pounded out 15 hits. Mitton had three hits and two RBI and McGuigan had three hits and three RBI.

Against Weymouth South Flukes' single in the top of the seventh and two walks with the bases loaded gave North its wild, come-from-behind win.

Mitton had two hits and two RBI and Drake was again the winning pitcher, despite giving up 13 hits.

The winning theme, which sets the tone for the construction of parade floats, is scheduled to be chosen Wednesday, April 29.

Theme entries will be judged by the 28-member Christmas Festival Committee, headed by George White, general chairman.

'Asiatic Explosion' Topic For Historical Society April 23

"The Asiatic Explosion" will be the topic of the Quincy Historical Society's monthly program Thursday, April 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St.

Speaker will be Alfred M. Toy, of Quincy, a member of the Governing Board of the Historical Society.

Through its history, Quincy can trace the arrival of newcomers from all over the world and their subsequent assimilation into the life and work of the city. This tradition of immigration, which has made Quincy a culturally rich and ethnically diverse community, continues today. In the last few years significant numbers of Asian families have chosen to settle in Quincy.

Toy will detail the reasons for this latest wave of immigration and its impact on our community. He will discuss Asian culture, its language, art, and traditions; the difficulties faced by Asian families arriving in Quincy; and the organizations which have been helpful to them.

The lecture is open to the public at no charge. Refreshments will be served.

The concert features the all-female vocal group Bread and Roses and actress and teacher Frances Sharp from Hartford, Conn. It will be held at the First Parish Church Unitarian Universalist (church of the Presidents), 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

the "Bread and Roses" Union strike in Lawrence.

Frances Sharp will portray famous and little known women in history.

Bread and Roses is a group of women from the Hartford area who have come together to sing music of the world's people, communicating political thought through the medium of music. They sing songs in English, Spanish, Yiddish and other languages, using guitar, banjo and percussion as well as unaccompanied. They emphasize songs of working women and men, songs of peace, international songs and other songs expressing present day concerns. They sing of struggle and of hope of our heritage and on and on.

Tickets are $6 in advance, $7 at the door and $4 for senior citizens. For further information, contact the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights, P.O. Box 28, Quincy, Mass. 02269, 472-3496.

COMMUNITY WEEK - 1987

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE CITY OF QUINCY FROM RICHARD F. SCHUBERT PRESIDENT, AMERICAN RED CROSS

"1954-1958 were very special years in my life. They were the Eastern Nazarene College years in which my preparation for adult responsibility reached a critical step of development. Wherever my career has taken me - Bethlehem Steel, U.S. Department of Labor, American Red Cross -- I have also been able to look back with enormous affection and appreciation to a college, faculty and community that came together in those pivotal years to afford a quality education in the context of a value system that would make all the difference.

"With thousands of other ENC alumni, I would like to pause this week and express my appreciation to the people of Quincy for their support and solidarity, without which my very special years would not have been possible."

Mayor Forms Committee To Work With EPA

Mayor Francis X. McCauley announces the formation of a citizens' advisory committee to work with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on the study of effects on Quincy Bay of years of sewage pollution.

Last year, through the efforts of Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, $250,000 in federal funds was appropriated for the study.

McCauley has asked Leo J. Kelly to chair the eight-member committee.

Kelly, of 143 Spring St., Quincy, is a former Ward 1 City Councillor and a long time advocate of the clean up of Quincy Bay.

The following area citizens have agreed to serve on the committee:

Rosemary Coffey, 76 Hawthorne Rd., Braintree, representing Cong. Brian Donnelly's office.

Walter Hurley, 80 Norton Rd., Quincy, owner of Hurley's Boat Rental in Houghs Neck.

Raymond Connelly, 94 Dixwell Ave., Quincy, a master shellfish digger.

Donald Riley, 11 Arnold Rd., Quincy, a Quincy police lieutenant, avid boatman and former commodore of the Squantum Yacht Club.

Mrs. Maureen Mazzima, 49 Bayberry Rd., Quincy, active with Save Our Shores.

Paul Donnelly, 24 Bayview St., Quincy, former owner of Paul's Bait and Tackle Shop.

Quincy, an avid sports fisherman and conservationist.

M. Jane Gallahue, Commissioner of Public Health for the city of Quincy.

Heather Sargent, the city's Conservation Enforcement Officer, who will serve as staff liaison for other city departments.

Kelly will plan the initial meeting over the next week. The study is scheduled for early summer.

Montclair Men's Club Opposes Subdivision Plan

The executive board of the Montclair Men's Club voted unanimously recently to oppose a preliminary subdivision plan in the Montclair Marshes.

The vote came at an emergency meeting called by president Stanley Kovalski, Jr., to discuss the application and agreement for the plan entitled, Harriet Ave. Extension.

The property, zoned Business C, would need the accessibility of Harriet Ave., Vershire and Ardell Sts., zoned Residence A, to make traffic feasible, according to the men's club board.

"Many other streets in Montclair already burdened with heavy traffic, excessive speeding and poor lighting would also be affected," board members stated.

"The developer presumably knows that much of the land is below elevation 11-feet and therefore necessitates filling, and then only subject to approval by the Conservation Committee," stated board members.

The first public hearing will be held before the Quincy Planning Board, according to the men's club.

Ward 3 Councillor John J. Lydon, Jr., has said he will notify residents of the hearing date, reports the club, which urges citizens to attend the meeting.

Wollaston Beach Clean-up Saturday

Metro Parks will hold its annual Wollaston Beach Reservation clean-up Saturday, April 25 starting 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Caddy Park.

Free T-shirts and refreshments will be offered courtesy of McDonald's of Quincy, Nostalgia Restaurant and Tony's Wollaston Clam Shop.

The event is co-sponsored by Save Our Shores, Rep.

Michael Morrissey, Rep. Thomas Brownell, Senator Paul Harold and local officials.

Raindate will be Saturday, May 2 at 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

For more information and to confirm participation call the Metropolitan District Commission Office of Public Affairs at 727-5033 or the Wollaston Beach Reservation Office at 727-5293.

Meeting April 29 For Wollaston School Parents

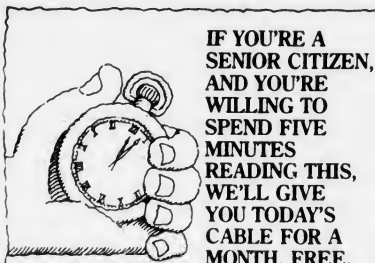

Elizabeth Bostrom, principal of the Wollaston School, will hold a meeting Wednesday, April 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the Learning Center at Central Middle School.

The meeting is for all parents who have children who will be attending the Wollaston School in September, 1987.

Parents will be provided an update on the progress of the school and will be given an opportunity to discuss concerns.

Reward Fund Established For Arrest Of Quincy Woman's Murderer

Friends have organized a reward fund for information leading to the arrest of the person who murdered Lois Quintiliani Damon of Quincy four months ago.

Mrs. Damon was slain Dec. 14 after opening up the Braintree Dairy Mart on Hayward St., Braintree which she owned with her husband, William.

He ordinarily would have opened the store that morning but was ill at home.

Monday night, more than 100 of Mrs. Damon's friends met at the Common Market Restaurant, West Quincy, to establish the reward fund for information leading to the arrest and or conviction of the murderer.

"The turn out was unbelievable," said Jack McDonald, owner of the Common Market, who originated the reward fund. "We had many business owners, former classmates of Lois', friends of her family and just plain concerned and caring people."

"Our intention is to raise $100,000 in pledges by Mothers' Day. There will be volunteers contacting businesses and organizations on the South Shore and on Mothers' Day we plan to have volunteers at all of the area churches and synagogues to obtain pledges. We still need help so anyone interested in working with us on the pledge fund drive can call 472-5492."

McDonald emphasized that his group is raising the reward fund pledges only. No money will be collected until the arrest and or conviction of the person or persons responsible for this crime. Any information concerning the homicide should be reported to the Braintree Police at 843-1212 or to the Norfolk County District Attorney's office at 329-5440, both of whom are fully knowledgeable of this endeavor and who are lending their support to this cooperative effort.

Pledges may be made to: Lois Quintiliani Damon Pledge Fund, P.O. Box 7386, Quincy, MA. 02169.

Fire Hydrant Testing To Start April 27

Fire Chief Carl V. Valenti announces the Quincy Fire Department will start its annual hydrant testing program, under the direction of the Training Division, Monday, April 27.

Hours of testing will be 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Hydrant testing will take place in all sections of the city at the same time.

During testing of the hydrants, residents may experience some discoloration in their water, according to Valenti. The water is not harmful to drink or use, he said, but should be checked before washing machines are used.

Persons experiencing discoloration of their water are requested to flush their water systems by opening their cold water faucet for a few minutes, then waiting approximately one hour, said Valenti. If the water does not clear up, repeat the flushing procedure, he said.

Chief Valenti estimates that this hydrant testing will take approximately four weeks to complete.

Harold Bill Would Make Veterans Day Full Legal Holiday

A number of Quincy veterans testified before the Legislative Committee on Commerce and Labor in support of a bill filed by State Senator Paul D. Harold, D-Quincy, and Robert Manning, past commander of the Bryan VFW Post, to restore Veterans Day to a full legal holiday.

Harold noted that Veterans Day was originally a full holiday, and that only when it was changed to a Monday holiday several years ago was its full importance diminished. Retail and other businesses now operate on Veterans Day.

"Since then, both the state and federal laws have restored Veterans Day to the 11th day of the 11th month, as originally intended," Harold noted. "This legislation would mark the final step in restoring Veterans Day to full holiday status."

Besides Manning, other veterans testifying in favor of the bill included Leo Reardon and Joseph Sullivan of the VFW, David Lawson of the Vietnam Veterans and Joseph Walsh of the World War I Veterans.

Walsh noted that the holiday was originally known as Armistice Day, intended to honor World War I veterans and celebrate the end of hostilities.

Are The Gloves Coming Off?

The gloves could come off early in this year's mayoral race between incumbent Frank McCauley and challenger Joseph LaRaia.

The campaign may not get as bitter as the slugging match between Walter Hannon and LaRaia in 1975 or the brawl between Arthur Tobin and LaRaia in 1977.

LaRaia broke even in those two fights: He ousted Hannon by 483 votes on a recount and in turn was ousted by Tobin by a 5,050 margin in a campaign in which scandal was the major issue.

Now LaRaia is on the offense against McCauley and the latter may be getting ready to start mixing it up.

TOBIN

LaRAIA

McCauley was noticeably irritated by LaRaia when the latter criticized him for requesting that $610,000 from unspent money in this year's budget be placed in a reserve for emergency purposes.

"What we're doing," LaRaia said, "is being asked to budget for a $610,000 blank check."

LaRaia then continued: "I think they (the McCauley administration) has been derelict in their responsibility in city government. This is just a quick, short-circuited mechanism to hide the inefficiency of what we think are well managed administration monies in the government of the City of Quincy. It's just an easy way to get passage over a hopefully docile City Council."

McCauley isn't letting that one go by.

"Placing that money in a reserve fund is perfectly legal," he says. "Something could come up in the last three months and we might need it."

"It is not a blank check and even if I was to spend that money, I couldn't without the approval of the City Council."

"We've done the same thing the last three years and he (LaRaia) voted for it. Either he is playing politics with it now or he doesn't understand it. And, if he doesn't understand it, he has wasted 20 years in City Hall."

LaRaia's charge that the McCauley administration "has been derelict in their responsibility to city government," apparently was taken as fighting words by McCauley.

"Issues are issues," he says. "I don't plan to react to him everytime he says something. I'm not going to play his game."

"But, you know what they say about people who live in glass houses. And there's a lot of glass there."

McCauley apparently is ready for battle.

LA RAI'S CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE is headed up by long-time supporter James Eddy as Coordinator. Denise Lord, his sister-in-law, is treasurer and Bryan Van Riper, field director.

Atty. Neil Kerstein is committee counsel and Marie Dorgan, campaign director.

McCAULEY

And, Franklin Jay, who McCauley did not reappoint as city treasurer-tax collector, has joined the LaRaia camp as senior citizen coordinator.

MICHAEL CONDON says don't believe all that speculation that he might not run for City Council at-large.

"I'm definitely going to run," he says. "I will be making an official announcement by the end of the month."

Condon, the 27-year-old son of former Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon who ran for mayor two years ago, says the speculation he might not be a candidate may have arisen from the fact that he has been busy with personal and business matters.

He is preparing to pass papers on a house on Elm St. Quincy Center. And his limousine and taxi business suddenly took off.

But he has now caught up to the business and has continued attending City Council meetings. Hasn't missed one since the first of the year, he says.

Now he is ready to make his announcement and run "When I go," he says, "I'll go full-time."

RETIRED QUINCY POLICE Capt. Frank Valher who died the other day at age 79, fought a long, courageous battle against an illness that had the odds in its favor.

Frank was a personal friend going back to the late 1940's when I was a young police reporter for the Ledger and he was a desk sergeant at the Quincy police station.

He was like a den mother to the press corps -- reporters from the Ledger, the Globe, Herald Traveler and Post -- who covered the station.

He made sure all of us got the information on anything of news value. "I don't want you guys scooping one another," he would say.

But while a friend, he was still a true cop. He never told us things that would harm an investigation.

He had all our home phone numbers and whenever there was a two-alarm fire he'd call each of us with the message, "Rise and shine."

One night he called me about 1 a.m. for a two-bagger at a North Quincy cafe. I covered it, went home, got back in bed and fell asleep.

About an hour or two later, the phone rang again. It was Frank again. Another two-bagger, this time at the home of former mayor Joseph Whiton.

"What, again?" I moaned.

"Well," he said, "you wanted to be a news reporter."

Frank had a pool at his West Quincy home and extended an open invitation to the kids in the neighborhood to swim in it. He didn't want them swimming in the dangerous quarries.

He loved his family -- especially the grandchildren.

On their birthdays, he would take them out to eat and told them they could order anything they wanted. Sometimes it was hamburgers or pizza.

But one of them, on his eighth birthday said, "I'll have two lobsters."

Frank laughed -- and ordered them.

He was one of those nice guys that just don't come along too often. He will be missed by a lot of people. A lot besides me.

School Should Be Students' 'Home Away From Home' Says Atherton Hough Teacher

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

One of the reasons Ann De Yeso Pegg decided to become a teacher was that she wanted to make learning in school more than what she had experienced as a student.

"I didn't feel important as an individual in the classroom," said the Atherton Hough third grade teacher.

"I remember not opening my mouth because I was afraid I would be wrong," she said.

I can't remember fear as being conducive to learning. You have to feel respected as a human being for learning to take place."

School should be a child's "home away from home," according to Mrs. Pegg, who received national recognition in 1971 for her teaching of economics.

"It should be a safe, nurturing environment, stimulating for learning, where children are encouraged to develop their own ideas and sense of self," she said.

"It should be safe for them to make mistakes without losing their self esteem."

She is particularly enjoying her class of seven, eight and nine year olds this year, she said.

"They are enthusiastic, creative, and enjoy learning and the challenge of solving problems," said Mrs. Pegg. "They are becoming very good thinkers. They articulate problems, and go about solving them."

"They take ideas another step farther, and they have fun learning."

"No one ever said that learning couldn't be fun," said Mrs. Pegg.

Many of her lessons are "experiential," she said.

For example, the class will focus on conservation in March and will visit some of Quincy's marshes instead of just reading about them.

Students will also discuss society's needs versus nature's needs, she said.

"These are decisions they will be making as voters when they are adults," she noted.

Another activity planned for March, she said, is the observance of National Women's History Month on the theme, Inspiring Women.

Students will do such things as interview their mothers and grandmothers, thereby touching on such subjects as social studies and geography as well as adding to their own personal history, said Mrs. Pegg.

They will also draw a portrait of their mother or grandmother, she said.

She has received positive feedback on the project in the past.

"There are always four or five children who didn't know the color of their mother's eyes," noted Mrs. Pegg.

"Many times, parents and children don't get the time to talk, share and listen."

"Parents love it. One woman told me, 'I feel so valued as a mother, recognized for what I've done,'" she said.

Mrs. Pegg was one of five Quincy teachers honored at the State House by Kitty Dukakis, wife of the governor, for their Women in History curriculum development in March, 1986, during Women's History Week.

At the end of a school day, Mrs. Pegg goes home to her own children, Ian, 3, and Amanda, 8. Her husband, William, is a resident at Beth Israel Hospital.

"It's very, very hard to be with children all day, and come home to your own children," she said.

"Sometimes, I feel I have nothing left. Being a parent is much harder than teaching."

"But I try to leave the dishes in the sink, and spend time with the kids," said Mrs. Pegg.

She noted that she learns a lot about being a parent which she brings to the classroom, and vice versa.

"I've learned how to set limits in school, and I bring that home," said Mrs. Pegg.

"In a classroom with 18 youngsters for six hours, you have to have control so that there can be a learning experience."

"I see a lot of evidence that parents are not setting limits at home, though much less so this year."

"Being a parent has helped me as a teacher to have more understanding as to what an 8-year-old is. Sometimes, we have unreal expectations."

"Children are children; they're not little adults."

Mrs. Pegg started out 20 years ago as a special education teacher in Quincy.

"I felt I had something to offer the students," she said.

"I had a lot of patience and enthusiasm."

For five years, she taught in a special needs classroom.

After Chapter 766 was enacted, many of the children were placed in regular classrooms, she said. She taught them only certain hours of the day, and travelled from school to school or was based in a resource room.

"It was very frustrating for me," she said, "to just see pieces of the child, so to speak."

When she began teaching regular classes, "it was renewal for me, refreshing," she said. "Then I had the whole child to work with."

No matter what the type of classroom, Mrs. Pegg tries to get across one thing to her students.

"Everyone is a unique individual who is important to society, to their family and to themselves," she said.

(Editor's note: Ann DeYeso Pegg was selected for a teacher profile by a panel from the Quincy Education Association for her work as a professional educator and an involved community person.)

Panelists are Deanna White-Herbert, Snug Harbor School; Paul Phillips, North Quincy High School; Jack Buckley, president, Central Middle School; Thomas Walsh, Quincy High School; and Mary Curtin, Atherton Hough School.

Teacher Profiles will continue in The Quincy Sun.)

Lasagne Learning Something New

That old cliché "You learn something new every day" certainly held true for me this past Easter.

For one thing, I remembered something I hadn't done for a long time when preparing lasagne that my sister-in-law Anita reminded me of. And that is when preparing lasagne, bake them for about 15 minutes in a preheated 350 degree oven.

This procedure lets them set. Refrigerate them when cooled and when you go to bake them again (whether it's a day later or four hours later) they will cut into a perfect square. Everyone knows that when you cook lasagne and then try to cut them into portions, they usually fall apart somewhat, right?

Anyway, the day before, I prepared the lasagne and then prebaked them for about 15 minutes. Then on Easter Sunday, I poured some more tomato sauce over them and then baked them in a 350 degree oven until they were done, (about 30-35 minutes). Absolutely perfect squares!

The other thing I learned from a niece of mine, also called Anita who told me that a friend of hers bastes ham with just plain apple juice instead of the usual pineapple, cloves and cherries. So I tried that and she was right! The ham had a glaze over it almost like a taffy apple. And the flavor was super! I cooked an 8½ pound ham and then kept basting it with about a quart of apple juice. The results were tasty, tender and delicious.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Anybody every take a verbal crack at you? Sure, they have! Each of us has had his turn on the receiving end of criticism. And it can really hurt, too. So, one thing is sure... we must learn to handle criticism. Some people make faultfinding a way of life. They continually criticize everyone and everything. At the same time others are not so open. They criticize via the telephone or over a coffee cup. Either way it's easy; harsh faultfinding requires neither training nor much common sense.

Yet there is a kindly way to criticize as opposed to a cutting, cruel way. There is a place for criticism if it is done with kindness and sincerity. Friends do not criticize; They give suggestions in a gentle, tactful way. If they are harsh and hostile in their remarks... are they really friends?

When criticism reaches us we can (1) Evaluate the criticism as to whether it's true or false. (2) Consider who said it. Is the person one we respect and an honest critic. (3) Evaluate the motivation. An honest critic is to be respected if he is not personal or vicious. As to the other kind... simply write him off. What he says is of no importance! ...

Drug Information Line In Use

Several months ago, I told you about a Drug Information Line that the Quincy Police were planning to put into use.

Beginning this week, the drug line will be open for public use.

Purpose of the Drug Hot Line is to gather information on illegal drug use and drug trafficking in the City of Quincy. With the assistance of this information, our Narcotic Officers will be able to set up more productive investigations and surveillances.

The Drug Information Line is a 24-hour-number and will be staffed by professional Quincy Police Narcotics Officers. If a narcotics officer is not available, you will reach an answering machine on which you can leave a message.

The Drug Information Line can also be used for people that need information concerning drug use. This could be used by parents who may suspect one of their children is using drugs and may want to know the signs and symptoms of someone using a particular drug.

If you have any information on illegal drug use, please call 328-4527. As always, you will not be required to identify yourself.

If you have information on a drug deal that may be happening in your presence, try to get as much information as you can, description of vehicles, license plate numbers and description of those involved, and call 911 for immediate police action.

DO NOT ATTEMPT TO TAKE ANY ACTION ON YOUR OWN.

Cancer Crusade House To House Campaign Starts April 21

American Cancer Society volunteers in Quincy will be offering their neighbors a lifesaving weapon against breast cancer from April 21 through April 28, according to Thomas P. Koch, House-to-House Crusade Chairman for the community.

"Mammography is a breast x-ray that can detect a cancer before the hand can feel it," Thomas P. Koch said. "During the American Cancer Society's House-to-House Crusade in April, more than 600 volunteers in Quincy will bring their neighbors information about mammography, and tell them how to get a low-cost mammogram through the American Cancer Society."

Volunteers will give their neighbors a toll-free number to call to see if they qualify for a low-cost mammogram at one of more than 100 participating hospitals and care centers in Massachusetts, Thomas P. Koch said. Men will be encouraged to share the information with the women in their lives.

"Volunteers will also ask for a tax-deductible contribution to support the American Cancer Society's cancer control effort," P.

Koch said. "The Society's research, education, and patient service programs directly benefit the citizens of Quincy."

Women over 35 years old who have never had a mammogram, and who are not pregnant or nursing, qualify to receive a mammogram through the American Cancer Society at a cost of no more than $50, Koch said. When a woman calls the mammography hotline, a volunteer will determine her eligibility and send her information on scheduling an appointment, he said. Appointments will take place May 11-22.

"Because of the lifesaving potential of mammography, I urge all the residents of Quincy to ask their local American Cancer Society volunteer about obtaining a low-cost mammogram, and to give generously to the American Cancer Society," Koch said.

Kevin Burke Candidate For Ward 5 Council Seat

Atty. Kevin M. Burke announces his candidacy for the Ward 5 City Council seat.

He made the announcement Tuesday before a group of supporters in his law office at 339 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Burke noted the importance of the election.

"The people of Wollaston deserve a well qualified and accessible councillor," he said. "The Ward 5 seat carries with it a long and impressive tradition. It is important that the people of Ward 5 continue to be represented by an effective councillor who can articulate, promote, and secure the interests of Ward 5."

Burke received a Bachelor of Arts in economics with high honors from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. As a junior at the university, he was selected into Phi Beta Kappa, the national academic honor society established in 1776. During his academic studies, Burke served as a tutor in the economics department and was active in a number of university related activities. He was also selected as an Alumni Scholar in recognition of his outstanding academic achievement.

After college, Burke worked as a law clerk in the Law Office of George G. Burke. He went on to attend Boston College Law School. He was graduated cum laude and served on the Board of Student Advisors for the law school. During law school Burke also worked in the office of the Atty. Gen. for Francis N. Bellotti. Burke currently practices law in Quincy and maintains an office at 339 Hancock St.

Burke, who is 27, lives at 97 Willow Ave. with his wife, Judith Geraghty. She is a graduate of Boston College School of Nursing.

"As a husband, homeowner, and taxpayer," Burke said, "I am committed to working very hard to preserve the high quality of our neighborhoods. Historically, Quincy has been a city of neighborhoods. Safe affordable housing for all the people of Quincy is what makes and will continue to make Quincy an attractive place to live. The quality of our neighborhoods also directly affects the quality of our business and work environment, something that is important to all of us who work and live in Quincy."

"Maintaining the high quality of Ward 5 as we know it is a top priority. I will work hard to continue to make Quincy a place where all of us are proud to raise a family. That means insuring that our streets are safe and clean. We must insure that snow and rubbish removal is carried out in a timely and effective manner. Part of preserving and enhancing the quality of life in Quincy involves controlling growth and development in the city while insuring that the city is fiscally stable."

"We must also deal with the issues that face the city of Quincy in general and impact on Ward 5 in particular. For example, we need to work closely with our local, state, and federal agencies to clean Quincy Bay and find an adequate solution to the problems posed by the Quincy landfill.

"In dealing with the problems that face the city we must draw upon every resource we have, including our senior citizens who have done so much to make Quincy a great city and can provide valuable insights into how to deal with the problems that face the city. Our senior citizens deserve to be respected and involved in shaping the future of the city. We must also be careful to be sensitive to the needs of our senior citizens."

Burke outlined his commitment to education as follows:

"As a product of public education I am deeply interested in assuring that the youth of Quincy receive a first class education close to home. I applaud the opening of the Wollaston School. In addition, I strongly support the park and recreation programs that we have here in Quincy. These programs are critical in helping our children to develop personal skills and to become good citizens."

"The qualifications and effectiveness of the next Ward 5 councillor will be critical in determining the future of Ward 5. I believe that I am a good listener and that I would exercise good judgement as a city councillor. As an attorney, I have been trained to advocate and safeguard the interests of the people I represent. I believe that I am a well qualified voice for Ward 5. I look forward to working with the people of Ward 5 and would enthusiastically accept the responsibility of representing Ward 5 on the Quincy City Council."

Burke, who is active in the community and has spoken at a number of functions and meetings, said he looks forward to a positive race.

Scripture readers will be Corinne Mikami in the chapel and Robert Mitchell in the sanctuary. The Rev. Joel I. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist at both services.

The chancel choir, under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will sing as the anthem, "The Strife Is Over" by Helder, and as the offertory "Holy, Holy, Holy" by Lucas Lossius.

The sacrament of Christian Baptism will be administered to Corie Lynne Williams, daughter of Gregory S. Williams and Diane (Banks) Williams. The Godparents will be Thomas Banks, Sandra Connolly and Carol Manganaro.

The 10 a.m. service will be broadcast "live" direct from Bethany's sanctuary, over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

A nursery, for children aged five and under, is available and will be supervised by Mrs. Lynn White. Mrs. Linda Day will lead junior church.

Today's groom buys family cedar chest

Real men don't eat quiche, take aerobic classes or buy cedar chests, right? Wrong. Cedar chests are not for women only.

This year, as Lane Cedar Chest celebrates its 75th anniversary, the company takes special pride in the traditional function and contemporary versatility of the cedar chest. With 100 styles in several different woods and finishes, a number of Lane cedar chests are as masculine as others are feminine.

Although its customary appeal as a safe home for keepsakes and heirlooms will never be obsolete, the cedar chest of the '80s serves many purposes for men and women.

"The appeal of the cedar chest as a gift item for newlyweds and graduates will always be our most cherished market. After all, it's this group that has helped bring the Lane Company to its 75th anniversary," explained Linda Dalton, Lane consumer specialist.

"In today's tight living quarters, many young couples need camouflaged storage space and that's where our new styles fit in," Dalton said.

The foyer chest, in cherry, oak, mahogany or pine, acts as a handsome entrance way table for keys, mail and messages with an added advantage of storage space below for sweaters, linens or any special items.

Accompanying mirrors available with the foyer chests add a number of decorating possibilities. In an entrance way, the mirror is useful for grooming and freshening up before leaving the house and, for smaller residences, a mirror is always helpful in creating the illusion of more space, most appealing for those in cramped quarters.

Lane's new Cache Collection of cedar chests was designed specifically to appeal to urban dwellers who never have enough closet space. The cache is a small cedar chest that can serve as a night stand, end table or accent piece.

AN ATTRACTIVE ADDITION to any room or entrance way, this foyer cedar chest, from Lane, is equipped to accommodate pretty accessories or everyday mail and messages on top, and below there is ample space to conceal and safely store winter blankets and sweaters. Lane cedar chests are available in over 100 styles and in a variety of woods and finishes, ranging from country pine to traditional cherry.

This chest is especially nice, next to a sleep sofa, disguised as an end table and used to store blankets or pillows. Perfect for a studio apartment or in a den that doubles as a guest room.

Lane cedar chests are attractive and functional additions to any room in any home. With a wide range of styles, from country to traditional to contemporary, the options for use are many.

For a brochure on available cedar chests, send 50 cents to the Lane Company, Dept. MA 86, Altavista, VA 24517-0151.

Wedding cakes make a personal statement

Delicate colors, ribbons, intricate ornamentation, and icing flowers and flourishes are the new tradition in American wedding cakes. This elegant "Victoriana" wedding cake is a far cry from the first American "spice" wedding cakes that were heavy with dried fruits and laced with brandy and liquor.

Gone are the days when a young woman baked her cake before she had even met her groom to display her culinary gifts. Today's bride, after she's met the groom, can still make her wedding cake choice a personal expression.

Reception focal point

With the wide variety of products and ideas available today, she can create a cake worthy of being a focal point of her reception.

A bride sometimes chooses a wedding ornament to top the cake first, then creates the cake or has it designed to accent it.

The "Victorian Charm" cake topper, shown here, is just one of the many possibilities from Wilton Enterprises, a leading supplier to home and commercial bakers. It is available in a variety of colors — blue, ivory, lilac, pink or white — to match the color scheme.

Wilton's special publications are also a good resource for other cake designs and decorating ideas.

The Victoriana cake is made using 8, 12 and 16-inch round pans, Corinthian pillars, cake separator plates and bells. The cake, with the top layer frozen for the first wedding anniversary, serves 155 guests.

Advance preparation

For those who would like to create a special wedding cake, the cake layers can be baked up to a month ahead and frozen until it's time to ice and decorate. But plan to do the final assembly of the tiered cake at the reception site.

A wife is a gift bestowed upon a man to reconcile him to the loss of paradise.

— Goethe

*Look down, you gods,
And on this couple drop a blessed crown*

RIBBONS, BELLS, scrolls and roses decorate this Victoriana wedding cake designed by Wilton.

The 1987 Yearbook costs $3.99 and is available at local department and discount stores, cake decorating shops, or directly from Wilton Enterprises, Woodridge, IL 60517. It contains complete instructions for baking and decorating the Victoriana and many other wedding cakes.

The bride will enjoy karat gold jewelry on her wedding day and for years to come

Something old, something new... so the saying goes. Traditionally, the things a bride wears on her wedding day have special meaning, whether a gift from her husband-to-be, borrowed from a friend or a family heirloom. However, her trousseau wouldn't be complete without the one item that will stay with her throughout her married life: Karat gold jewelry.

An expression of the way she feels about herself on her wedding day, karat gold jewelry is as feminine and radiates as much warmth and beauty as the bride does. The gold she wears gains sentimental value over the years and is a constant reminder of one of the happiest moments in her life.

Just as dainty as the hand-sewn details on her flowing bridal gown are any number of delicately styled items in real gold. For a bride who favors Victoriana and is ultra-romantic, a beautiful locket engraved with swirling patterns is the perfect encasement for a wedding day portrait. To coordinate, a variety of feminine dainty earrings with dangling pearl accents emulates the lacy trim on her bridal gown. An undulating gold rattle cuff or pretty floral cut-out gold bracelet completes this look.

For the bride who prefers to be more tailored, a classic pair of gold earrings in oversized paisley, twist or close-to-the-ear hoop designs would add a touch of glamour to her sleek wedding day suit. Also elegant and fashionable are any number of fancy link chain necklaces and bracelets worn singly or in mixed styles, depending on the desired effect.

Always the first with the latest, the bride who wants to make a grand entrance opts for bold gold accents. A body-conscious as her curvaceous wedding dress, she dares to wear jewelry expressive of her individual flair.

Her one-of-a-kind look could include a striking tubular gold collar dotted with brightly colored semi-precious stones and bold gold earrings that contain the car. Depending on her gown, she might also choose to wear a smashing stack of gold bangles, each illuminated with playful enamel patterns.

Just as much a part of a wedding day look are the rings the bride and groom will exchange. Usually in 14 or 18 karat gold, there is a myriad of styles available, complementary to any look or personal style. Oftentimes couples choose individual rings while others opt for matching ring sets.

For the romantic at heart, there are delicate, lacy bands, perhaps a swirling paisley design or floral cut-out motif.

Geared for the traditional couple are the classic ridge, chevron or new tri-color braided bands that can be worn stacked for a bold look.

For the experimental, fashion-forward couple, there are free-form sculpted shapes in gold, mixing sandblasted and highly polished surfaces, achieving a modern look.

Both bride and groom deserve to look and wear the very best on their once in a lifetime day. Whether a self-treat or wedding day surprise, real gold jewelry is the ultimate expression of love and personal style. It's the one everlasting memento that truly reflects a couple's hopes and dreams to strive for the very best in life together.

THE GOLD JEWELRY A BRIDE WEARS has special sentimental value, the memories of which will last a lifetime. Reflective of the way that she feels about herself, her gold radiates beauty and warmth, adding more sparkle to her wedding day glow. Shown here: 18K swirl necklace and earrings by Janet Gabriel; 18K paisley wedding band by Michael Bondanza; Wedding dress by Angela Cakiades; headpiece by Janine Galimard.

Voted best: Great honeymoon hotels for every taste

Here is a guide to top-value honeymoons at fine hotels and resorts in this country and the Caribbean. They were voted great honeymoon sites in a recent poll of newly marrieds, as well as by happily marrieds on second honeymoons.

Many couples prefer to spend a night in the city rather than travel after the fatigue and excitement of a wedding or anniversary celebration.

Fairmont Hotels specialize in romantic overnights for honeymoons or anniversaries with deluxe accommodations, champagne on arrival, and room-service full breakfasts in-bed next morning.

The Fairmont Hotel in New Orleans is the model on which Arthur Hailey based his novel, Hotel, and the Fairmont in San Francisco is seen in the television version.

Rates vary with the city. In San Francisco, $177; in Dallas, $170; in Denver, $150; and in New Orleans, $150—all including taxes and gratuities except for baggage handling. Suites are available, of course, as well as extra nights if desired. For reservations, call any Fairmont Hotel toll free 800-527-4727.

Renowned as the most beautiful resorts in Puerto Rico are Hyatt Hotels, 35 minutes from San Juan Airport in Dorado, on the north shore.

The Hyatt Regency Cerromar Beach has spacious rooms with private balconies overlooking the world's most unique swimming pool and the ocean.

A sister hotel, the Hyatt Dorado Beach, is two miles away with its own private beach fronting the Atlantic and two swimming pools.

Originally a playground for the Rockefeller, this resort offers small clusters of deluxe accommodations with private patios or balconies.

Complimentary shuttle service connects the hotels, and guests have use of dining and recreation facilities at both. There are four Robert Trent Jones golf courses, 21 tennis courts, miles of bicycle paths, a fitness center, two casinos, numerous restaurants, plus a supper club with show and dancing, and a disco.

Each hotel has an all-inclusive honeymoon package with rates variable depending on time of year and length of stay. From late April through mid-December, these hotels are exceptional values. For reservations, call Hyatt Worldwide Reservations at 800-228-9000.

NEW ADDITIONS for this winter season to the spectacular $110-million Hyatt Regency Grand Cypress resort hotel include more Jack Nicklaus golf than any other place in the world, an Audubon center and nature walk, a helipad for those who fly their own copters, and more.

The Hyatt Regency Grand Cypress in Orlando is for active honeymooners who enjoy luxury with their sports and recreation. Invitations to play abound throughout the lush 1,500 acres.

There is more Jack Nicklaus-designed golf than anywhere in the world, 11 tennis courts in a country club setting, free-form swimming pool with waterfalls and jacuzzis, jogging, biking trails, sailing on a 21-acre lake, health club, and a nature walk through an Audubon preserve.

In Spring '87 an equestrian center opens with 58 stalls, an indoor show ring and riding trails throughout the resort.

The "Spirit of Romance" package is $585, with three nights four days suite accommodations, champagne on arrival, breakfast in bed on morning of choice, and many sports and recreation facilities.

For reservations call 800-228-9000.

On Grand Cayman Island, in the British West Indies, the newest Hyatt Regency is a watersports paradise. The island's crystal-clear water and accessible coral reefs offer some of the world's best snorkeling and diving.

The hotel features luxurious rooms with private balconies, a huge, one-third acre swimming pool with swim up bar; a Jack Nicklaus-designed golf course; fitness trail; two hard-surface tennis courts; and three restaurants.

A short walk away is a private beach club on famed Seven Mile Beach, with a second swimming pool and a full selection of watersports.

The Hyatt Regency Grand Cayman offers two different four-day three-night honeymoon packages. The first provides flowers and champagne on arrival and a candlelight dinner with wine.

Through April 19, 1987 the honeymoon package is $791 per couple; from April 20 through December 18, 1987, it is $636.

For experienced divers, another package includes three supervised dives, unlimited off-shore diving equipment, underwater treasure hunt, plus welcome cocktail and full American breakfast daily. Price per couple is $798 (or $684 if one person is a non-diver), through April 19, 1987.

For information and reservations call Hyatt Worldwide Reservations toll free at 800-228-9000.

For ski buffs looking for a New England honeymoon getaway, The Orchards in Williamstown, Mass., is an English-style inn in the picturesque Berkshire Mountains.

RIBBON OF $5 and $10 bills is cut by City Councillor Patricia Toland to officially open the Quincy Cooperative Bank sponsored "Bank of The Presidents" at Quincy High school and Vocational Technical School. NAME WINNERS -- Ronald McKee, president of Quincy Cooperative Bank, presents $50 savings bonds to Richard Smith and Christine Cedrone who came up with the winning name "The Bank of Presidents" in a contest to name the new facility.

Bank Of Presidents Opens At Quincy High, Vo-Tech

After months of preparation, Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational-Technical School have their own bank - The Bank of The Presidents.

Its location on the bridge, which connects the schools, is easily accessible to both schools, as well as the nearby Quincy School administration building.

The bank is an educational branch facility of The Quincy Co-operative Bank, which is operated jointly by the bank and the Business Education Department at Quincy High School.

With the assistance of a bank manager, student tellers provide a full range of banking services to the school community. The office is open while school is in session Tuesday, Thursday and Friday during lunch hours (10:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.).

In addition to the student tellers, many other students have participated in this unusual project. Earlier in the year the students held a contest to name the bank. Christine Cedrone and Richard Smith, the students who provided the winning entry, each received a $50 savings bond from the bank.

Students from Quincy

Vocational-Technical School have worked since the fall transforming an empty classroom into an attractive banking facility. Autobody students repainted the safe, while the General Woods students built and installed custom teller counters, framed and finished the bank's interior.

Students from the Electrical Department installed the lighting fixtures and electrical outlets. Graphic Arts students designed and printed stationery, invitations and signs for the bank. The Culinary Arts students planned and prepared the refreshments which were served at the Ribbon Cutting Ceremony on April 16th.

Several businesses made generous donations of fixtures and furnishings to the branch, including Action Safe Company, Kent's Carpetland, and Corporate Interiors.

A ribbon of $5 and $10 bills was cut by Councillor Patricia Toland to celebrate the official opening of The Bank of The Presidents.

Assisting Toland with the ribbon cutting were Joseph Mazzarella, principal, Quincy Vocational-Technical School; Lloyd Hill, principal, Quincy

High School; Marie Lynch, chairman, Business Education Department; Mary Diggins, Banking Instructor; Ronald McKee, president, Quincy Co-operative Bank; John Sullivan, chairman of the board, Quincy Co-operative Bank; John Osterman, superintendent, Quincy Public Schools.

The ribbon of bills was donated to the Quincy High-School Vo-Tech Chapter of SADD - Students Against Driving Drunk.

Ronald A. McKee, president of the Quincy Co-operative Bank said, "We, at The Quincy Co-operative Bank, take pride in our long term involvement with the city of Quincy and its school system. This cooperative effort, in developing and maintaining a banking studies program, proves that the public and private sector can work hand in hand in improving the educational process. We will all benefit by such cooperation and we should all continue to strive for it." Mr. McKee also stated "We thank all those who assisted in this project and urge other business leaders to also get involved in similar worthwhile educational programs"

This course, like the one currently concluding, will be an Intermediate Level course. It will be most useful for students who already have a basic knowledge of the English language, but who need help in improving their language skills.

The course will be taught Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings from May 4 through July 3. Class hours are 9 a.m. to 12 noon. The course is open to all refugees and immigrants interested in improving their language skills. A fee of $59 will cover all expenses.

Persons interested in more information about the new course should call Sharon Evans at Urbanistics Human Services Foundation at 843-5507.

The committee also approved a suggestion proposed by Maria Leung that it sponsor an August Moon Folk Festival. The date of Aug. 2 was approved.

The August Moon Festival

would entail an outdoor display of Asian food, crafts, and cultural exhibits, together with tables staffed with bilingual persons to help explain the various services offered the Asian community in Quincy. The suggestion was made that the festival be held along Hancock St. in front of Wollaston Lutheran Church and the Tenno house.

To date no word has been received regarding the Committee's proposal to the State Office for Children for a grant for the planning and development of an after school day care program. It is anticipated that notice on the proposal will be received by the time of the Committee's May meeting, set Thursday, May 7 at 7:30 p.m., at Wollaston Lutheran Church, 550 Hancock St.

Quincy Bats Come Alive

After dropping a 7-1 decision to Arlington, Quincy High baseball team's bats came alive last week to defeat Everett, 16-9, and improve its record to 2-2.

The Presidents were scheduled to play Medford Tuesday, played at Peabody yesterday (Wednesday), will host Revere Friday at 10:30 at Adams Field and will open the Suburban League season Monday against North Quincy at Adams.

Dan Biagini had a big day against Everett as he had two triples and a single and drove in four runs. He and Tom Logan blasted back-to-back triples in an eight-run fifth inning as Quincy overcame a 6-4 deficit.

Sean Thompson and Nick Dragone had two hits each and Wayne Chambers was the winning pitcher with three innings of three-hit relief.

North Drops 3rd In Row

After winning its opener, the North Quincy High baseball team has dropped three straight non-league decisions.

Last week the Raiders lost to Everett, 5-1, and were walloped by Malden, 12-3. North was scheduled to play Peabody Tuesday, met Revere yesterday (Wednesday), will be at Somerville Friday for a 10:30 game and will open the Suburban League Monday against Quincy at Adams Field.

The Raiders tied Everett, 1-1, in the fourth inning when Billy McDougal walked, stole second, advanced to third on a sacrifice fly by Mark DiMattio and scored on a wild pitch. However, Everett scored three times in the fifth to clinch the victory.

McDougal pitched all the way for North Quincy, giving up eight hits and striking out six.

First Ladies Rally But In Vain

The Quincy girls' softball team, under new coach Jim Piccini, rallied twice to tie the game but lost to Peabody, 8-6, last week, dropping its record to 1-2.

The First Ladies met Malden yesterday (Wednesday) and will open their Suburban League season Monday against North Quincy at Mitchell McCoy Field. Nancy Suizero pitched 5 1/3 innings against Peabody, allowing seven hits, striking out two and walking six.

Piccini, who took over for Barbara Webster, who moved across the city to coach North Quincy, feels his team can improve on last season's 2-15 record, as only one player was lost by graduation.

Catcher Susan Cullen, third baseman Kristen Curtin, shortstop center fielder Terry Duggan and first baseman Cheryl Menz are among Quincy's top players, while Marion Miller and Lisa Zambruno also are expected to have fine seasons.

Raiderettes Off To Fast Start

The North Quincy girls' softball team, under new coach Barbara Webster, is off to a fast start with a 3-0 record in non-league competition.

The Raiderettes last week defeated Somerville, 12-8, for their third straight victory.

The North girls met Revere yesterday (Wednesday) and will open the Suburban League season against Quincy Monday at Mitchell McCoy Field.

In the win over Somerville

Nancy Flukes had two hits, including a triple and had two RBI. Colleen Hannon also had two hits and two RBI.

Sophomore Kristin Drake scattered six hits in going the route and winning her third straight game.

McBirney MVP In Commonwealth Conference

Senior Bill McBirney of Curry College was recently selected as the Most Valuable Player in the Commonwealth Coast Conference.

Coaches from Curry, Coast Guard, Emerson, Anna Maria, Salve Regina, Roger Williams and Wentworth selected McBirney on the strength of his 21-point and 10-rebound average despite his team's three wins and three losses in the conference play.

McBirney, of Quincy, who scored a career high 40 points against St. Joseph's of Maine, was also selected to the Whaling City Tournament and the Manhattanville Tournament all-star teams.

Commonwealth Coast Conference commissioner Richard Dukeshire presented McBirney the MVP award at the Curry sports banquet. This was the second year in a row that a Curry player received the award. Curry's all-time leading scorer Kevin Moran won the award in 1986.

Curry College coach Brian Buckley of Quincy commented on McBirney: "Bill steadily

Delmonico Honored At Koch Broadmeadows Anniversary

The 25th anniversary of the Broadmeadows District of the Koch Club was recently observed at the Youth Bowling Banquet held at Walsh's Restaurant.

Anthony T. Delmonico, founder and director, was honored and presented with a large trophy containing a figure of each of the recreational programs sponsored by the Broadmeadows District during its two and one-half decades of activity.

Broadmeadows District has sponsored summer boys baseball and girls softball programs for the past quarter of a century while sponsoring boys and girls bowling leagues for 24 years and a winter basketball program for 17 years.

Councillor Richard J. Koch, Jr., a former member of the bowling league, introduced a Council resolve at the City Council meeting Tuesday evening recognizing the Broadmeadows District and Delmonico, for providing wholesome, leisure enjoyable recreation for thousands of youths and adults for a quarter of a century.

Richard J. Koch, Sr., executive director of the Koch Club, made the presentation and praised Mr. and Mrs. Delmonico and family for their contribution to the community.

Almost Trampled 2 From Quincy In Middle Of Marathon Start Mixup

No one was more involved in the chaotic start of the 91st annual Boston Marathon than Tony Siciliano, chief of the Quincy Auxiliary Police and deputy director of Civil Defense, and Joe Pearson, another of the 21 Quincy Auxiliary policemen who assisted Hopkinton Police in traffic and crowd control.

Officials used a rope to hold the runners back of the starting line and that was one of the reasons for the tumultuous start which resulted in defending champion Rob de Castella falling over the rope. He was not injured and picked himself up to finish sixth.

"For the past 10 years members of the Mass. Auxiliary Police Association, which includes 60 cities and towns, including Quincy, have been assisting Hopkinton Chief Francis X. Boker in handling the crowds," Siciliano said. "In the past we have stood holding hands to hold the runners back and there never were any incidents."

"The main trouble was no one heard any countdown and when the starter's gun sounded, runners were not lined up and were still coming out to the starting line."

"At approximately 11:55 top runners, who were in the front of the pack, were still coming out. The last thing we heard was '60 seconds to race time.' Usually when the countdown reaches 10 seconds, we got off the course, but no one heard a countdown this time and there was complete chaos when the gun sounded. The rope never should have been there."

"I was talking to Bill Rodgers, whom I've been friendly with since we started assisting in crowd control, and wishing him luck. I don't think more than 10 seconds elapsed since the 60-second warning and Rodgers was completely taken by surprise when the gun sounded. I was caught in the middle and had to run quite a distance before I could get out of the pack. Joe and I were fortunate not to have been trampled in the rush."

"I was standing against a Kenan runner holding the rope and a BAA official on the left of the line told me he would tell me when to drop the rope," said Pearson. "He didn't tell me and just dropped the rope and the mad rush started. I was nearly knocked down and was lucky to get out of the way."

"There has never been anything like that," said Jack Semple, who has been connected with the marathon for over a half century.

"Chaos took over," said de Castella. "My foot got caught in the rope. There was jostling and shoving and I lost my balance and went down."

Toshiko Seka of Japan was the men's winner in Monday's race and de Castella made a fine comeback to finish sixth. Boston favorite Rodgers, a four-time winner, finished 15th and received the loudest ovation of the day.

This year's marathon was one that will not soon be forgotten, either by the runners or the police trying to control the crowd.

The Quincy auxiliary police are in possession of the video tape of the start taken by Quincy Sun Channel 8's Bob Gohl.

Beechwood, Point All-City Champs

Beechwood Knoll and Point were crowned champions in the Quincy Recreation Department All-City basketball championships.

Point captured the Middle School title with a 58-29 victory over Beechwood Knoll. Beechwood ended an undefeated season in the Senior High School Division with a 58-35 win over Sterling.

In the Middle School championship, Point Coaches Jack Kilrain and Janice Sullivan used a well-balanced offense as seven players scored. Keith Douglas and Bob Crespi saw high points, mostly in the close first half. Joe Crespi had 10, E.J. Nordstrom and Chris Digiacoia tossed in six each, while Matt Sullivan, team captain, had four and Rich Sardano rounded out the scoring with two. Beechwood coach Jack Kelly could not overcome a cold-shooting first period that saw his club only score two points. Chris McNeil had eleven, Mark Kelleher five, Paul Kearns four, while Lee Giordano, Mike McManus, Chris Nelson, and Mike McDonald all had two. Richie Brooks rounded out the scoring with one free throw.

The Sterling-Beechwood matchup was unexpected as Steve Perletuo packed a hustling Sterling team just in time for the playoffs. Beechwood coach Rick Radzik was looking to finish undefeated. In the end, the Beechwood team's depth paid off to seal the championship. Beechwood's Joe Nelson and Kevin Duffy led both teams with 13 points. Andy Taylor had 12 for Point to lead his club. The usually high-scoring guard, John Barnes, was limited to seven first-half points as he injured his knee and missed most of the second half. Beechwood also got eight points from Joe Mulvey, six from both Steve Briere and Rob Herman, four each from Steve Morad, Joe Foley and two from Jackie Green. Dan Steele led the team in assists. For Sterling Paul Dellabarba had eight, Dan Santry six and brother Bill Santry had two. Rich O'Brien chipped in four and Glen Doyle had two as everyone on the upset minded Sterling team scored.

Trophies were awarded to the champions by Charlotte Digiacoia, chairman of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board. Board member Thomas Mullaney assisted Recreation Director Barry Welch in awarding certificates of merit to runner-up team members. The tournament is held at the conclusion of the Quincy Recreation Department's 23-week winter recreation program. The participants are from programs sponsored in eleven neighborhood locations.

Members of the championship team receiving trophies are:

Middle School winners from Point Middle School: Joe Crespi, Jamie Arnstein, Anthony Spadoccia, Jim Reardon, King Yiu Wong, Ralph Bevilacqua, E.J. Nordstrom, Matt Sullivan, Jason Presente, Bob Crespi, Chris Digiacoia, Keith Douglas, Craig Ellis, and Rich Sardano.

Rickson To Be Honored May 27

By TOM SULLIVAN

A retirement party for Ken Rickson, who is calling it a career after 35 years in the Quincy Public Schools, will be held Wednesday, May 27, at the Neighborhood Club. A social hour at 6 p.m. will be followed by dinner at 7. Tickets are $25 which includes dinner and a gift. Deadline for tickets is Friday, May 15.

Checks should be made payable to Ken Rickson Retirement Party and should be mailed to Mrs. Greta Leone, Business Office, Quincy Public Schools, 70 Coddington Street, Quincy 02169. She can be called at 471-0100, Extension 427.

Rickson retired in February after a variety of duties in the Quincy schools.

A native of Springfield, Ken attended Springfield Classical High School.

He went on to earn his degree at Boston University, where he played three years of basketball and baseball, captaining the baseball team in his senior year.

His first coaching job was at Templeton High School in Baldwinville, where he taught physical education and coached basketball, baseball and intramural sports.

Rickson began his Quincy career in 1953 when he succeeded the venerable LaRoy "Curly" Rogers as physical education instructor.

"Curly was a great help to me, just as he was to so many others," Rickson said. "He had an excellent program and I just picked it up and used the same theories as he did. Curly was truly a legend at North Quincy and did a masterful job."

Rickson succeeded John Mullarkey as boys' basketball coach in 1960 and coached for seven years, his final team making the Tech Tourney, defeating Lawrence but losing to Durlie.

One of his players, Bo Ruggiero, has had a phenomenal record as women's basketball coach at Bridgewater State College.

Pete Varney had an outstanding career at Harvard and for a while caught for the Chicago White Sox. Mike Greenlaw played at Colgate and Dave Zink played at Wisconsin.

Roy Sinclair had been Mullarkey's assistant and was offered the head coaching job but preferred to stay on as Rickson's assistant.

Rickson became assistant to the late Munroe McLean, director of athletics, physical education and health, in 1965, and in 1967 succeeded Mac as coordinator of physical education. Carl Leone became director of athletics.

In 1980 he returned to BU where he earned his doctorate in motor learning and motor behavior. During his three years at BU, he taught reading and math in the elementary schools.

While in the elementary schools he developed several educational games.

Rickson is an outstanding tennis player, as are all members of his family. He is the No. 155 and over doubles champion in New England. He has won several Quincy Tennis Tournament titles.

His daughter, Sally, is the No. 1 singles player in New England and the Bentley College graduate played with the defunct Boston Lobsters pro team.

His son Kenny, a teacher in Florida, daughter Jane, a former Quincy teacher, is director of after-school activities in the Cohasset schools, and daughter Linda, is a medical secretary. His wife, Mildred, works at the Quincy Cooperative Bank. The Ricksons have seven grandchildren.

In 1983 the New England Lawn Tennis Association named the Ricksons the number one tennis family in New England.

"I've enjoyed every minute of my 35 years in the Quincy school system," Ken said. "I'll continue to play a lot of tennis and some golf and my roots will remain in Quincy."

"The project has been through so much review that it is hard to believe something like this could be missed," said Colton.

"It's not a new requirement in federal flood plain law, but it is one the federal people have been focusing on recently."

Colton said he could not assess blame for the apparent oversight.

"I can't say that someone didn't do their job," said Colton. "It's such an unusual requirement, I don't think anyone has had to deal with it before."

"I can't think of any building that has gone up in the city that has fallen into the borderline category."

Mayor Francis McAuley said he was aware of the situation.

"If there are certain laws we have to comply with, then we will comply with them," he said.

WEEK OF: April 23

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Hospitality is your middle name, you have a knack for making people feel welcome and feel good about themselves. Career may take a more direct path - but try not to be so impatient. Opportunities for travel open up in the summer/fall - but don't leave the planning to others.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Selectivity is all important! In choosing partners for projects, be certain to take both capabilities and personalities into account. Positively spotlighted are family reunions and educational activities.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Power of positive thinking pays off, provided you take practical steps toward realizing your goals. You're more decisive and more articulate, don't hesitate to express your feelings.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

An adventurous week should appeal to someone who enjoys breaking new ground as much as you do. Partnership endeavors require some rethinking. Romance emphasizes its whimsical side.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

A new spring look suits your present mood, with the emphasis on soft shades. Travel destination may change at the last minute. Treasure hunting may prove favorable during weekend.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Charisma is strong - your ideas appeal to people from diverse backgrounds. Updating skills is favored, but don't make major investments until you've explored various options.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Be aware of a slightly unreliable streak now surfacing, deadlines may be more serious than you believe. Romance finds you on a more direct path. Be careful in choosing confidants.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Charming Leo wins applause from colleagues and higherups, but be especially careful not to rest on your laurels. Good week for public speaking and chairing meetings.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Up-in the air plan is drifting down to earth - you'll soon be receiving your instructions. Romance demands some caution. If involved in a cause, prepare to put in overtime hours.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Creative expression is highlighted - this may be the time for penning a special poem or painting a masterpiece. At work, however, traditional approaches are more successful than innovations.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Good week for examining long-term goals, preparing budgets, and planning pleasure trips. Entertaining is favored - provided you're conscious of costs. Sources may prove less than reliable.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Partnership ventures may prove favorable, provided each partner understands the goals of the other. Routine spring cleaning may lead to discoveries. Earned praise comes your way.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

Innovative Capricorn may come up with a design worth patenting. Watch tendency to make too many commitments - there are only 24 hours in a day. Modest windfall may arrive.

S.S. Mental Health To Aid Former Coastal Community Clients

The South Shore Mental Health Center, Inc. of Quincy, the oldest community mental health counseling facility in the nation, announces the state Department of Mental Health has provided the facility with $1.3 million in contracts and positions to help service clients of the former Coastal Community in Quincy.

Harry Shulman, MSW, executive director, said the contracts will allow the South Shore Mental Health Center to serve needy clients in the communities formerly served by Coastal Community.

"We will assume responsibility between now and June 30th, on an emergency, sole-source, contract basis to provide service in various areas," Shulman said.

Based in Braintree, Coastal closed its doors March 31, due to financial troubles.

More than 3500 clients were displaced as a result of the closing.

South Shore Mental Health Center will contract between 700 and 1000 of these clients.

"We're now in the process of hiring staff who formerly worked at Coastal to assure some continuity of client services," Shulman said.

About 45 former Coastal staff members are expected to join South Shore Mental Health.

"We're going to be running crisis services for adults and adolescents, outpatient programming, day care treatments and a residential program in Braintree."

"We also will be securing two major facilities in new servicing areas like Hingham and the Hollis School in Braintree."

Shulman added that the new facilities will help the center serve the larger geographical area known as the "traditional South Shore."

Established in 1922, the South Shore Mental Health Center serves 3,000 clients annually. Services include child and adolescent care, community support, behavioral, emergency counseling, early intervention, employee assistance and residential services.

David Spillane Receives Top Honors At Law School

David M. Spillane of Wollaston, who will graduate in May from the four-year Evening Division program at New England School of Law, recently received the law school's top academic honor.

The school awards Dean's List honors to students who earn a grade point average of 3.0 or higher for any one semester. New England School of Law honors are accorded students whose academic rank for a full year places them in the top ten percent of the class.

Spillane is the northeast regional manager for the Wisconsin-based American Orthodontics Corp. He also works as a law clerk for Boston attorney Michael R. Hoff, of Hoff, Ernstoff and Howard. Last May, he completed his third year of study in the evening program at New England School of Law.

During his first two years as a law student, Spillane consistently earned Dean's List honors. As a third year student he did even better and finished within the top ten percent of the academic rankings for his class. After he receives his Juris Doctor degree, Spillane plans to take the Massachusetts bar exam next July. He will practice law in the Quincy area.

A 1975 honors graduate of the New England Institute of Applied Arts and Sciences, Spillane earned his bachelor's degree, also with honors, from the University of Massachusetts at Boston in 1977. He and his wife, Maureen L. Stewart, are current residents of Willow Ave., Wollaston. They are the parents of three children: Meghan, 5, Daniel, 2, and Melissa, 4 months.

McCauley Recommends

New Tax Rates: Homes $11.41 Business $20.99

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Mayor Francis McCauley said he will recommend Monday night that the City Council approve a classification plan which would set the residential tax rate at $11.41 per thousand dollars of assessed value.

The tax rate for commercial, industrial and personal property (CIPP) would be $20.99 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation, he said.

Both rates are down from last year. But because the value of property has risen, that does not automatically mean that all taxpayers will pay less than last year.

One group which will benefit will be the lower value single family home owner who could save $120 over last year's taxes.

"We found that the lower priced, single family home owners were bearing the brunt of classification," said McCauley.

"Now, the business people will save a little less so that the home owner can save more."

McCauley's Property Tax Classification plan provides for a residential factor of 81.5614 and the valuation of commercial, industrial and personal property at 150 per cent of full fair cash value.

The tax rates for fiscal 1986 are $20.63 for residential property owners and $30.49 for CIPP property owners.

McCauley said he would make his recommendation at a public hearing to be held by the City Council Monday at 6 p.m. in the council chambers.

If the council approves the recommendation that evening, the tax rate could be approved by the Department of Revenue (D.O.R.) by the end of that week, according to McCauley. Tax bills could be in the mail by the middle of May, he said.

The total property valuation in Quincy for fiscal 1987 has been certified by the D.O.R. at $3,695,918,689, an increase of $1,639,148,659 or 80 per cent above the total valuation for fiscal 1986.

McCauley noted that the increase in values are the result of the state mandated, three-year update of all property values in the city.

The value of an average single family home increased from $62,260 in fiscal 1986 to $116,714 in fiscal 1987, an increase of $54,454 or 87.5 per cent.

Mayor McCauley said that he is recommending an increase in the valuation of the CIPP categories from 130 per cent to 150 per cent of full fair cash value because an analysis of the new values showed that lower valued single family homes would be adversely impacted by the revaluation process.

the retirement of Chief Edward Barry in August, 1985. He was named acting chief when he failed to pass the civil service exam.

However, Valenti disputed his score and won his appeal.

"I have enjoyed working with him in an acting chief capacity," said McCauley. "I look forward to swearing him in as permanent chief."

"I feel really good about being sworn in as permanent chief," said Valenti. "Now I can start making longer range plans."

Valenti To Be Sworn In As Permanent Chief

Acting Fire Chief Carl Valenti will finally be able to drop the word "acting" from his title when he is sworn in as permanent chief by Mayor Francis McCauley Monday at 9 a.m. at City Hall.

McCauley said that he received notification late last week that Valenti topped the local Civil Service Test for chief with a score of 80.

Dep. Chief Joseph Jackson, who has said he is not interested in the chief's job, scored 79, according to McCauley.

Cheney Seeks Open Container Enforcement

Councillor Michael T. Cheney has requested that Police Chief Francis Finn direct the Special Operations Unit of the Quincy Police Department to set as a top priority enforcement of the Open Container Law, particularly as it pertains to minors.

Councillor Cheney made this request after receiving several complaints from neighborhood residents regarding teenage drinking.

"It is not unusual that in the springtime there are some minors who illegally purchase and drink alcoholic beverages. This year I have received more complaints than in previous years," said Cheney.

Councillor Cheney said he has discussed the issue on several occasions with members of the Quincy Police Department. "I understand that it is difficult to enforce the Open Container Law, particularly as it pertains to minors," stated Cheney.

"In order for the Quincy Police Department to be more effective, it is my intent to introduce a measure to the City Council that will allow officers of the Quincy Police Department to cite violators on the spot by a non-criminal disposition process," stated Cheney.

He pointed out that if the state statute is adopted by the city, it would allow a police

U.S. Approval Sought On Flood-Proofing New Police Station

Building Inspector Kenneth Johnson told the City Council's Post Audit Committee Monday night he will seek approval from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to ward off any potential police station flooding with a mounding of impermeable soil.

A meeting of the five-member committee was called by its chairman, Councillor Joseph LaRaia, after it was learned that flood proofing would be needed for the original building.

That would increase the cost of the $8.9 million project, in the works for about the past two years, by as much as $160,000, according to Department of Public Works Dep. Commr. David Colton.

Johnson told the committee Monday night that an earthen berm at the front of the station and around the sides, at a cost of under $100,000, should floodproof the building.

"It will be nothing more visible than what is now proposed," said Johnson, who noted that the words Quincy Police are to be spelled out in landscaping.

The impermeable area would be filled with something like clay, said Johnson.

"The city doesn't technically have to do anything," said Johnson, who explained that the area is not in a flood plain according to the FEMA map.

"The city has adopted as our flood plain district what is on the map," explained City Solicitor Joseph (Jay) MacRitchie.

However, the map is in error, and the station actually is in a flood plain, Johnson said, so the mound of earth is being proposed.

Because the area is not shown as a flood plain on the FEMA map, the city will not be required to apply for a special permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals for the reconstruction and addition work, Johnson said.

Councillor James Sheets said he was concerned that if the city doesn't have to go through the permit process, then neither would builders in the private sector in a similar situation.

"The city's actions should be an example," said Sheets, who added that the city's zoning ordinances should be corrected for such situations.

Johnson said he hopes to have approval from FEMA within the week.

Restaurant Smoking Ordinance Proposed

By JANE ARENA

The City Licensing Board has proposed a new smoking ordinance for Quincy restaurants.

The proposed ordinance was drawn up by Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue and reviewed by the board at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall. The board voted to send a draft copy of the ordinance to Asst. City Solicitor Donald Hansen for consideration. The proposed ordinance would then be sent to the City Council for approval.

The ordinance would apply to all new and existing restaurants in the city and would require those with a seating capacity of more than 40 people to maintain a non-smoking area comprised of one quarter of the seating capacity.

In addition to this, the establishments would have to install an acceptable air-cleaning system for each room in which customers are being served. The installed device would have to meet requirements set by the City Health Department.

Those establishments seating fewer than 40 people would not be required to maintain a non-smoking area, but would have to install an air-cleaning system for each room in which customers are being served. If they do not install such a system the ordinance would prohibit smoking in the facility.

Under the proposed ordinance, any restaurant proprietor who willfully failed to comply with the regulations would be subject to a fine of up to $200 for each day of non-compliance and or the suspension of any license issued by the Board of Health for each day of non-compliance.

If the ordinance is passed, existing restaurants would have one year from the date of its passage to comply with the regulations, and new restaurants would be required to show proof that they are in compliance before any permits are issued to them.

Cheney Requests Work On Sea Walls

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney has requested that the mayor fund the reconstruction and extension of several areas of sea walls in Ward 1.

"I have received several calls from residents in Ward 1 regarding the deteriorating condition of various sections of sea walls that have been damaged during 1986 and 1987," stated Cheney.

He also noted that he has been working with the Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, David Colton, in an effort to identify state matching funds to help pay for the improvements.

"Two years ago, I requested that the sea wall located at Edgewater Dr. be repaired at the earliest possible date," said Cheney. "Today the condition of the sea wall on Edgewater Dr. has deteriorated to the point where it has become dangerous. It would not take a very large storm for the sea wall to cave in."

In Councillor Cheney's letter to the mayor, he noted that the City of Quincy has received $143,000 as a final payment for damage due to Hurricane Gloria, and he has requested that these funds be earmarked to repair the sea wall damage.

Councillor Cheney further noted that if the sea walls are disregarded any further, the cost of repairs and replacement will be prohibitive in future years.

The Massachusetts Electric Company has recommended an increase in the lumen on 49 poles on West Squantum St. from Hancock St. to the Milton line. An increase in lighting along Holbrook Rd. from Newport Ave. to Belmont St. on a total of 15 pole locations was also recommended according to Lydon.

Hedlund Motors Hearing Continued To May 19

The City License Board Tuesday continued until May 19 a hearing concerning conditions at Hedlund Motors, 330 Quincy Ave.

The board said it has been getting complaints about the vehicles parked at the body shop and across the street. Fire chief Carl Valenti said the area is beginning to look like a "junk yard."

Robert Hedlund told the board he wants to find a location with more room, but that some of his customers are involved in legal bankruptcy matters and he cannot move their vehicles until they are resolved.

The board told Hedlund that they have been patient with him until now and that the matter must be resolved soon. They said the vehicles he has parked across the street from the shop are illegally parked because his license does not extend to that area.

The board said that by May 19 Hedlund must come back before the board with a "firm commitment" of what will be done to clean the area up.

Readers Forum Backs Increasing Tax Exemptions For Disabled Veterans

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The recent initiative of Quincy City Council President Stephen McGrath and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro urging the City's Board of Assessors to increase Real Estate Exemptions for our Disabled Veterans is indeed a welcome sign.

Since the implementation of 100 per cent valuation of Real Property in the City of Quincy many disabled veterans now receive only a minimum abatement. Clearly, a remedy was needed so that these veterans could continue to receive their proper abatements.

In an attempt to soften the blow of 100 per cent valuation on our disabled veteran taxpayers, the legislature, last year enacted Chapter 73 of the Acts of 1986 entitled, "An Act Providing Relief From the Impact of Revaluation." Chapter 73 authorizes cities and towns, as a local option, to increase the dollar value of the exemptions for disabled veterans by as much as 100 per cent. Quincy's positive cash position will allow the additional cost of the veterans' exemption to be borne by the City with little strain.

I join with Councillors McGrath and DeCristofaro in calling upon the Board of Assessors to approve the additional exemption allowed for disabled veterans real estate taxes. Let it not be said that we in Quincy are willing to turn a deaf ear to those of our citizens disabled in the service of our country.

Frank Vallier An Outstanding Citizen

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I was saddened to learn of the passing of Frank W. Vallier. He was for many years an outstanding Police Officer and Captain.

Upon his retirement he gave of himself unsparingly to the service of civic, fraternal, church and philanthropic enterprises of the city. Quincy has lost an outstanding citizen who contributed much. All who knew him will sorely miss his counsel and the warmth of his friendship.

McGrath 7th To Try

Steve McGrath will be the seventh ward councillor since 1963 to try to move up to councillor at-large.

Three before him made it. Three did not.

George Burke did it in 1963, giving up his Ward 5 seat -- the same one McGrath is vacating this year in an attempt to follow suit. Burke defeated Carl Anderson that year.

Richard Barry moved up from Ward 6 in 1965, ousting David McIntosh.

George McDonald did it in 1967, leaving his Ward 4 seat, to move into one of the two at-large seats vacated that year by Burke and Barry.

Burke was elected Norfolk County District Attorney in 1966 and appointed Barry his first assistant. Both finished out the 1967 year of their councillor at-large terms. But did not run for re-election.

In that 1967 city election, incidentally, Francis McCauley failed to take one of the at-large seats trying to move up from Ward 1. The second at-large seat that year was captured by a political newcomer, Arthur Tobin.

In 1973, Ted McElland tried to move up to councillor at-large from Ward 3 but ran into a stonewall of incumbents: Tobin, John Quinn and Joseph LaRaia.

In 1977, Dennis Harrington made his move from Ward 6 but was edged by McCauley who was moving up from School Committee. McCauley's winning margin, incidentally, was only 163 votes. Hardly any indication there that he would be a future mayor.

With two open at-large seats this year, McGrath is rated a good shot at being the fourth ward councillor to move up.

Hattiemay Thomas Longshot Winner For City Clerk

Hattiemay Thomas, a longshot candidate, was chosen City Clerk of Quincy on the ninth ballot of a marathon City Council meeting that lasted until 2 a.m.

She had only one vote (from April 29-May 5 1941 Council President William Jenness) on the eighth ballot while her rivals, John R. Shaughnessy and William J. Callahan, had four apiece.

But on the ninth try she collected votes from eight Councilors to beat out Shaughnessy, 8-1.

Mrs. Thomas, who was assistant City Clerk for 18 years, succeeded the late Emery L. Crane, who held the top job for 30 years.

FIREFIGHTERS FOR QUINCY POINT

Ward 2 City Councilor Louis A. George demanded that fire trucks and equipment remain in Quincy Point while the area's old fire station is razed and a new one built at a cost of $50,000.

George, who cited protests from fearful constituents, suggested that the truck be parked on Fore River Field or in the Washington School yard with living quarters set up in the Fore River Clubhouse.

Retorted Mayor Thomas S. Burgin:

"Chief Sands has investigated every possible location and is convinced that Central headquarters is the logical place. There is hardly two minutes difference from Central headquarters to the Fore River yard and from the present Quincy Point station to Fore River."

Stuffed Pork Chops With Upside Down Look

Here is a great recipe for pork chops with stuffing that can be prepared a day ahead if you wish.

The difference, however, in this stuffed pork chop, is instead of putting the stuffing on top, this recipe calls for the stuffing to be put on the bottom. Here is the recipe.

PORK CHOPS WITH STUFFING

8 oz of either ground pork or beef
2 cups seasoned bread crumbs

1 cup water

1/4 cup white wine

1 egg

1/2 cup romano or parmesan cheese

1 small onion chopped

1 garlic clove

6 good sized pork chops

(at least one inch thick)

In a slightly greased frying pan, saute the pork chops, turning until lightly browned. Set aside. In the same pan (add a little more oil or just water) saute the onion, garlic and ground meat until meat is lightly browned. Add the water, wine and seasoned bread crumbs. Cook until blended and then remove from heat. Then add the egg and grated cheese and stir until blended.

In a greased baking pan, put the stuffing over the bottom of the pan. Then lay the chops over the stuffing. Cover and bake in a 350 degree oven for 35 minutes. Uncover and then cook for another 10 minutes. Serve each chop with the stuffing and it's delicious. I cooked sweet potatoes that night and prepared a salad. But this entree goes well with rice, noodles or anything else you prefer.

(Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at That's Italian, Franklin St., South Quincy; Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point and Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount.)

How To Protect You And Your Car

Even the most careful driver can be faced with an emergency situation. Use common sense and these tips to help protect yourself from danger:

- If your car should break down and you're not near enough to one of your safe spots, follow these steps:
 - Get off the roadway, out of the path of oncoming traffic, even if you have to drive on a flat tire. The tire is replaceable.
 - Turn on your emergency flashers. If you have emergency flares in your trunk, position them conspicuously.
 - Raise the hood and tie a handkerchief to the antenna or door handle.
 - If a roadside telephone or call-box is hand, use it. If not, sit in your LOCKED car and wait for help.
 - If a motorist stops to render assistance, it's better to remain in the car, and ask him/her to get help. Ask them to call the local police to assist you. (Likewise if you see a stranded motorist, it's better not to stop. Call the police.)
 - If you think you are being followed, don't drive home. You would only be telling the follower where you live.
 - Stay calm. As long as you think clearly you'll be in control of the situation.
 - Flash your lights and sound your horn long enough to attract attention to you, and consequently the person following you.
 - Drive to one of your already identified safe spots, sounding your horn and flashing your lights. Do not leave this safe location until you're sure your follower is gone.
- REMEMBER, you are your best protection. If you follow these steps, you'll be protecting the most important part of your car — YOU.

Protecting Yourself

Common sense will generally steer you clear of the very infrequent dangerous situations:

- Always lock your car doors while driving, and roll windows up far enough to keep anyone from reaching inside.
- At stop signs and lights keep the car in gear and stay alert.
- Travel well-lighted, busy streets. You can spare those extra minutes it may take to avoid an unsafe area.
- Keep your purse and other valuables out of sight, even when you are driving in your locked car.
- Park in safe, well lighted areas near your destination.
- ALWAYS LOCK YOUR CAR, even for a short absence. And before unlocking your car, quickly check to make sure no one is hiding on your seats or floors, front and back.
- NEVER pick up a hitch-hiker. Even the most harmless looking stranger can be dangerous. Don't find out.
- When you arrive home, leave your headlights on until you have the car in the garage and the house door unlocked. If you can have a remote control garage door opener installed, it will allow you to remain in your locked car until you are safely inside your locked garage.
- Check the daily routes you travel and pick out safe spots, 24 hour stores, gas stations, convenience stores, and police and fire station. If trouble should arise, drive straight to one of these locations.

Guatemalan Death Squad Refugee To Speak At United First Parish

Cesar, a young Guatemalan refugee from army terrorism, will speak at United First Parish Church (Unitarian) during the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday.

Cesar, a 21-year-old peasant farm worker, is the sole survivor of 14 young men arrested by the army this past November. Held for two months in a clandestine prison, they were tortured and 13 brutally murdered. Cesar was left for dead in a field. He survived, and after an incredible three-month journey across Mexico, came to the U.S. and is currently being granted sanctuary at Arlington Street Church in Boston.

Cesar's older sister was killed when he was nine, and has recently received news that his brother and an uncle have been murdered. He does not know the whereabouts of his mother and younger sister and fears for their lives.

Cesar's only "crime" is that he was serving a church cooperative that provided food to the poor. Such activity is considered guerrilla warfare by the army and landowners in Guatemala.

Cesar does not seek to become a U.S. citizen, but dreams for "peace in his country for the peasants," so he can one day return. He says he wants Americans to know about the killing, poverty, the illiteracy and the brutal army oppression that 80 percent of his fellow Guatemalans suffer.

Following Cesar's talk, through an interpreter, Dr. Sheldon Bennett will preach the sermon, "Sanctuary: We Are Our Brother's Keeper." The Church Choir will perform anthems by Parker and Purcell, and Norman Corey, Director, will perform organ works by Scheidt and Johnson. Visitors are welcome.

Second Week In Easter Service At Squantum First Church

Worshippers at the First Church of Squantum Sunday celebrated the resurrection of Christ for a second week in another Easter service. Three choirs participated.

Visitors at the service include members, families and friends of the Nickerson Legion Post.

The veterans, who were led by their commander Richard H. MacDougall, were greeted at the church door by Craig Zaehring, Cynthia Stanton, Eva Martin, Steve Williams, Karin Reister, and David Williams.

During the service, church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin and post chaplain Richard Hendry held a memorial observance for deceased members of the post.

The Crusader and Chancel Choirs combined to sing "One Early Easter Morning" by Ralph Marryott. Later, the Crusader, Youth and Chancel Choirs joined to sing "This Is the Day of the Lord" by W. W. Schurr. They were accompanied by Mary Ruth Scott playing the piano and Doug Barnum playing the flute.

Dr. Langevin preached on the topic, "On the Road to Emmaus."

Ushers for the morning were Sandra Ahearn, Tore Wallin, Stewart Scott, Barbara Anderson and Chris Dixey. Patti Hurd, Hazel Mayne and May Lewis were in charge of the reception held after the service for the visitors from the Nickerson

Post. On Easter, the previous Sunday, members and friends of the church attended two worship services.

The first was the traditional sunrise service, held in the sanctuary of the church this year because of the cool weather outside. Guitarists David Williams, Andy Ogilvie and Mary Ruth Scott accompanied the singing of the congregation.

Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "What Do You Know about Easter?"

After the service, all the worshippers attended an Easter breakfast in Fellowship Hall. The breakfast was sponsored by the church Board of Christian Education and was organized by Patti Hurd and Ellen Ogilvie.

The second service of the morning, also held in the sanctuary laden with lilies and other Easter flowers, was the regular morning worship service for the whole church.

It began in darkness with the traditional Easter drama of the women going to the tomb and encountering the angels who told them that Christ was risen. Playing the parts of the women were Susan Scott, Karin Reister, Mindi Hurd, and Sarah Midram.

The angels were Chris Dixey and Andy Ogilvie.

Four choirs took part in that second service, including the Cherub Choir, directed by Mindi and Marc Hurd, and the Crusader Choir, the Youth Choir, and the Chancel Choir, directed by Mary Ruth Scott.

Kristen Fluhr and all the children of the Sunday school assisted the pastor in explaining "The Big Breakthrough" that Easter represents.

At the morning service Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "God's Glorious Break of Our Security."

Greeters for the morning were Ellen Ogilvie and her children, Andy and Lori. Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott were ushers. The fellowship hour after the service was hosted by Lorraine Iosad and May Lewis.

Members of the church will present a musical show, "Music Makes Me Smile" Friday and Saturday, May 1 and 2.

The variety show will feature both music and comedy. It will be held in Fellowship Hall at 7:30 p.m. each night. Tickets are $4 each and may be purchased from persons involved in the show or at the door on the nights of performance.

Men of the church will attend the Protestant Men's Prayer Breakfast at Freeport Hall, Dorchester, Sunday, May 3, at 7 a.m. Tickets for the breakfast are being sold by Stewart Scott.

There will be only one worship service at the church on that day, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

City Recognized For Emergency Response Efforts

Quincy's Emergency Response Planning Committee was recently recognized by the Chemical Manufacturers Association (CMA) for its outstanding efforts in improving the community's emergency response capabilities.

The award is part of CMA's Community Awareness and Emergency Response (CAER) program, which is designed to provide information about local chemical operations to communities. It is also to help them prepare for the unlikely occurrence of industrial or transportation accidents, natural disasters and other mishaps.

The City of Quincy - Emergency Response Planning Committee effort began in June, 1986.

"The community wants and needs to be more aware of hazards and risks," stated Tony Siciliano, Quincy's Public Safety Civil Defense

Acting Director, following the Quincy CAER program's first drill held Nov. 4, 1986.

CMA officials report that emergency response planning programs are under way in approximately 1500 sites nationwide. CMA's president Robert Roland said, "The CAER program represents the chemical industry's commitment to public safety, and as such, has the full support of CMA's Board of Directors."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It would be a pretty inhuman world without laughter, but it would be a pretty frivolous world without serious thought, meditation, and occasional weeping. One of the most wonderful gifts God has given man is the gift of humor, the ability to laugh and see the funny side of things.

Humor can take the antagonism out of differences, it can promote congenial atmosphere. It opens the line of communication and breaks down barriers. Some people can't express humor even though they appreciate it, just as some people appreciate good music even though they can't carry a tune.

Lincoln once said: "I laugh because I must not cry." During the darkest hours of the Civil War President Lincoln summoned his cabinet and began reading to them one of the more hilarious stories from a new book by Artemus Ward. They were furious at what they considered a lack of taste and concern for their time. Why should he be reading jokes at a time of national peril? Lincoln sighed and said: "Gentlemen, why don't you laugh? With the fearful strain that is upon me night and day I did not laugh I would die." He then took a piece of paper out of his pocket. It was the first draft of a piece of paper out of his pocket. I was the first draft of the Emancipation Proclamation!...

Laughter is not the final solution to life's problems, but it eases many a difficult situation...

Quincy Holds Off North, 6-4

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's baseball team, off to its best start in some time, staved off a last-inning rally by North Quincy to top the Raiders, 6-4, Monday and improve its record to 6-2. It was the Suburban League opener for both teams. It was Quincy's fourth straight win.

The Presidents, who played Newton North yesterday (Wednesday), host Waltham today at Adams Field, will play at Malden Tuesday and will play at Brookline next Wednesday.

T.J. Steen pitched all the way for Quincy Monday and handled North easily until the top of the seventh inning. Here North erupted for four runs before Steen put out the fire and win his third game of the season.

The Presidents had only a 1-0 lead going into the fifth but scored twice and added three runs in the sixth.

"This was a typical Quincy-North game," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "You can take nothing for granted when these two teams meet. North has a fine team this season and they surely didn't quit today. Both teams played good defense and our hits started falling in the last two innings.

"We've been getting some good hitting and some fine pitching, together with good defense. We will now be going into the tough part of our schedule, but I think we will do all right in the league."

Danny Biagini, who has been hitting well, had four doubles Monday and Tommy Logan, who also has been outstanding at the plate, had two hits.

Sean Thompson, sophomore Brian Taylor and Ed Flavin all came through with key hits against North's Mark DiMaggio.

"Steen, Dan Overby and Larry Beguire have all pitched well for us," said Sylvia. "Steen has three wins, Beguire has two, both in relief, and Overby has one. Overby has also pitched well a couple of other times but wasn't involved in the decision."

Last Friday Quincy rallied for seven runs in the fourth inning after trailing, 3-1, to defeat Revere, 12-5, for its third win in a row.

Beguire recorded the victory in relief for the second time in the week.

Scott Logan started the rally with a squeeze bunt and Flavin, Biagini, Nick Dragone and Tommy Logan had key hits in the inning.

In their previous game the Presidents defeated Peabody, 4-2, with Steen going all the way, striking out six and allowing eight scattered hits.

Biagini had two hits, including a double, and two RBI and Tom Logan had two doubles and an RBI.

Earlier in the week Quincy toppled Medford, 12-5, as Biagini belted a grand slam homer in the fourth and Tommy Logan collected a three-run homer in the fifth.

Starting pitcher Overby allowed five hits in four innings and Beguire finished up.

Jay Lepasio and Flavin collected two hits apiece.

QHS Basketball Alumni Club Honors 1986-87 Team

By PETE ZOIA

The Quincy High School Basketball Alumni Club recently held its seventh reunion at the Fore River Clubhouse and honored the 1986-87 Quincy High team.

Guido Pettinelli, chairman and toastmaster for the evening, introduced Quincy Coach John Franceschini and his assistant, Ray Papile.

Franceschini spoke of the dedication of his players and said they never gave up, playing their hardest at all times. He thanked the many members of the Alumni Club and friends for their support and said he hoped the popular high school-alumni game will be resumed after an absence of several years.

Former Quincy coach Joe Amorosino talked about working hard at what one does and mentioned the Providence College team, going far beyond everyone's expectations and going to the NCAA Final Four.

Pettinelli presented a plaque to Dr. Sid Cutler for his support of Quincy High sports. The Quincy dentist has been one of the Presidents' most ardent fans for many years.

Following a cocktail hour and dinner, the many former Quincy players and friends of Quincy High basketball talked about their past experiences and swapping stories which resulted in many a laugh.

The Alumni Club wants to see Quincy and North Quincy get out of the Suburban League. They are the two smallest schools in the league.

"Something must be done to get Quincy out of the Suburban League. It is about time we came to the aid of the basketball program," said Pettinelli.

Raider Rally Falls Short

North Quincy's baseball team won only three games each of the past two years, but the Raiders have already improved on that figure this spring with four wins going into the Brookline game yesterday (Wednesday).

Monday North rallied for four runs in the last inning but lost to Quincy, 6-4, making its record 4-4.

North plays at Brockton today (Thursday), and Monday will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin. They are two of the top teams in the Suburban League.

Monday's North-Quincy game was the league opener for both teams and was a typical game between the cross-town rivals.

Mark DiMaggio pitched for North and trailed by only a 1-0 score going into the fifth inning. But the Presidents scored twice in the fifth and three times in the sixth.

North was held at bay by Quincy's T.J. Steen for six innings but its bats came alive in the top of the seventh.

Steve Happas bunted safely to start the inning. Neil Hatfield walked and Bill McDougal singled to left to fill the bases. DiMaggio reached on an error as Happas scored.

Peter Tufts, who earlier had twice driven in the winning runs with doubles in the last inning, then unloaded another double to the fence in left field, clearing the bases. However, Steen got out of further trouble.

DiMaggio struck out seven Presidents and gave up 11 hits, but six of them came in the last two innings.

McDougal was the only North batter with two hits.

"We have been playing fine ball and our hitting has been good, led by Tufts and DiMaggio," North coach Leo Donovan said.

"Also, the pitching has been strong with DiMaggio, McDougal and Dan Santry doing well. Defensively we have been sound and I feel we can hold our own in the strong Suburban League. Our next two games are against two of the best teams in the league, Brockton and Cambridge. Waltham is another league powerhouse."

Last Friday North Quincy topped Somerville, 6-4, for its third win in a row with DiMaggio's two-run single in the fourth inning breaking a 4-4 tie.

DiMaggio had two hits and three RBI and Hatfield had two hits and scored two runs. MacDougal and Steve Rabs had two hits each.

Santry threw the distance on the mound, giving up seven hits.

In their previous game the Raiders defeated Peabody, 6-4, with Tufts the batting hero for the second day in a row.

His seventh-inning double drove in the two winning runs and he had four RBI in all. MacDougal and Happas had two hits apiece.

MacDougal pitched all the way and gave up only six hits while striking out five.

Earlier in the week Tufts drove in two runs in the seventh with a double to give North an 8-7 decision over Revere.

Trailing, 3-0, in the third, North erupted for six runs, sparked by Hatfield's two-run triple. Revere scored four in the top of the seventh to go ahead, 7-6, but Tufts drove in MacDougal and DiMaggio in the bottom half for the win.

DiMaggio was the winning pitcher, allowing five hits and striking out nine.

Point Panthers Cheerleaders Win 4 Trophies In Competition

The Quincy Point Panthers' cheerleaders recently completed their competition season, winning four trophies in three competitions throughout the state.

Three times they placed third in the overall standings and won a first place in Worcester for excellence in partner stunts and pyramids.

Co-Captain Janet DiTullio won two individual awards as Greater Boston League All-Star Cheerleader and Outstanding Cheerleader at the Webster Tournament at Clark University in Worcester. She received a cheerleader pin, carnation, trophy, tote bag and has qualified for state all-star selection in May.

The Panthers first qualified for the New England Regional championships and were selected as one of the top junior high school-age squads in the state based on past performances.

The regional competition, held at Boston College, was one of 19 tournaments conducted across the country. Over 6000 cheerleaders representing 500 schools and youth groups competed in regional qualifying tournaments. The top squad in four divisions, junior high, high school junior varsity, varsity and co-ed, performed in 2½ minute routines for a possible berth in the national championships at Orlando, Fla.

The judging was done by members of the Universal Cheerleaders Association of Memphis, Tenn. The squads were critiqued on a combination of cheer, partner stunts, pyramids, gymnastics and dance.

Bridgewater was the junior high winner and earlier this month placed 23rd at the national level.

The next stop for the Panthers was Everett High for the Greater Boston Area championships. They performed a four-minute routine, which started with a walking pyramid which two girls flipped over the top into the arms of their teammates. The judges said it was a powerful opening, but a near-miss on a back layout flip into a high split cost them second place.

Bridgewater took first and Lowell edged the Panthers by one point for second.

The Panthers then traveled to Clark University for the Webster Beavers New England (Spring) Grand Championships. They faced teams from Connecticut, Worcester, Springfield, Boston and New Bedford areas.

With only a week between competitions, the Panthers wasted no time in using the Everett judges' suggestions and changed their routine into a more collegiate yell-style. They worked for only two days on perfecting their partner stunts and walking mount due to two members not competing. But it paid off as the Panthers were presented a first place award for excellence in partner stunts and pyramids, beating out 14 other squads. They were awarded a trophy and a gift certificate toward the purchase of a gymnastics mat.

In their four-minute routine the Panthers added six different stunts as well as two sets of tumbling and gymnastics and 1:15 seconds of dancing.

Overall they placed third in New England and were the only group in the junior high division to win two awards. New Britain, Conn., was first.

The 10-member team that won the first place stunts award and third overall included Capt. Robin Parker, Co-capt. DiTullio, Lina Russo, Jen Bonvie, Eileen Kelley, Sheila Cronin, Colleen Skehan, Beth Sullivan, Debbie Russell and Maureen Wood.

Also competing in earlier competitions were Co-capt. Beth Barter, Kerry Wood and Jennifer Barnard.

'Just Say No' On Ch. 3

The anti drug music video "Just Say No - Let Your Voice Be Heard," recently produced at the Broad Meadows Middle School, will be shown in its entirety, for the first time, on Quincy Community Television Ch. 3 tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m.

The video was written by English teacher Patricia Dunne, with the original musical score written by local artist Tony Pennisi.

It tells the story of a boy who is pressured to try using drugs but with the support of his peers, parents and even celebrities, the boy says "No!" to drugs.

The program was produced by a group of teachers who began their work in television through a workshop given at the Quincy Community Television studio, by Director Ed Fiddler. The teachers were given support and assistance from the Q.C.T.V. staff as well as from Brian Smith, television coordinator for the Quincy public schools.

The production has gained the attention of the Boston media. While in production, reporters from The Boston Herald and Channel 5's "Chronicle" program, came to Quincy to see what was happening. Most recently on April 24, Chronicle showed segments from the final video on their program, as a follow up to the piece they produced for their Feb. 24 show which followed the story of the making of this video.

The offender would be required to pay the city a $100 fine if said state statute is adopted.

Councillor Cheney further noted that the Quincy School Department has taken a number of steps to educate school children on the abuses of alcohol.

"The School Department has sponsored a number of positive programs that have encouraged school-age children to say no to alcohol and drugs. It is my feeling that these programs are effective, however, we must demonstrate effective enforcement with regard to the Open Container Law," Cheney said.

Her 'Friend' Wasn't There But: It Was A Big Day For Jennifer

Her "friend" President Reagan wasn't able to attend, but nonetheless five-year-old Jennifer Siteman of South Quincy had a proud moment recently as she became a U.S. citizen during ceremonies at Fort Devens.

"For some reason, she thought the president would be at the ceremony," said her mother, Mrs.

Virginia Siteman, who with her husband, John, adopted Jennifer as a seven-week-old Korean orphan.

"We explained that he is a very busy man," said Mrs. Siteman, who is also the mother of three other adopted Korean children, Stephanie, 10; Michael, 12; and Rebecca, 13. All the children became American citizens at an early age.

Jennifer began referring to the president as "her friend" after she saw him in Boston's Post Office Square when she was two-years-old, according to her mother.

"A police officer let her stand up front so she could see him, and now she calls President Reagan her friend," explained Mrs. Siteman.

family took the train to Fort Devens for the ceremony where some 500 people became U.S. citizens.

"Stephanie stood up and took the oath," said her mother. "She also sang, 'America the Beautiful.'"

Cong. Brian Donnelly gave her a flag which had flown over the Capitol.

"She's very patriotic," said Mrs. Siteman. "She kept asking, 'Am I a citizen now?'"

An energetic child, Stephanie will enter kindergarten in September at the Lincoln Hancock School.

"She's already starting to read on her own," said her mother.

Mrs. Siteman said she and her husband would like to adopt another child.

"But not right now," said the mother of four.

Negotiations for the 102-year-old Quincy shipyard are scheduled to begin Friday between General Dynamics and a partnership which includes former shipyard workers and Reilly/Athy Associates.

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has also said it wants to buy or lease part of the property as a staging area for construction of a multibillion dollar regional sewage treatment plant on Deer Island.

The group recently raised its bid for the yard from $35 million to $51.3 million.

"I'm very optimistic," said Peter Gwyn, chairman of Mass. Shipbuilders Inc., comprised of former shipyard workers.

"We have every indication from the chairman of the board of General Dynamics that if the price is in the ball park, which it is, and the money is there, which it is, then we will have the shipyard," he said.

"It's a question of negotiating the terms of the purchase and sale agreement, and a matter of time," said Gwyn.

The group was among bidders which received copies of the purchase and sale agreement this week sent by General Dynamics to let them know what the company expects from a buyer, according to a representative of Meredith & Grew, marketing agent for General Dynamics.

"We have felt all along that we wanted the shipbuilders to have every consideration," commented Mayor Francis McCauley.

"They gave us a substantial offer, and the ball is in General Dynamics' court."

McCauley noted that the City Council recently rezoned the shipyard to Planned Unit Development. That means that the council will have to approve whatever goes into the yard.

"That way, it protects the city's and the neighborhood's interest," he said.

City To Continue Dumping At Landfill

Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday that the city will continue dumping its residential trash at the West Quincy landfill despite the wishes of the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

"We feel we have the right to do it," said McCauley, who maintains that the city has located additional space at the landfill in which to dump for about a year.

City Solicitor Joseph (Jay) MacRitchie said the city expects that DEQE may file suit.

"But we feel the city has a good case," said MacRitchie.

The landfill had been expected to reach its capacity this month, and a second Environmental Impact Report was being prepared to request an extension.

An earlier EIR had been rejected as inadequate by James Hoyte, state secretary for Environmental Affairs.

According to MacRitchie, the DEQE asked the city in mid-April to voluntarily stop dumping at the landfill and to respond by April 30.

City officials met with representatives from the state Monday to discuss the continued operation of the landfill in the available land, MacRitchie said.

"They gave us several alternatives, but neither included continued use," said MacRitchie.

McCauley explained that the city has located additional space at the landfill at a site known as Phase 3 which hasn't been used for about two years.

When the Phase 2 section runs out of space shortly, the city is proposing to go back to Phase 3, he said.

Lydon Urges Attendance At Hearing On Harriet Ave. Extension

City Councillor John J. Lydon, Jr., has sent out 3000 to 400 notices to constituents urging them to attend a Planning Board hearing Monday, May 11, at 8:15 p.m. on a preliminary subdivision plan for Harriet Ave. Extension.

The hearing will be held in the second floor conference room of new City Hall.

"I strongly oppose this subdivision plan, as it intends to use the residential streets in Montclair as access to the zoned business area," stated Lydon.

"This is an attempt by the landowner to freeze the zoning prior to any action taken by the City Council on the proposed zoning changes currently before them.

"Over the past month, I have been working with department heads throughout the city stressing the public safety factor and the deficiencies of the plan," said Lydon.

"The commissioner of public works has agreed that no approval of the plan would be coming from the department.

"In addition, I am also seeking a legal opinion from our city solicitor as to the use of Residential A streets for this project.

"I urge you to attend the Planning Board meeting on May 11, and seek your assistance in defeating the preliminary subdivision proposal," stated Lydon.

Tax Bills Soon In Mail

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Second half property tax bills, due in 30 days, could be in the mail to Quincy residents by mid-May, according to Mayor Francis McCauley.

The mayor's comment followed approval by the City Council Monday night of his classification plan which sets the residential tax rate at $11.41 per thousand dollars of assessed value.

The tax rate for commercial, industrial and personal property (CIPP) is $20.99 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation, according to McCauley's plan.

The Department of Revenue must now approve the figures, and the bills printed by the city.

The rates are down from last year, but the value of property has risen. So all taxpayers will not necessarily pay less.

The classification plan also provides for a residential factor of 81.5614 and the valuation of CIPP at 150 per cent of full fair cash value.

During a 15-minute address to the council, McCauley said he based his classification plan on the fact that single family home owners were being adversely impacted by an "explosion of residential values."

"Now the business people will save a little less so that the home owner can save more," he had explained earlier.

City councillors generally favored the classification plan.

"I'm strongly in favor," said Councillor Patricia Toland, "though I'm not unsympathetic to business people."

"But businesses have a way to make up the increase. The ordinary homeowner does not."

Larry Chretien of Quincy spoke in favor of the classification plan. Chretien said the city should provide a break for home owners if it can.

Robert Quinn, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, spoke in opposition.

"We of the business community suggest you consider up to a 140 per cent level as a compromise to take advantage of what is now a favorable economy," said Quinn.

Blood Pressure Screenings At Quincy Hospital

Quincy City Hospital will conduct a free blood pressure screening for the general public Tuesday, May 19, in its Ambulatory Care Department from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

These screenings, performed by nursing staff, will enable the individual to keep track of his blood pressure, and be aware of dangerous elevations in the pressure. Persons in need of referral to a physician, will be advised to do so.

The screenings, which will take place on the first and third Tuesday of each month, are free of charge.

'Crossover' Zoning Change Approved

The City Council voted unanimously Monday night to approve one of the first of a number of zoning changes proposed in an 87-page report last year by the council's Zoning Review Task Force.

"I think it is one of the most significant proposals," said Council president Stephen McGrath of the change which affects the so-called "crossover" ordinance whereby developers could freely "crossover" from one zoning category to another.

Now, developers will have to apply for a special permit from the Zoning Board of Appeals, and abutters 300 feet in either direction will be notified of the hearing.

"I think it is one of the most significant changes which will affect the neighborhoods," said Ward One Councillor Michael Cheney, a task force member who suggested the change.

Cheney explained that before the ordinance was changed, a developer could buy a "Mom and Pop" variety store and construct a building of up to eight stories at that location.

Developers could "crossover" from Business B to Residence C or from Business A to Residence B, according to Cheney.

"This change will allow public input before any crossover in a neighborhood," Cheney said.

Developers have not registered any significant opposition to the change, according to Cheney.

"This is one of the changes I am really happy to support," said Ward Two Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro.

"I agree that it is a significant alteration of the present zoning plans," said Councillor Joseph LaRaia.

The chairman of the task force, Ward Six Councillor Thomas Nutley, said the change will have "a tremendous impact on the quality of life in the city."

Meanest Mother

(Editor's note: The following anonymous article first appeared in The Quincy Sun 16 years ago and from time to time since then we have had requests from readers to reprint it.)

Sunday is Mother's Day and we think the article is still an appropriate Mother's Day tribute to all the "mean" mothers everywhere.)

I had the meanest Mother in the whole world. While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs or toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from the other kids too.

But at least I wasn't alone in my suffering. My sisters and two brothers had the same mean Mother as I did.

My Mother insisted upon knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were on a chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted if we said we'd be gone one hour that we be gone one hour or less - not one hour and one minute.

I am nearly ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck us. Not once but each time we did as we pleased. Can you imagine someone actually hitting a child just because he disobeyed. Now you can begin to see how mean she really was.

The worst is yet to come. We had to be in bed by nine each night and up early the next morning. We couldn't sleep till noon like our friends. So while they slept my Mother actually had the nerve to break the child labor law. She made us work. We had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things. I believe she laid awake at night thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us - it nearly did.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooting the horn of a car for us to come running. She embarrassed us to no end by making our dates and friends come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention, while my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, my old fashioned Mother refused to let me date until the age of 15 and 18. Fifteen that is, if you dated only to go to a school function, and that was only once or twice a year.

My Mother was a complete failure as a Mother. None of us has ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by his mate. Each of my brothers served his time in the service of this country.

And whom do we have to blame for this terrible way we turned out? You're right. Our mean Mother.

Look at all the things that we missed. We never got to march in a protest parade, nor to take part in a riot, burn draft cards, and a million and one things that our friends did. She forced us to grow into God-fearing, educated, honest adults.

Using this as a background, I am trying to raise my three children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

Because, you see, I thank God. He gave me the meanest Mother in the whole world.

McCauley Makes It Official May 28

Mayor Francis McCauley will make it official May 28.

He will formally announce his candidacy for a fourth term shortly after 8 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

It will be a no-charge, public invited event with refreshments.

It will follow a 6 p.m. $100 per head cocktail party also at the Neighborhood Club.

McCauley considers the Neighborhood Club one of his two mayoral campaign lucky charms.

It will mark the fourth time that he has announced for mayor there.

His other lucky political charm is 1661 Hancock St. at the corner of School St. where he will again set up his campaign headquarters. Opening ceremonies will be around July 4.

This will be the third time he has had his mayoral campaign headquarters there. In 1983 he ran unopposed so didn't need any headquarters that year.

McCauley will be the first Quincy mayor since Amelio Della Chiesa to run for a fourth term. Della Chiesa made it and McCauley expects to follow in his footsteps.

Della Chiesa, incidentally, is Quincy's all-time mayoral champ under both Plan A and Plan E forms of government.

He served 12 years in all: eight under Plan A and four under Plan E.

Under Plan E, the mayor was like the City Council president and was elected by his colleagues. He was the ceremonial head of the city and the city manager was the chief executive.

The Plan A mayoral longevity champ was Charles Ross who served nine years.

McCauley plans to run "a very positive campaign" stressing the accomplishments of his administration in his first three terms and circling in on what he sees as the future needs of the city.

Koch Flag Day Parade June 15

Youth and musical groups are invited to participate in the 34th annual Flag Day Parade and observance sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy and scheduled for Monday, June 15.

The parade will start at 6:15 p.m. at the Vocational Technical School parking area on Coddington St.

John C. Comer, national commander elect of the American Legion, has been selected grand marshal of the event. Comer will lead the first division of state and city dignitaries as well as veteran and military units.

The Quincy Police Department and Fire Department color guards will again lead the parade and will be joined by contingents from the Metro Police, MBTA Police and Norfolk County Sheriff's Department.

MEANWHILE, mayoral challenger Joseph LaRata who has been holding $10 per head fund-raisers reportedly is planning a biggie.

Reports are that a $500 per ticket affair is in the works for mid-May.

Most observers feel that LaRata needs at least $100,000 to wage an effective campaign and those $10 affairs aren't going to get him to that figure very fast.

A big turnout at $500 per would step it up.

DeCRISTOFARO

WARD 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro will officially announce his candidacy for a fourth term Saturday, May 30 at a kick-off campaign fundraiser at the Fore River Clubhouse, Quincy Point.

The 8 p.m. to midnight event will include dancing and a buffet. Tickets are $10 each and may be obtained by calling Ray Dunn (479-5964) or at the door.

STORK REPORT: Tim Cahill, candidate for City Councillor at-large and his wife, the former Tina Falco, are parents of a new daughter, Nicole, born April 25 at Quincy City Hospital.

Nicole weighed in at 8 pounds, 4 ounces.

Mrs. Cahill is the owner of LaBilancia boutique shop and Cahill owns Handshakes, both in downtown Quincy. They have another daughter, Markena, 2½.

'Citizen Of Year' Award

John H. McDuff, Jr. of 216 South Street, founder and President of the Quincy Animal League will receive the Laurence J. Curtin "Citizen of the Year" award at the 20th anniversary dinner-dance of the Quincy Citizens Association.

The event will be Friday, May 15 at 7 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Readers Forum Fondly Remembers Frank Vallier

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was saddened to hear of the unfortunate passing recently of Mr. Frank W. Vallier. As a youngster growing up in the Hospital Hill section of Quincy, I can vividly remember waiting anxiously in front of Mr. Vallier's home for him to come home from the police station at lunch time to open his pool for the neighborhood kids, like myself.

Many of us experienced countless hours of enjoyment thanks to Mr. Vallier's generosity and selflessness.

Quincy, and especially Hospital Hill, have lost a special person. However, many young adults will forever carry fond remembrances of Mr. Vallier's sincere concern for others.

Mrs. Gossard passed away March 15, 1987 at the age of 88. She was active in various Quincy community and church groups. Her husband, the late A. Paul Gossard, was a Quincy School Superintendent. She is survived by two daughters, Virginia Mannick of Weston and Eleanor Shore of Needham, and by a son, Arthur Gossard of Warren, N.J., a sister, Ruth Strouse of East Aurora, N.Y., and eight grandchildren.

1987 Koch Club Scholarship Awards Announced

Anthony T. Delmonico, chairman of the Koch Club Scholarship Committee, announces the following are winners of the 1987 Koch Club Scholarship Awards.

North Quincy High School winners include: Brenda L. Campbell, 111 West Elm Ave., Quincy and James L. Phelan, 53 Estabrook Rd., Quincy. Each will receive a $100 scholarship to the school of their choice.

Quincy High School students chosen are: Sheila M. O'Connor, 23 Doyle Terrace, Quincy, and Michael Buchanan, 78 Doane St., Apt. #1, Quincy. A $100 award will be provided to both of the Quincy High School seniors.

The Quincy Vocational Technical School winners selected are Jennifer D'Attilio, 119 Phillips St.,

Quincy, and Richard Manupelli, 55 Adele Rd., Quincy. Both will be recognized with a $100 award that will be presented to each in June.

The formal presentation of the awards will take place at the 36th annual Koch Club Flag Day Observance scheduled for Monday, June 15, at 7:15 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Koch Club Awards total $600. This year's amount brings the figure to $13,000 in scholarship awards by the organization since the program was initiated in 1959 with 142 recipients.

The Koch Club Scholarship Fund began in 1959 in the North Quincy District with a $100 scholarship to a boy and girl graduate of North Quincy High. In 1964, the program was expanded with the addition of the Broadmeadows District and a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High School was added.

In 1968, the organization added a boy graduate of the Quincy Vocational school and in 1970 included a girl graduate to complete an achievement recognition for a boy and girl graduate in each of the high schools. The Vocational Technical School scholarships were increased from $50 to $100 this year.

Although the Koch Club is largely involved in athletic and recreation programs, the prime purpose of the scholarship fund is to impress upon the boys and girls the fact that the organization is greatly concerned with the scholastic and vocational education and ability of its members for their future happiness and success.

The Koch Club established a Permanent Scholarship Fund on the 25th anniversary of the organization in 1973 with a $5,000 grant established in the city of Quincy. The preceding action guarantees that the scholarship program will continue annually should the Koch Club no longer exist.

The Perpetual Fund has increased to $19,100, continues to grow and will assume the Koch Club Scholarship responsibilities on the 50th anniversary of the organization in 1998.

The Koch Club has appropriated and committed a total of $32,100 in funds toward the active and permanent scholarship programs during the past 28 years.

Brownell Files Bill On 'Baby M' Case Issues

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell announces today the filing of legislation designed to address the issues raised by the Baby M case.

The bill codifies the present legal principles and relates them to the surrogate parenting contract.

Brownell said:

"The bill prohibits the sale of babies by intermediaries. This prohibition attempts to prevent black market profiteering by those individuals who feed on the emotional needs of others." Brownell noted that the bill does not prohibit the surrogate mother from receiving costs, fees and compensation necessary for her care.

The legislation validates the surrogate parenting contract. However, if a petition is filed in the Probate Court, the court is obligated to determine what custody arrangement is in the best interest of the child. Brownell indicated that the best interests of the child is a paramount concern for the court in any custody dispute.

"I believe that my legislation conforms to the intentions of the Judge in the recent Baby M decision."

City To Continue Dumping At Landfill

When Phase 3 was closed, it was covered with clay, the weight of which caused it to drop about 10 feet providing more space, according to McCauley.

At the time, Quincy applied to close Phase 3, but it was never approved by the DEQE, McCauley said.

The city would now like to remove the clay, and use the area, he explained.

"I feel as mayor that we are not causing a great environmental problem," said McCauley. "We're willing to plan leachate control."

"It's a technical situation." It would cost about $2.6 million a year to truck Quincy's residential rubbish out of the city, McCauley has said.

"Trucking our rubbish out is expensive and unnecessary," said McCauley, who termed the city's talks with the state "a strong difference of opinion."

"The ball is in the court of the DEQE and the Assistant Attorney General's office," said McCauley. "We've had no formal word on what they are going to do."

Chicken Cutlets With Mushroom Stuffing

During the lovely rain of almost two weeks, when one just didn't feel like going outdoors, I decided to make something different with chicken cutlets. I cooked a mushroom stuffing to go with them.

I fixed the dish so two pieces of the cutlet had stuffing in between as in a sandwich. A cream sauce went over the cutlets and I surrounded them with fresh asparagus spears. The following recipe feeds four.

STUFFED CHICKEN CUTLETS

8 slices of chicken or turkey cutlet
6 oz of fresh mushrooms
1 Tbsp fresh parsley
2 Tbsp white wine
1/4 cup seasoned or plain bread crumbs a smidge of garlic powder
4 Tbsp olive oil
1 Tbsp butter or margerine
1 cup flour
salt and pepper to taste

Parboil the mushrooms, drain, and chop fine. In a frying pan, heat the butter and 2 tablespoons of the oil. Add the chopped mushrooms, the parsley, the garlic powder and the salt and pepper. Saute for a couple of minutes. Add the wine and bread crumbs and cook until blended. (add a little water if the mixture seems too dry). Set aside.

Flour the cutlets and quickly saute each piece in the remaining 2 tablespoons of oil. Use more oil if needed. Drain off excess oil with paper towel.

Place four of the cutlets in individual serving plates. Place stuffing on each cutlet and then cover each one with another cutlet as in a sandwich. Pour the cream sauce over the cutlets and serve with a favorite vegetable, rice, noodle or potato.

CREAM SAUCE

2 Tblsp butter or margerine
2 Tblsp flour
1 cup milk
2 Tblsp cooking sherry
salt and pepper to taste

Melt butter, add flour, milk, salt and pepper. Keep stirring until smooth. Add the sherry, and heat until blended.

Self Help Group For Sight Loss

Vision Foundation, Inc., a support organization for people coping with sight loss, now sponsors a self-help group which meets in the Quincey area.

The Quincey group is one of 20 such groups which meet across the state. The group encourages visually impaired people of all ages and backgrounds to share information, provide emotional support and suggest solutions to common every-day problems.

"The impact of sudden sight loss can be staggering," says Marshall Weimann, manager of self-help groups, who has been blind for nearly nine years. "People ask if anyone can understand how they really feel, whether anyone else has gone through this experience, and how they cope? We try to answer these questions at our group meetings."

Each self-help group is led by a visually impaired group coordinator. Transportation is provided to and from each meeting with the general geographic area. The coordinator also serves as a role model to group members.

To attend a self-help group meeting, call Weimann at Vision Foundation, (617) 926-4232 or toll free, 1-800-852-3029.

Larry Chretien Candidate For Ward 3 Council Seat

Larry Chretien, 25, of 51 North Central Ave., announces he will be a candidate for City Councillor from Ward 3.

A lifelong resident of the ward, Chretien cites two reasons for his candidacy: "I want to address the issues that are important to Quincy and I feel that I have the qualifications needed to be an effective councillor."

Chretien said he intends to provide the people of Ward 3 with leadership and accessibility, adding, "For too long, the people of Ward 3 have been on their own. They deserve a councillor who is energetic and effective. I will listen to anybody who has something to say and I'll talk to anyone who will listen."

For the last three and one-half years, Chretien has been the legislative aide to State Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy), House Chairman of the Committee on Judiciary. As a result of his run for the council seat, Chretien will resign from his post effective June 30. In addition to his duties in Brownell's office, Chretien has been involved in community affairs as a member of Quincy Community Action's Board of Directors, the Mayor's Commission on Homelessness, and the Quincy Housing Partnership.

Commenting on specific issues, Chretien said: "Over the last several years we have seen an unprecedented development boom in Quincy. Unfortunately, that boom has gotten out of control and, in some ways, has become a liability. Our neighborhoods are being threatened more and more each day - and because of traffic, getting from one end of Ward 3 to another has become an ordeal.

"We have had traffic problems for several years now and are finally getting around to hiring a traffic engineer. I want to work very closely with that person because Ward 3 has the worst traffic snarls and therefore deserves top priority."

"For the most part, I agree with the proposals to reduce development pressure. However, there are still other ways to address the issue. For example, I favor increasing the city's use of linkage - which makes new development projects pay for the costs they impose on society. I also favor adopting a land bank, which would provide us with funds to purchase open space and to help create more affordable housing."

Chretien emphasized the housing issue, stating that, "Quincy has become incredibly more expensive to live in for both renters and new homeowners. Many long-time residents, whether they are my age or in their retirement years, are being squeezed out. We have to make the city more livable and more affordable than it is today."

One of Chretien's long-time interests is the preservation of environmental quality. As part of the solution to the city's solid waste problem, he proposes that Quincy adopt a trash recycling ordinance.

"Ecologically," he said, "there is no better alternative. Given the shortage of landfill space, it also makes a whole lot of sense from the taxpayers' perspective, especially since the state is ready to provide us with financial assistance."

Chretien also intends to focus on the public schools.

"In the long run," he said, "city government's biggest responsibility is to provide its children with the best education possible. Since Proposition 2½, the city council has a larger role in shaping education policy and that's a role I would gladly accept."

Chretien is a product of the Quincy public school system, having attended Wollaston School, Montclair School, Central Junior High, and North Quincy High. In 1983 he was graduated from the State University of New York College of Environmental Science and Forestry at Syracuse with a bachelor of science degree in resource management. In June he will receive a master's degree in economic policy from Northeastern University.

Robert Jarnis To Seek School Committee Seat

Robert Jarnis of 98 Warren Ave., Wollaston, announces that he will take out candidate filing papers to begin his bid for selection to the Quincy School Committee.

The 38-year-old environmental engineer currently serves on the City-Wide Parent Organization and has been active on several task force activities regarding elementary and middle school issues. Jarnis said he hoped his concern for quality education for all Quincy students, which he feels has been demonstrated by his involvement over the past few years, would convince the voters of Quincy of the merits of his candidacy. JoAnn Bragg, treasurer of the Committee to Elect Rob Jarnis, said, "Bob is in touch with the concerns of parents and students of all our neighborhood schools."

"He is a fighter, and one who is willing to take a stand to improve the quality of education in Quincy," she said.

Those interested in supporting the Jarnis election bid may call 773-4469.

Jeremiah Dacey Receives Rotary's Highest Award

Jeremiah (Jerry) Dacey of 348 Gardner St., Hingham, a past president of the Quincy Rotary Club, was presented Rotary's highest award at the rotary district 795 conference held recently at the Sturbridge Sheraton.

The Quincy Rotary Club donated $1,000 to the Rotary International Foundation in Dacey's name, thus designating him a "Paul Harris Fellow," an award named after the founder of rotary.

Making the surprise presentation was Quincy rotary club treasurer Robert Guarnieri who highlighted Dacey's rotary background and his work as chairman of rotary district 795's "Polio Plus" committee.

His committee is part of the major fund raising project of rotary international which is to immunize the children of the world against polio and other diseases.

Dacey's wife, Mary, placed the Paul Harris pin on his lapel as other Quincy Rotarians looked on including Dr. Edmond L.

Denski, Bert Eckblom and Russell Johnson.

The Quincy Rotary Club was also presented an award, as was the Taunton Rotary Club, by District Governor Joseph Coccia of Cranston, R.I., for the best "Polio Plus" project, for which Dacey was instrumental.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

When we celebrate Mother's Day, we will be continuing an age-old tradition. People have been honoring mothers and motherhood for thousands and thousands of years.

Tiny statues of Mother-Goddesses were among the caveman's earliest artifacts. Some scholars think these doll-like statues may have been given to little girls, in hopes that they would grow up to be mothers of many children. The ancient Egyptians also admired large families; the more children a woman had, the greater her prestige. In "family portraits" painted on tomb walls, over 4,000 years ago, the proud Egyptian mama is generally surrounded by at least 10 or 12 youngsters. By old English custom, mid-Lent Sunday was "Mothering Sunday" when people went back to the "Mother Church" of their baptism and also visited their mothers with flowers and other gifts. Small rich pastries called "mothering cakes" were popular presents for mama.

Mother's Day is a day that has shown it has heart and living interests for all classes, races, creeds, native and foreign born, rich and poor. To all mothers on this special day, we wish you a very happy and joyous day...

Invitations To Burglary

Should you purchase a color TV set, do not use the empty carton as a receptacle for rubbish. It is a simple matter to drive down streets on rubbish collection day and see who has a new color TV.

If you have a duplicate key made, do not leave the key with anyone to be picked up later. Stay with the key until your business is concluded, and see to it that there are no other keys made at that time. There may be some individuals in business that would duplicate your key and resell it to house thieves for a good price.

If you have a door with glass panes (rear doors especially) install a double cylinder deadbolt lock. In this manner, should a thief break a pane in the rear door and reach in he cannot unlock this door by merely turning a knob.

Don't advertise your vacation plans. Thieves read the papers too.

Should a death occur in your home, be certain to leave a responsible party in the home during the wakes and especially the day of the funeral. Many house thieves read the obituary column to obtain dates when a family will assuredly be away.

Never open a door, front or rear, unless you know who is there. Check identification of salesmen, workers or repairmen.

Upon retiring at night, be certain all doors and accessible windows are secure, especially the basement doors and windows.

If you are in the habit of paying for items by check ... do not openly show your check book balance stub to others. Disclosure of the balance can indicate your potential wealth for future house breaks.

When you move into a new home or apartment, change locks immediately, or have new tumblers reset. If your keys are lost, change the lock or tumblers.

To most of us, trouble is to be avoided if possible. To a burglar, trouble can mean months or years behind bars. Such things as alarms, bright lights and barking dogs mean trouble for the burglar.

Call the police if you notice that a street light has burned out. Light is a great crime deterrent.

Don't try to hide a key in a place you're sure no burglar would think of looking. An experienced burglar will be sure to look there.

The above tips are all part of the Neighborhood Watch program. Join Neighborhood Watch, -- it works.

20 Haitian Orphan Boys To Receive First Communion At St. John's

By JOHN NOONAN

A unique First Communion liturgy will be held Sunday, Mother's Day at St. John's Church during the 11 a.m. Mass to be celebrated by Bishop Daniel Hart, regional bishop of the Quincy-South Shore area.

Twenty Haitian orphan boys, ages 8 to 18, will receive their first Holy Communion. Sixteen youths from St. John's who will make their first communion on Saturday will join the Haitian visitors at the Sunday liturgy.

There will be a reception following the Mass at St. John's school for the communicants. The Mass will be televised by Quincy Cable Systems Ch. 3.

The Haitian youths will be guests of St. John's Parish for a two week period beginning May 8. The youths are touring the United States in a special production entitled "Rue Soleil."

Special visitors to the Sunday Mass will be a busload of students from St. Matthew's School, Dorchester.

On Monday (May 11) at 10 a.m. Mayor Francis McCauley will welcome the Haitian youths to the city at a special ceremony at Quincy City Hall. Later during their stay in Quincy the youths will be welcomed at the Boston Archdiocese Chancery by Cardinal Bernard Law on May 20.

On Wednesday, May 13, the group will present their musical production describing the life of an orphan on the streets of Haiti at Archbishop Williams High School at 8 p.m. Tickets are now on sale and may be obtained by contacting members of the Parish committee or by calling 773-7321.

The show will consist of Creole songs and dances focusing on the impoverished life of a street child in Haiti.

Each boy is a victim of extreme poverty in Haiti. Each boy has lived on the streets of Haiti.

This unique touring company consists of these boys who have been rescued from the streets, the dump, and the youth detention center in Port-au-Prince, Haiti, by Michael Geilenfeld, a former missionary of Charity who is devoting his life to saving the lives of young Haitians abandoned by their families and left to starve.

Geilenfeld has gathered these boys together under one roof, St. Joseph's Boys' Home, where he cares for them and teaches them not only the three R's but some art, music, English, and religion, as well. His goal is for these young men, equipped with an education and an altered look, on life, to go out into the world as self-respecting, self-supporting, solid citizens.

Geilenfeld has taught the boys the songs and dances of their country in their native

Creole as well as a few delightful pieces in English. He has three goals in bringing "his company" on tour in the states. The primary goal, according to Geilenfeld, "is to give glory to God and to share with the materially cluttered western world, the authentic values and joys that proceed from God-centered simplicity of life."

The second reason for the tour is to give the boys "hope," to show them something of the world other than the starving conditions they have known in Haiti. And last, but not least, he hopes to raise enough money to pay off debts on St. Joseph's Home and to make additional homes possible, so that more boys can be saved from a life doomed to suffering and sorrow.

Parishioners of St. John's have been actively involved in the Haitian poverty problem. Some have spent weeks ministering and feeding the homeless and hungry. Others have provided contributions to aid the cause.

Parishioners of St. Boniface Parish have also been very much involved in aiding the homeless and hungry by their visitations and contributions.

The Executive Board of St. John's Parish Council has unanimous approval to the Parish role of host to the youths during their two week stay in Quincy.

'Festival Of The Christian Home' Sunday At Bethany Church

The secular observance known as Mother's Day, will be broadened to include the whole family and will be celebrated as the "Festival of the Christian Home," Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church.

There will be two worship services, at 9 a.m. in the chapel, and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary of the church, located at the corner of Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center, opposite the Quincy High School.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon titled "House on the Rock," based on the scriptural texts found in Deuteronomy 6:4-9 and the Gospel of Matthew 7:24-27.

The lay scripture readers will be Robert I. Lockwood in the chapel and Barbara A. MacFarlane in the sanctuary.

The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will serve as liturgist at both services.

During the 10 a.m. sanctuary service the Chancel Choir, under the direction of Peter F. Krasinski, organist, will sing as the offertory, "Let All the World in Every Corner Sing" composed by Geoffrey Shaw. Bethany's baritone soloist, Paul David Johnson, will sing Gounod's "Ave Maria."

The worship service will be broadcast "live" direct from the sanctuary at 10 a.m. over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday school will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through eighth grade. Nursery care for babies and toddlers is provided under the professional supervision of Bethany's early childhood coordinator, Denise Fleming.

At 11 a.m. following the worship service, there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. A special ceremony will take place beginning at 11:15 during the fellowship hour. An antique grandfather clock will be presented to Bethany Church by the descendants of John and Mary Roberts. The clock, which was built around 1840, originally stood in the family home in Bangor, Wales.

Individuals and families from the community are invited to come and share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday school.

For additional information regarding Bethany's ministries and programs, contact the church office, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., weekdays, telephone 479-7300.

Mother's Day Breakfast Sunday At Squantum Church

Worshippers attended an Easter service for the third week in a row at the First Church of Squantum.

It was highlighted by an observance of the Lord's Supper.

The sermon, which was entitled "Why We Celebrate," was preached by the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor.

Seated with the pastor at the Lord's Table were Deacons Gretchen Bumpus, Stewart Scott, Dana Olson, Barbara Anderson and Lew Townson.

Two choirs participated. The Youth Choir sang "Thy Word" by Amy Grant. The Chancel Choir sang "The Lord Is a Mighty God" by Felix Mendelssohn. Mary Ruth Scott directed.

The hymns were "Come, Ye Faithful, Raise the Strain," "The Day of Resurrection," and "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today."

Ralph and Del Dougherty were the greeters, Harry Holmes and Ralph Dougherty were the ushers. Barbara Edgar and Sandra Ahearn hosted the Fellowship Hour. During that same time after the service, members of the Evening Friendship Circle held a bake sale for the whole congregation.

Youth of the church are sponsoring a special Mother's Day breakfast next Sunday at 9:15 a.m. Reservations can be made by calling Hazel Mayne at 328-4367.

The service will begin at 10:30 a.m. Mothers are particularly invited to attend with their families.

Ecumenical Service At St. Joseph's Sunday

St. Joseph's Church will host the members of the Quincy Point Congregational Church in an ecumenical service Sunday at 7 p.m.

Rev. Carol Atwood-Lyon and Rev. Frederick Atwood-Lyon were the first hosts of this ecumenical service this year. Conducting the services at this ecumenical service will be Rev. Joseph Downey, pastor. Rev. Kevin Sipe, Diacon, Rev. Mr. John Jettette and Sister Anne Judge, S.N.D.

The service continues the tradition of two of the former pastors both of whom served their congregations in Quincy Point for over 25 years as pastor. Monsignor John Allston and Rev. Bedros Boharian.

All members and friends of these two churches are cordially invited to attend.

These ecumenical services are exploring the history and beliefs of both churches.

Prince Of Peace Chapel Formal Opening Delayed

The Rev. G. Aidan Reardon, S.S.B., vicar of the newly formed Chapel of the Prince of Peace and Old Catholic Centre, said that an unexpected illness prevented the formal opening Saturday of the church at 329 Newport Ave., Wollaston.

Subsequent doctor's orders prevented a follow-up service Sunday morning, he said.

Arrangements for alternate coverage has ensured that a repetition of such an event is most unlikely, according to Rev. Reardon.

The intended schedule of evening prayers, morning services, nursing home, hospital and home visits has not been disrupted by the incident, he said.

The Old Catholic Benedictines, who operate the chapel, formerly held Masses in the chapel of a Dorchester Lutheran parish, and conducted administrative and pastoral services from the Deanery of St. Boniface, also in Dorchester.

The Old Catholic Community has its Catholic roots in the Netherlands' See of Utrecht, which separated from Rome over a political dispute, and in the Old Catholic Movement of Germany, in 1870, which disputed the rulings of Vatican Council I regarding papal infallibility, according to Rev. Reardon.

Masses are conducted according to the Tridentine (pre-1960) liturgy, sometimes in Latin, but most often in vernacular English.

Fr. Reardon is assisted at the center by Benedictine Frs. C. Joseph Tuscher of Hingham and D. Anselm Demes of Winthrop, as curates. He studied for the priesthood in Holland and was ordained in West Germany. He is a Wollaston native.

The Prince of Peace Chapel is a member of the Inter-Church Council of Wollaston and North Quincy. The vicar delivered a sermon as part of the council's Good Friday ecumenical observance of the "Seven Last Words of Jesus," at Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

He said that interested visitors are welcome at any of the chapel's services, or to call the center, at 472-8277, for additional information on the Old Catholic Community.

We're Glad You Asked!

I UNDERSTAND SOME PEOPLE PRE-PLAN THEIR OWN FUNERALS. WHY DO THEY?

Three important reasons come to mind at once. Pre planning permits free choice, makes one's wishes known, and does away with any possible disagreement among the bereaved as to what to do and how much to spend.

In effect, one eases the burden placed on the immediate family in terms of both the proper course of action to follow and the peace of mind in knowing that arrangements have been made in advance.

Because we feel that this question may be of value to many residents in the community we serve, we're glad you asked. We welcome your questions and comments on this and other subjects in private or publicly through this column.

MBTA Paratransit Services

Mayor Francis McCauley announces that the MBTA, through Transportation Management Services, Inc., will soon provide specialized paratransit services, known as "The Ride," to persons who are unable to use public transit.

Contract negotiations will begin soon for the firm, Transportation Management Services, Inc., to provide this service in the city of Quincy, as well as in the towns of Braintree, Milton and Weymouth, McCauley noted.

He stated that a letter of interest and a request for proposals were solicited from the city of Quincy by the MBTA's general manager, James F. O'Leary. Quincy was selected from North and South Shore communities for this specialized transportation service, he said.

McCauley noted that the plan, according to the letter he received from General Manager O'Leary, is to have individuals pre-register with the MBTA.

Individuals will need to provide evidence of disability and residency in the area to be serviced.

After being accepted, handicapped individuals will utilize pre-purchased tickets for a fee of 75 cents one-way.

The transportation service will be available from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, with no restrictions as to the purpose of the trip.

McCauley added that the project has been of much interest to the Mayor's Commission on Handicapped Affairs.

The commission has seven appointed members, and was established in 1984, by Mayor McCauley.

The Mayor's Commission meets on the second Monday of each month in the second floor conference room in City Hall.

It investigates matters of importance to those who are handicapped, such as "The Ride" service.

"The service is of vital importance to the citizens of the city," McCauley said. "It is a concept that can only benefit the disabled citizens of Quincy, when put into effect." Mayor McCauley noted that providing this transportation service could mean that individuals no longer need to rely on someone else for rides to and from stores, doctors and relatives. It means, in essence, that disabled people will become more independent, he said.

Mayor McCauley added that a date has not yet been established for the start of "The Ride" service.

"When such information is received, it will be made public," he said.

A JOB FAIR was held recently at State Street South, North Quincy with business representatives such as Ann Binder, president and founder of Ambassador Personnel, Inc., Quincy, speaking with applicants such as Helen Snow of Quincy. The event was sponsored by the Personnel Managers Group of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

$5,000 Grant For After School Child Care Program

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women announces the receipt of a $5,000 grant from the Office for Children.

The Quincy award was one of nine statewide programs funded by the O.F.C. This grant will be used to develop an after school child care program within the Quincy public schools.

The School Department has promised the use of space in one school to start a pilot program which is scheduled to open with 20 children in September, 1987.

The task force that developed this program is comprised of Connie Tandy, the chair and liaison from the Women's Commission, Alicia Coletti, Quincy public schools, Tim Eason, South Shore Day Care, Jean Doroni, YMCA, Betty Southwick, Beechwood Community Life Center, Barbara Dixon, Quincy Community Action, Pat Gallivan, Department of Social Services, and Dorothy McLaughlin, a parent representative. This task force will select a responsible board of directors and form a non-profit organization to centralize and oversee the additional school sites to be developed in the future. Each site will have its own parent advisory board that will be responsible to the non-profit agency.

The Beechwood Community Life Center has been contracted to start up and develop the pilot program for the first year. Beechwood has been running after school and various other children's programs successfully for three years.

The program will include health and safety, recreation, arts and crafts, opportunities for quiet times to rest, study, or do homework, enrichment and field trips. The plan is to tap into the resources available within our community. The Quincy Recreation Department has pledged its help and support. The Commission hopes to encourage internship programs in the local colleges, as well as to utilize the vast potential of the active senior citizen community.

Connie Tandy, task force chairwoman, remarked, "The Commission is especially pleased about the award of this planning grant from the Office for Children because in the survey we compiled last fall, so many parents expressed a strong interest in after school child care in Quincy."

Admittance is free.

Over 75 publishers, from around the country, will display materials that are geared to individualization, self-instruction, learning styles, and basic skills.

Main emphasis of the conference is to familiarize all who attend with new educational developments, a wide range of commercial materials for all instructional levels, and provisions for various paces in learning.

The conference will feature the latest books, materials, equipment, hands-on demonstrations, free materials, numerous school systems participating, an opportunity to exchange ideas, view changing skill concepts, large parking area-police controlled, and light refreshments.

There will also be workshops such as "Quincy in the Classroom," presented by Alicia Coletti, "Stress Management for Teachers," Frederick Andelman, "Effective Schools," Nora F. Todd, "The Journal Writing You Way to Personal and Academic Growth," Dr. Evelyn Pezzulich, "A Teacher Writes Her Own Textbook," Francine Wacht, and "Newspaper in the Classroom," Gwendolyn Wharton.

Raiderettes Bomb Cambridge 15-0 For 8th Straight Win

By TOM SULLIVAN
The North Quincy girls' softball team bombed Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 15-0, Monday, improving its record to 8-0 (3-0 in the Suburban League).

Barbara Webster's Raiderettes, who need only three wins in their next 10 games to qualify for the Eastern Mass. tournament, will host Newton North Friday at Mitchell-McCoy Field, will be at Waltham Monday and will face Quincy next Wednesday at Faxon Field.

Kristin Drake, who has pitched every game for North, was at her best Monday as she held Cambridge to one hit. She struck out four and walked three.

Nancy Flukes had a triple, double and single and four RBI. Freshmen Crystal Moffet had a two-run homer and a single and Nancy Leonard had two hits and stole three bases.

Ann Anderlonis, North's number two pitcher and regular center fielder, has been sidelined all season and returned to the lineup Monday. She will be able to give Drake some pitching help the rest of the season.

Webster took over the North coaching reins this spring, succeeding the retired Mary Pratt. She coached Quincy for the past 15 years and three of her teams made the Eastern Mass. tournament.

"This is a fine group of girls and we have a well-balanced team," she said. "Kristin has done a wonderful job pitching, everyone has been hitting and the defense has been excellent."

Flukes, Ann McGuiggan

and Colleen Hannon are the leading batters, but everyone has hit and when someone slumps, someone else takes up the slack. Our infield has played very well with Hannon moving from second base to first, Moffet playing second, Flukes shortstop and Leonard third base. The all-senior outfield of McGuiggan, Fricia Grant and Lisa Mitton has been outstanding, both offensively and defensively."

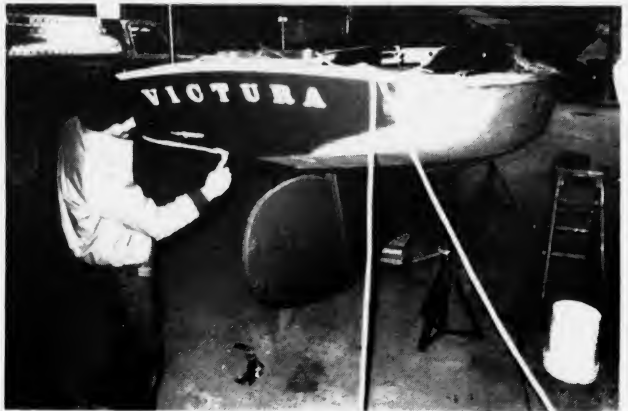

Drake continued her outstanding pitching last week as the North girls upset Brockton, 5-2. Drake pitched a two-hitter.

The Raiderettes had only four hits but combined them with eight bases on balls.

Leonard went 2 for 3 and Grant had an RBI single.

Brockton loaded the bases in the last inning but Drake ended the game with one of her three strikeouts.

PRESIDENT John F. Kennedy's boat "Victoria", a 25-foot Wianco Senior Class sloop, is undergoing extensive restoration under the direction of Doug Kent at Marina Bay. The second annual JFK regatta will be held at Marina Bay on May 23 and 24.

JFK Regatta May 23-24

The second annual JFK Regatta will be held on Memorial Day weekend in Boston Harbor.

The two-day event, on May 23 and May 24, is sponsored by Marina Bay of North Quincy to benefit the Friends of the Kennedy Library.

O'Connell Management Company, Inc., developer of Marina Bay. "In the near future this race will compete with the major classic sailing events in the country."

The Regatta weekend begins Friday night, May 22, with a skippers' reception at the Library, which overlooks the Harbor at Columbia Point in Dorchester. Competition begins Saturday morning at 11 a.m. and most of the boats are expected back in Marina Bay by 5 p.m. Boats will cover the same course and time on Sunday, the JFK Regatta culminates with an awards ceremony at Marina Bay at 5 p.m. on Sunday.

First Ladies Having A Rough Season

The Quincy girls' softball team is having another rough season, losing all seven of its games so far this season.

Last week bases on balls killed the first ladies as they lost to Newton North, 22-3, and Waltham, 16-6.

The Quincy girls faced Brookline yesterday (Wednesday), will play at Brockton Friday and will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday and North Quincy next Wednesday, both games at 3:30 at Faxon Field.

In the loss to Newton North, Terry Duggan pitched six innings of six-hit relief but she and starter Nancy Szivzaro gave up 22 walks to make things easy for the winners.

Tracy Chaupetta and Tina Calabro had RBI singles and Donna Deane had a single. Kris Curtin and Duggan played fine defensive games. Against Waltham the First Ladies had a 6-1 lead but Waltham took advantage of 13 walks, 12 coming in the second inning when it scored 11 runs. The winners also collected nine hits.

Catcher Sue Cullen went 3 for 4, and Curtin, Szivzaro, Chaupetta and Duggan had RBI in a six-run second inning. Camie Levanage was a bright spot for Quincy with four innings of three-run relief pitching.

Senior Olympics Underway May 11

A record number of entries, seems assured for the fifth annual Quincy Senior Olympic Games for people 55 and over which will be held next week.

Last year's entry list was the largest and an even bigger number is expected this year for the popular event sponsored by the City of Quincy and the Beechwood Community Life Center.

Quincy's Win Streak Snapped

Quincy's baseball team had its four-game win streak snapped last week when Waltham scored four runs in the last two innings to top the Presidents, 7-2.

Quincy played Malden Tuesday in the makeup of a previously postponed game, played Brookline yesterday (Wednesday), will host Brockton's powerhouse Friday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will be at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday.

Quincy will meet North Quincy next Wednesday night at 7 p.m. at Adams Field in the season's first night game.

Tom Logan, one of the Suburban League's top hitters, drove in two runs in the fifth inning to pull the Presidents to within a run, 3-2, before Waltham clinched the decision in the next two innings.

Dan Overby (1-1) was the losing pitcher as Quincy dropped to 6-3 overall and 1-1 in the league.

North Would Like To Forget Brockton, Cambridge Rindge

North Quincy's baseball team faced Brockton and Cambridge Rindge and Latin, the two top teams in the Suburban League and two of the top-ranked teams in Eastern Mass. in its last two games, and Coach Leo Donovan would just as soon forget them.

Monday Cambridge scored five runs in the first inning and went on to top North, 9-1, dropping the Raiders' record to 4-6.

The previous game was a nightmare for the Raiders as Brockton rolled to a 19-4 victory.

North will be at Newton North Friday, will host Waltham, another league power, Monday and will meet Quincy next Wednesday night at 7 at Adams Field in the first night game of the season.

"Cambridge has a much better team than I thought and Brockton is a powerhouse as usual," said Donovan. "Mark DiMattio pitched all the way against Cambridge and did fairly well after the five-run first inning. He struck out eight but Cambridge has a fine hitting team. We played well defensively, but their batters were just too much for us."

Freshman Jeff Calvert, an excellent catcher, and Dan Santry hit doubles to account for North's lone run.

"The least said about the Brockton game the better," said Donovan. "The score was 2-1 early but then everything went wrong for us. They hit the ball hard and took advantage of walks and errors."

Meeting the Seahawks for the second time, Quincy shot out to a quick 2-0 lead on two goals by Carthas, one short-handed, with Gallagher and DiMattia assisting on the first and Gallagher and Kelley on the second.

Goalie Walsh and the defense completely shut down the Seahawks' offense and Gallagher added an unassisted goal in the second period.

Senior League Wins Wilson Memorial All-Star Game

The Quincy Youth Arena's Senior Hockey League All-Stars again defeated the Executive League All-Stars, 8-2, in the recent fourth annual Wilson Memorial Hockey Scholarship game at the Youth Arena.

The real winner, however, was the QYHA scholarship program. All proceeds were donated by Carol Wilson to the scholarship fund in memory of her husband, Dick, a former goalie in the Executive League, who passed away in 1973.

Recent recipients have been Kevin Zanardelli, who attends U Mass Boston, and Tom Benson, Norwich University Class of 1987 and captain of the hockey team. Both young men learned the fundamentals of hockey while playing in the QYHA.

Co-chairmen of the event were Charlie Watt and Bill Lewis. Special thanks go to Ted Miller and Gulluckson, collectors; Paul Bausmer, refreshment chairman; Marty Tolson, publicity chairman; Bob Daly and Paul Hussey, referees, and Michael Cronin, scorer.

Also, thanks go to Beverly

Reinhardt, arena manager, and Tom Benson, chairman of the arena board, for donating the ice time.

The Senior League was represented by Steve Blazer, Matt Gorman and John Morris of the Fowler House; Frank McGinnis, Jim Moore and Tom Gerry of Kelly's Pub; Dave Peters, Jim Fitzpatrick, Glen Ferguson and goalie Bob Tierney of Kane's Place; and John and Tom Lindley and Bob Hayes of Joe's Pub.

Playing for the Executive League were Chip Linscott, Bob Reardon, Dennis O'Connell, Fred Cobban, Rick Patten, Bill Shea, John Ryan, Jamie Pontremoli, Kevin Jago, Marty Tolson, Jack Aldred, Gary DeCoste, Peter Janis, Peter DiBona, goalies Chuck Hughes and Billy Parsley. Coaches were Ed O'Riordan and Bibby Lewis.

The evening could not have been successful without the generosity of the Wilson family and the many friends of Dick Wilson, in whose memory the game was played.

Donations to the Wilson Memorial can be sent to the Quincy Youth Hockey Association, 62 Murphy Memorial Drive, Quincy, 02169, attention of Lorraine Rooney.

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

You can prevent C-V joint problems with periodic checks and quality care

Ⓒ The wonderful world of front wheel drive (FWD) motoring carries new owner maintenance responsibilities with it.

Front wheel drive constant velocity (C-V) joints are the grown-up descendants of the universal joints in rear wheel drive cars.

Their role is to transmit driving force from the engine through two short drive shafts to the front wheels. In the process, they have to cope with up-and-down suspension movements, steering changes in-and-out movements of the driveshafts and other forces U-joints never heard of. It's easy to see why they're so important to FWD cars.

There are four C-V joints on each FWD car, and each C-V joint is protected by a "boot" made of neoprene or a synthetic material.

An American success story

C-V joints were invented in America in 1928. Today Perfect Circle, one of Dana's brand names, stands as the only U.S. manufacturer of C-V joints solely for the aftermarket.

C-V joints first came to Americans' attention when FWD cars began to flood our highways in the late 1970s. Perfect Circle estimates there will be 84 million FWD vehicles on our roads by 1995.

What can go wrong?

Today's C-V joints are marvels of high-tech engineering, good for 75,000 miles of trouble-free driving under normal circumstances.

The most likely cause of C-V joint damage is failure of the protective boot. If a boot becomes torn or cracked, it will let out the special C-V joint lubricant, and let in dirt or moisture.

The chief causes of C-V joint boot damage are road debris, potholes and improper towing procedures, along with extremes of temperature and simple old age.

The C-V joint itself can be damaged by dirt or by rust. Some damage isn't terminal. C-V joints can be reconditioned.

However, the best bet is usually a new C-V joint. Perfect Circle, for example, offers a lifetime limited warranty on new joints, so why try to pinch pennies?

How do you know you've got problems?

Running over a large stone, exhaust pipe or wire in the road is a common cause of C-V joint trouble. If you're worried about possible damage to your car, have it checked at the first opportunity.

The appearance of unusual drivetrain noises is another clue. Don't ignore these noises in a FWD car!

Perfect Circle experts estimate you have about eight hours of driving time from boot failure until the C-V joint is permanently damaged.

Humming or knocking noises, popping or clicking sounds in turns, or vibrations that appear at specific speeds are potential C-V joint trouble signals.

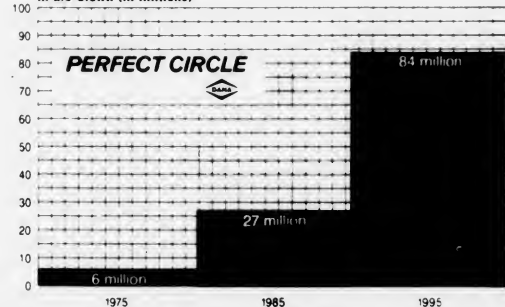

At the garage: What you need to know

C-V joint repairs are not for amateurs. Skilled professionals with chassis training and the required special tools are the order of the day.

And C-V joint work can be expensive. A boot replacement might cost $50-$60 for parts and labor, and complete C-V joint replacement can run upwards of $250 ($60).

Finally, our Perfect Circle experts suggest that you insist on quality installation and quality parts from reputable manufacturers. Look for knowledgeable service technicians, brand names with national reputations, and warranties you can make use of anywhere.

In a lighter mood a selection of folk songs from Tickets for this concert are $5 for adults and $3 for seniors and students. They may be reserved in advance by calling 479-6343 or 328-5970. They will also be available at the door on the night of the concert.

WEEK OF: May 7

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Your home is your castle, and you always make it inviting. In fact, providing comfort to others is one of the beautiful aspects of your character. On the negative side, you can be frustratingly stubborn. Work at becoming more flexible; there could be a major career reward come autumn.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Opting for fame over fortune is the week's trend. Awards and perhaps small bonuses are featured now. Temptations abound through the weekend; selectivity is the byword here.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Supervisors are more generously disposed to your ideas. Advancement may be in the current picture. Home life becomes hectic. Older relative appreciates your company more than you realize.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Subtle approach may not be a successful one. To make your point, make yourself heard loud and clear. Artistic streak surfaces; this is a good time for crafts and related hobbies.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Combining diverse interests makes for an intriguing week. Key strides can be made in career -- but don't force any issues. Contest of wit are featured -- who wins is not the issue.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Temperamental friend becomes calmer thanks largely to your influence. You and new acquaintance discover an important common interest. A lighter touch is important in relationships.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Loved one's reaction to your ideas may be unexpected. Invitations arrive to some glamorous events. Health reviews and visits to ailing people are prominent in the week's picture.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Laughter helps to ease the tension in more than one situation this week. Travel ideas may be put into action now. Conferences take up time but are worth the trouble.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Joint ventures are highlighted at this time. Cultural events -- possibly related to the theater -- are accented. Partner becomes less predictable, more easygoing, and more interesting.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Thursday-Friday accent new directions in relationships. Weekend offers opportunities to mingle with favorite friends and family members. Financial obligations dominate time starting Monday.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

The focus is on money matters from Thursday through Monday, this is a good time to learn more about finance. Relationships become more natural from about Tuesday on.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

New areas of interest appeal to you, you may be finding yourself signing up for a program in economics, yoga, or cooking -- or even all three. Serious discussions should not be avoided.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

Until Sunday or Monday, you're laying the groundwork for assorted projects, starting Tuesday, you step into action. News from faraway corners requires a prompt reply.

CITY OF QUINCY

Proposed Statement of Community Development Objectives and Projected Use of CDBG Funds

1987-1988 Program Year

I Introduction
The City of Quincy will receive $1,837,000 in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Entitlement funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for the 1987-1988 program year. This statement describes community development objectives of the City of Quincy and projected use of CDBG funds for the 1987-1988 program year and expenditure of CDBG funds to date for the program year ending June 30, 1987. Public comments regarding this statement are welcome and should be addressed to the Department of Planning and Community Development, Quincy City Hall.

II Community Development Objectives
As the City plans and implements its community development activities, it aims to carry out the CDBG Program's primary national objectives which include decent housing and a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunity, principally for persons of low and moderate income.

To this end, the City has established several objectives for its CDBG program:

1. Housing
 - Maintain decent, safe and sanitary housing conditions for all residents.
 - Preserve and rehabilitate the City's housing stock.
 - Create affordable rental and homeownership opportunities for low and moderate income residents.
2. Public Service
 - Provide a variety of health programs, social services, educational and cultural opportunities and recreational activities for residents of all ages.
3. Economic Development
 - Foster economic stability and growth in the City's commercial areas.
 - Leverage private investment with the community and create additional employment opportunities for the City's low and moderate income residents.
4. Public Works
 - Maintain and improve the City's infrastructure in order to promote neighborhood revitalization.
 - Renovate existing public parks and playgrounds and construct new recreational facilities.

Through the establishment and pursuit of these objectives, the City of Quincy makes a firm commitment to all components of its neighborhoods - housing, infrastructure, parks and playgrounds, public services and commercial development. The projected use of funds allocated for the 1987-1988 program has been developed so as to give maximum feasible priority to activities which will benefit low and moderate income persons and which aid in the elimination of slums and blight.

NOTES

1. The above expenditures were drawn from the CDBG allocation for the 1986-1987 program year and from previous years' allocations.
2. The City anticipates additional program income from revolving loan funds, of $200,000 to be used to fund residential rehabilitation loans.

A major objective established for the past year's CDBG program is the preservation and improvement of the City's housing stock, particularly those residences located in low and moderate income neighborhoods. A review of expenditures indicates the City's commitment to carrying out this objective. Approximately one third of total expenditures has been spent on major housing initiatives. A housing rehabilitation program providing low cost loans or grants to eligible homeowners and landlords and operating costs and capitalization of a revolving loan pool to be operated by Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services in its new target area, Quincy Point. Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services provides rehabilitation loans tailored to the financial capabilities of eligible applicants.

Provisions of basic and necessary human services, another goal of the 1986-1987 CDBG program, is addressed by the program's public service component. This includes operation of seven community centers providing health, educational and social programs for residents of all ages and provision of a range of services for senior citizens such as a transportation program, drop-in center and various outreach efforts. While public services expenditures are capped by CDBG regulations, the City is consistently at the maximum level of expenditures allowed.

The City increased its efforts toward the goal of commercial area revitalization by initiating a commercial development loan fund to provide local businesses with low cost loans for expansion and rehabilitation. Businesses receiving assistance under this program, in turn, create job opportunities for low and moderate income persons or assist in eliminating slums and blight.

The City's commitment to its stated goal of improving the infrastructure and renovating public parks and playgrounds is reflected in approximately $85,000 in expenditures for tree planting and reconstruction of streets and sidewalks.

Finally, the City has given maximum feasible priority to funding activities which benefit low and moderate income families. Nearly 80% of CDBG funds expended over the past program year were used for that purpose.

Displacement

The City of Quincy undertakes all of its CDBG programs and activities in a manner which either eliminates or minimizes the displacement of persons. To this end, the City has prepared and is following a displacement plan. A copy of this plan is available through the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development.

Quincy Cooperative Stockholders Approve Acquisition

At a special stockholders meeting held today, the stockholders of The Quincy Co-operative Bank approved the proposed acquisition of the Quincy Co-operative Bank by Co-operative Bancorp.

The proposed acquisition calls for Co-operative Bancorp to pay $30 in cash for each share of common stock of The Quincy Co-operative Bank, for a transaction total of approximately $58 million.

The Quincy Co-operative Bank will become a wholly-owned subsidiary along with The Co-operative Bank of Concord under the holding company, Co-operative Bancorp.

The acquisition is subject to regulatory approvals.

Excel Bancorp First Quarter Income Up

Excel Bancorp, Inc. and its operating subsidiary, Quincy Savings Bank, produced net income of $3.3 million or 47 percent share, for the first quarter ended March 31, 1987.

The results exceeded 1986 first quarter net income of $1.5 million by 120 percent.

As of March 31, 1987, total assets equalled $580.8 million, a 28.3 percent increase over the $452.6 million reported at March 31, 1986. Total deposits of $427.1 million represented an increase of $30.6 million from the same period last year.

"Improvements over the comparable period last year included, on a pretax basis, gains of $546 thousand from sales of real estate loans, compared to losses of $616 thousand during 1986, and gains of $14 million from sales of securities, compared to gains of $754 thousand during 1986," said Charles A. Pearce, Chairman and CEO.

Total loan originations for the quarter rose 65.6 percent, to $80.6 million from $48.7 million in the fourth quarter of 1986. Mortgage loans serviced for others increased to $342 million from the $323 million level at December 31, 1986. Excel Bancorp increased its loan-loss provision for fiscal 1987 to $50 thousand per quarter from $25 thousand per quarter. "Our net charge-offs averaged only .10 percent of total assets last year," noted Pearce, "but our increasing level of commercial lending makes it prudent for us to expand our reserves."

Return on average assets rose to an annualized 2.35 percent from the 2.02 percent announced for the fourth quarter of 1986 while return on average equity was an annualized 11.39 percent.

DeCristofaro Moves Against Sludge

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore P. DeCristofaro has directed the Executive Director of the Park and Recreation Board NOI to accept any of the "clean sludge" from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

DeCristofaro said he feels there has not been sufficient study of this material to be certain it is absolutely safe for humans as well as animals that may be exposed to it.

Children are of particular concern, said Councillor DeCristofaro.

2 Hotels, Office Building For West Quincy

The 125,000 square foot office building, with a restaurant and health facilities, will be the last to be constructed, according to Ricciardi.

All three buildings will be within walking distance, he said.

Ricciardi downplayed any negative impact the nearby city landfill would have on the project.

"The two hotels are 800 to 900 feet from the landfill," said Ricciardi.

Mayor Francis McCauley noted that the landfill will eventually be closed.

Ricciardi also said that 25 acres of land in the area will be donated to the MDC as a green belt area.

He noted that variances from the Zoning Board of Appeals will be needed for the hotels.

License Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a request from St. Ann School to hold a flea market on May 16 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.
- Granted a request from Jewelry Work Shop, 53

Franklin St., for an Old Gold-Silver license to purchase used jewelry for the making of new.

- Granted a request from Jay M. Johnson, 51 Stockade Path, Duxbury, for a Common Victualer license as held by Napoli Pizzeria, 1570 Hancock St., with the stipulation that he submit to the board a copy of his financial statement. He will use the same name for the establishment.

- Continued for two weeks a hearing concerning the conditions at 663-669 Quincy Shore Dr. and 190-194 Vassall St. as per the Zoning Board of Appeals Decision, Case No. 2493, regarding the installation of larger gas storage tanks. The application for the license to increase gas storage will be advertised and the board also requested to see a copy of the landscaping plans for the site.

• Continued for two weeks a hearing on the request from Dunkin' Donuts, 687 Hancock St., Wollaston, for a Common Victualer license. The board said Ward Councillor Steve McGrath wants to meet with neighboring residents about the matter.

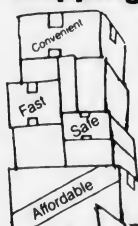

- Withdrew without prejudice a request from Mass. Engine and Auto, 45 Hancock St., for a repair shop and gas license. The location is listed as "Business Zone C," which does not allow for the operation of an auto repair shop.

Anselmo To Return After Resigning From School Committee

Veteran School Committeeman Frank Anselmo who resigned last week says he will return, because supporters have urged him to come back.
Anselmo walked out of last week's School Committee meeting in a huff announcing his resignation enroute.

Two matters under discussion at the meeting triggered his walk.

The School Committee had voted 4-3 to close a middle school but did not designate which one.

Anselmo is strongly opposed to closing any more schools.

Anselmo also wants a bond issue to finance the repair and maintenance of schools but Mayor Francis McCauley, who is chairman of the School Committee, has not moved along that line.

Though they have not always seen eye to eye over the years, McCauley said he is glad that Anselmo is coming back.

"I think I will stay," said Anselmo, 88. "We have important items to take care of—the screening of applicants for the job of superintendent, and other things that have been neglected."

FRANK ANSELMO

"I predicted he would be back," said McCauley. "He has pulled 'Gromyko's' before (referring to the incident in 1950 when the Russians walked out of the United Nations.)"

"We've had our differences over the years, but he is committed to education in Quincy and fights for what he believes," McCauley said.

Anselmo said he walked out of the meeting after committee member Frank Santoro repeatedly questioned
McCauley about a bond issue for school maintenance.

"The mayor could very easily have shown evidence of good faith by saying, well, let's do $1 million worth of the work that needs to be done even without floating a bond because he has a surplus, by his own admission, of over $4 million."

"He's in a better financial position, and I've told him so, than any mayor in my recollection. And I've served with six of them."

"But, no, he saw fit not to do anything and that triggered me off."

"That's why I got up and I told him, I cannot do business with blind, stubborn members of this committee. I hereby tender my resignation."

"And I meant it. However, since that time I have received calls from fairly prominent people that represent a few hundred people, for one, the teacher's union."

"Others have called me, begged me, to stay on the job because they feel that they need me, they want me."

"In view of the fact that I have nothing else to do, and to me, it's a joy to work for the benefit of the city and the children, I think I will stay," Anselmo said.

Guidelines Adopted For Food Sales At Various Events

The City License Board has adopted guidelines submitted by the Quincy Health Department for people who serve food at functions such as outdoor sidewalk bazaars, field days, fairs and other similar events.

The guidelines include the stipulation that all applicants for a temporary food service license must register with the License Board and the Health Department one week before the function is to be held.

Other recommendations concern the storage and preparation of food and the temperature at which potentially hazardous foods, such as milk products, eggs, meat, fish, shellfish and poultry, must be held.

Court Hearings On Landfill Dispute

Quincy presented its side of the landfill issue at a hearing
Tuesday in Suffolk Superior Court before Judge Cortland
A. Mathers.

The hearing, which began
Monday, was held after Atty.
Gen. James M. Shannon filed a complaint seeking a preliminary injunction against the city of Quincy.

The injunction seeks to prevent Quincy from accepting or disposing of solid waste at its municipal landfill until it complies with state laws governing environmental protection.

Shannon's complaint charges Quincy with refusing to comply with a state consent order to improve the environmental conditions at the landfill.

Mayor Francis McCauley has maintained that the landfill is not causing any "great environmental problems."

Attending the hearing
Tuesday for the city were City
Solicitor Joseph (Jay)
MacRitchie, engineering consultant David Stanley, DPW Commr. Paul Anderson and Atty. Peter Koff, according to McCauley.

Readers Forum Says Arguments For Closing Central Fall Far Short

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Parents of students at Central have long sought to get substantive answers from Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Nigro as to why they want to close Central.

At the School Committee meeting on May 6, reasons were given by both, but only after a direct request for them was made by Mr. Durkin. Alas, what we heard was appalling either in its ignorance of or in its crass disregard for the students, teachers, special programs and plant conditions at Central.

Mrs. Nigro, in an unwarranted and absolutist fashion, latched onto a recommendation of the Middle School Task Force that "a middle school be closed." (She ignored the fact that the recommendation has many strings attached to it, not the least of which is the mayor's funding of an enormous repair bill.) She also indicated a great concern that no school be without a cafeteria, gymnasium and auditorium. Lastly, she seemed to indicate that no middle school in good shape should be closed. By a "process of elimination," she concluded that Central should close. By such criteria, Central should remain open!

Be assured that it has a cafeteria (with multiple lunch rooms). It also has an auditorium (in which hundreds of parents recently enjoyed a fine production of the Wizard of Oz). It even has a gymnasium (with a full-court basketball floor). Lastly, it is in the best shape of all the middle schools in the city (as the School Department's latest report on the conditions of school buildings clearly indicates).

Mrs. Collins' arguments are two. She claims one middle school must be closed because we have five middle schools and not enough students for five. She then argues that the middle school which ought to be closed is Central because of geographical considerations. Closing Central, she says, will allow the concept of neighborhood schools to be preserved. This kind of reasoning is specious and crassly superficial. How is this a preservation of the idea of a neighborhood school for the students at Central who go there because it is in their neighborhood? Also, there is no evidence in her discussion of her arguments to indicate that she gave serious thought to the Task Force's Report, especially to its attempts to address economic issues in the broader context of preserving quality education for all middle school students.

To both Mrs. Nigro and Mrs. Collins I make the following suggestions, and I do so very seriously. Do your homework for the meetings. Take a good look at Central. Look again at the population trends. Take time to read and reflect on what the Task Force Report says about preserving quality education at the middle school level for all its students in schools both large and small. If after doing all that you still think that Central should be closed, then give us substantive reasons. So far, your arguments fall far short.

Anselmo 'Itching To Run'

They say taking a walk is good for you.

It seems to do wonders for Frank Anselmo.

Anselmo walked out of last week's School Committee meeting in a huff, announcing he was resigning, after the committee voted 4-3 to close a middle school. And after he seemed to have run into a stonewall (Mayor Francis McCauley) over more money for school maintenance.

"He'll be back," predicted McCauley.

Two days later, Anselmo was back. ANSELMO

Anselmo, who was first elected to the School Committee in 1961, has taken these walks before.

At least half a dozen of them, some observers recall.

"About three," counts Anselmo.

Perhaps his most famous "Gromyko" occurred on Joseph LaRaia's inauguration as mayor in January, 1976.

The Quincy Vo-Tech gymnasium was filled that day as a new administration took office. The City Council and new School Committeemen were also sworn in.

On that particular day, Anselmo thought he would be elected vice-chairman of the School Committee.

But after he failed to get it on the first ballot, votes switched and John Sullivan wound up with the prize.

Anselmo scratched out a note that said in effect, "I quit," handed it to McCauley to give to LaRaia and walked out.

But Anselmo, a few days later was coaxed back.

Each time he has come back it is like he has found a gallon from the Fountain of Youth. Or a tank full of high-test. Ready to take on, if not the world, at least the problems at hand as far as Quincy's public schools are concerned.

Anselmo gets his dander up when they start talking about closing another school and when he thinks the city should be spending more money to repair and maintain the schools.

"Penny wise, pound foolish," he snorts.

Anselmo came back after this latest walk, he says, because many people called him and urged him to reconsider.

They included, he indicated, teachers, school officials and "prominent people."

"They told me they need my help," he says. "I found out I have some solid support."

It apparently has done something else for him: decided his plans to run for re-election this fall.

He will be 89 Sept. 22—just around primary election time—and he wasn't too sure he would seek re-election.

State To Honor Foster Parents, Social Workers

The Quincy area office of the Department of Social Services will hold its seventh annual Professional Parents and Social Workers Recognition Dinner tonight (Thursday) from 6 p.m. to midnight at Montello's, 61 Massachusetts Ave., Quincy Point. Mayor Francis McCauley, Senator Paul Harold, members of Quincy City Council, and Judge Lewis Whitman of Quincy District Court will be among the 140 guests.

Foster parents, social workers and community representatives including Dorothy Newell of the Patriot Ledger will receive recognition awards.

ATTENTION RESIDENTS OF THE CITY OF QUINCY

Effective with the July 1987 billing the rate for water usage in the City of Quincy will increase by four percent (4%). The new semi-annual rate structure is as follows:

First	8,500	cubic feet.....	$.99 per 100 c.f.
Next	91,000	cubic feet.....	$1.09 per 100 c.f.
Next	200,000	cubic feet.....	$1.14 per 100 c.f.
Next	300,000	cubic feet.....	$1.25 per 100 c.f.
Minimum bill			$21.00

Commissioner of Public Works

5/14/87

But now, after hearing from enough people, he has made his decision or just about:

"I'm quite sure I will run," he says. "I feel good for my age. My brains are still ticking."

He has booked a 15-day trip to Austria, Germany, France, Italy and Switzerland for Sept. 14.

"I've already put down a deposit," he says.

But if there is a preliminary election for school committee, he says:

"If necessary, I'll cancel the trip. I'll go to the rallies and the candidate's nights."

Sounds like he's a definite candidate for re-election. "Well," he says, "I'm itching to run."

See, a walk can really do wonders for you.

COUNCILOR Patricia Toland will officially announce her candidacy for re-election at a cocktail party Thursday, May 21 at Amelia's at Marina Bay.

The $35 per head affair will be from 6 to 8 p.m. Tickets may be obtained from Elaine Clarke (773-3626) or Gloria Noble (472-5613) and will also be available at the door.

Toland will be seeking her fourth term as councillor at-large.

EVERY GOLFERS DREAM, of course, is a hole-in-one. And, that dream recently came true for Helen Cook, a member of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers and who with her husband, Bert, owned the former Tags furniture store in downtown Quincy.

The Cooks were playing at the Hollywood Golf Course in Florida with Dan and Roberta Eicoff of Quincy who spend the winters in Florida and summer back here. They and the Cooks live next door to one another in Hallendale, Fla.

They went out again the next day and Helen came within inches of doing it again.

WJDA'S Herb Fontaine will make his eighth appearance on the Ch. 2 auction Saturday, May 30. He'll be on between 6 and 7 p.m. Give him a call and make a bid.

MILESTONE: former City Councillor-State Rep. Joseph Brett will be 80 May 19. He still has an active interest in community affairs. You can also find him practically every morning cleaning up debris along the Fenno St. marshes and the Caddy Park area across from Wollaston Beach.

Does it as a volunteer. He can't stand litter there.

THE QUINCY PUBLIC SCHOOLS WILL NOT BE IN SESSION THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1987

This time has been set aside for the Quincy Public Schools - Quincy Education Association Institute Day. On this day the professional staff will meet to clarify goals, share new ideas in education, and coordinate ongoing projects.

Actor From 'Fame' At Quincy Schools For Drug Awareness Program

Michael Cerveris, who plays English guitarist Ian Ware on the television show "Fame," will visit Quincy elementary and middle school students during Quincy Public Schools' "Drug Awareness Week" May 18-22.

Cerveris will talk about the hazards of marijuana and other drugs. Sports celebrities will accompany Cerveris.

The program will take place through the combined efforts of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, the South Shore YMCA and the Quincy Public Schools.

"Marijuana: A Second Look," is a drug awareness and prevention program developed by the lung association for students in Grades 4, 5, and 6. The Fame cast members are acting as role models for drug-free youth.

Purpose of the program is to influence 9, 10 and 11 year old children not to smoke marijuana - now or in the future.

It is specifically intended to:

- Inform parents, teachers, youth leaders, and children about the health hazards of marijuana - especially the risk to lung health.

- Help parents, teachers and youth leaders learn skills to help children say "NO" to drugs.

- Help children develop a commitment to say "NO" to drugs.

- Help children learn skills to say "NO" to drugs when confronted by their peers and others to try drugs.

During April, all elementary and Middle School teachers participated in an in-service training program at Furnace Brook School. Assemblies were also conducted at each school for students in grades 4, 5, and 6.

To welcome Cerveris and other sport celebrities to Quincy, "an invitation only" reception will be held at the Three Season's Restaurant Vocational-Technical School Monday, May 18, from 7 to 9 p.m.

On Tuesday, May 19, from 8:15 to 9:30 p.m., a Parent's Night will be held at Quincy High School. Parents of Quincy public school students, grades kindergarten - 8, are invited to attend.

From 7 to 8 p.m., at the high school, parents are invited to watch a panel discussion on "Drug Education," produced by Quincy Cable, Ch. 55.

Cerveris, a native of West Virginia, studied at Phillips Exeter Academy and Yale University. He appeared in a variety of off-Broadway productions, his most recent appearance was on the Tracy Ullman show.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Men Allowed To Wear Shorts

Police Chief Ernest Bishop ruled that it was all right for men to wear shorts in Quincy, a fact that was gaining considerable notoriety on the Dartmouth College campus in New Hampshire.

May 13-19

57 Years Ago

Said Chief Bishop: "If Boston Police executives announced they would stand for the wearing of shorts on Tremont St., without doubt they have looked up that state law on the subject and the state law as it affects Boston, of course, affects Quincy similarly.

"I do believe, however, there may be a difference between a man coming out on the streets in those so-called 'shorts' and being brazen enough to appear in his underclothing, say for instance, his BVDs.

"Shorts are a wholesome and respectable garment and may perhaps be ideal for certain kinds of athletic sports."

JOHNSON PLANS EXPANSION

Howard D. Johnson denied reports that he had sold his "soda shop and tea room" in the Granite Trust Building to a large restaurant chain.

"Not only have I not sold the Quincy store but I am opening a new one at Nantasket Beach," said Johnson. "I also have several plans underway for further expansion of my business."

GROWING QUINCY

The U.S. census for 1930 showed that Quincy was now the largest city in the 14th Congressional District with a population of 71,965, up 33 percent from the census of 1920. Brockton was down to 63,695.

Mayor Thomas J. McGrath predicted a population of 100,000 by 1940.

"Big times are in store for the city industrially," he said, "and this factor alone will inevitably draw many people to the city."

City Receives Grants For Affordable Housing Study

Quincy has received approval for two municipal advance funds of $5,000 each to undertake two preliminary studies on selected sites to explore the possibility of creating affordable housing.

The approval came in a letter signed by Secretary Amy Anthony of the state's Executive Office of Communities and Development.

The city, through its Quincy Housing Partnership, has applied for the mini-grants to hire consultants who will implement two projects.

One project involves the preparation of preliminary site plans and operating budgets assuming the use of one or a combination of state housing funds and the identification of development issues for a two-acre largely vacant lot in the Southwest Quincy area.

The second project involves the preparation of operating budgets (pro-forma statements) assuming the use of state funds for three proposed developments.

The developments are: the Greyrock Estates, about 17.2 acres of undeveloped land located in southwest Quincy, owned and to be developed by the Richard J. Bucheri Family Trust; the Tide Mill Condominium, about 7.1 acres in the Southern Artery area, to be developed by the Quincy Group Partnership; and the Falls, about 48 acres of mostly undeveloped land in the Quincy-Braintree line, to be developed by the Fox Properties.

These are two of the first projects of the Quincy Housing Partnership (QHP) which was organized by Mayor Francis X. McCauley earlier this year to address the affordable housing issue.

Through the QHP, the city will have special access to set aside state housing funds.

Other developers who want to know more about the QHP and the state housing funds are encouraged to contact Richard Meade, Planning Director, or Lito Santos at 773-1380, ext. 361.

Marie's Kitchen

A Fish Entree Fit For A King (Queen, too)

Here is a fish entree that is fit for a king (or queen, I don't want to get into trouble here). Flounder was on sale last week, as I took advantage of it and made this recipe which is prepared with asparagus (also on sale). If you plan to cook this dish, figure on a slice of fish per person and a couple of spears of fresh asparagus.

FLOUNDER WRAP UP

1 pound fresh asparagus
1-6 slices of flounder fresh parsley
2 cups white sauce
1 Tbsp cooking sherry
1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
1 lemon

Parboil the asparagus, season as you wish. Lightly bread each fish fillet. Wrap each fillet around a couple or three asparagus spears. Secure with a toothpick. Squirt some lemon juice on each fillet and place in a well-greased baking pan. Bake covered in a 350 degree preheated oven for about 20-25 minutes. While the fish is cooking, make a basic white sauce adding the cooking sherry. When the fish is done, spoon some sauce over the fish and put a couple of sprigs of parsley along the side for color. The night I cooked this, I served it with the following linguine recipe.

LINGUINE WITH VEGETABLE SAUCE

1 package frozen broccoli spears
(or fresh equivalent)
1 package of frozen cauliflower (or fresh) white wine
1 stick butter (or margarine)
3 Tbsps olive oil
1 garlic clove
salt and pepper to taste
½ lb. ricotta cheese
¼ cup parmesan cheese
1 lb. linguine

Heat oil, butter and garlic. Add the vegetables, salt and pepper. Saute until vegetables are tender.

Add the wine, cover and simmer for about 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Cook the linguine according to directions. Just before linguine is to be drained, reheat the sauce. Place the ricotta cheese and parmesan in a serving bowl. Toss the pasta and stir, then add the vegetable sauce, serve hot with wrapped fish.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One of the most precious of human faculties is memory. In a sense we are ruled by our memories. It is also true we can choose which of our memories are to rule us.

All people have long memories. Some cherish grudges for a whole lifetime. They remember all the unpleasant things and words inflicted upon them by others. They remember all the frustrations and sorrows which are part of everyday life. Their lives are bitter and cynical; one of recrimination and remorse.

Yet others treat memories as priceless treasures. They remember with gratitude a favor done in an hour of need. They remember with fond memory support given when a burden seemed almost unbearable. Memory becomes a treasure storehouse - The highlights of all the years are there... tender thoughts of family mingled with gratitude for their understanding through the years... heart-rendering reminiscences of friends known... satisfaction of recalling work well done. When we recall these memories they encourage and sustain us whenever we need them.

Memory is given to us for a purpose. It can be helpful or harmful in our lives. Are you making remembrance a blessing instead of a burden?

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

With vinyl siding, you can cross painting off list of chores

It's almost springtime, a time when a young man or woman's fancy turns to love walks in the park softball games house painting House painting."

It's not a pretty thought. With all the enjoyable things a person can choose to do in the springtime, the tiresome job of house painting is probably at the bottom of the list.

That's why vinyl siding has grown to be the most popular siding material in America today. Each time this season rolls around, homeowners who have invested in vinyl siding find they have the time for the more pleasant joys spring time has to offer.

Once vinyl siding is properly applied, it will give any house a freshly painted look with only a simple soap and water rinse.

Homeowners can enjoy many years of freedom from laborious upkeep. How many years? Major manufacturers like Bird Incorporated offer a lifetime warranty for standard and premium lines of vinyl siding.

Available in attractive wood-grain or smooth "brushed" finishes, solid vinyl siding is made of PVC (polyvinyl chloride) compound.

Its tough makeup means it cannot corrode or dent like aluminum, and will not chip, peel or rot like wood. Even deep scratches will not show, because the color is molded clear through.

Job only as good as contractor

Like many other major home improvements, having a house sided with solid vinyl siding is usually a substantial investment for the homeowner.

That is why it is important to select a professional home improvement contractor who uses quality materials from a reputable manufacturer.

A homeowner must be able to trust a contractor's workmanship. For, in nearly every case, the overall quality of the job is only as good as the craftsman applying the siding.

To help homeowners find local reputable home remodelers, Bird Incorporated instituted a Professional Vinyl Siding

Contractor Certification Program that distinguishes the best craftsmen in the field.

To qualify for certification, contractors must meet strict criteria for experience, application standards and code of ethics.

Contractors are re-certified each year, to make certain that they abide by the standards set forth by the manufacturer.

One example of the program is the fact that Bird certified contractors must offer a two-year warranty on installation as a complement to Bird's lifetime product warranty.

Homeowners dealing with certified contractors are also assured of being provided with clear, written estimates by contractors who carry insurance coverage for worker's compensation, personal injury and property damage.

In addition, contractors will provide the names and addresses of satisfied customers for homeowners who may wish to inspect their work.

Making up your mind to have your home remodeled with vinyl siding will most likely be a once-in-a-lifetime decision. Make it wisely by choosing a craftsman who has been officially recognized

HOMEOWNERS WHO INVEST IN VINYL SIDING find that they can cross house painting off their list of tiresome springtime chores. To help homeowners find local reputable home remodelers, one vinyl siding manufacturer, Bird Incorporated, has instituted a Professional Vinyl Siding Contractor Certification Program that distinguishes the best craftsmen in the field.

A range of options: Creating dream kitchen step by step

Kitchens have always been the heart of the home. But with the advent of two career couples sharing the cooking and the popularity of informal entertaining, this room is getting even more attention. Improving your kitchen one remodeling project at a time can often be the best, most economical way to make a difference. Even minor changes can make a vast improvement and be the first steps in the creation of your dream kitchen. For someone who enjoys cooking and entertaining, a second oven is a wonderful asset - especially when you're serving more than one hot dish simultaneously. Or, you can use the smaller oven to bake dessert while cooking a roast in the main oven. For others whose cooking priority in the kitchen runs toward quick and convenient rather than elaborate dinners, a microwave as a second oven might prove indispensable. General Electric offers built-in ranges with both microwave and conventional top ovens.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Choose energy-efficient, secure patio doors

Installing a patio door is a great way to bring the best of the outdoors inside your home and increase its value.

Sometimes, however, the worst of the outdoors can also gain entry through these doors. Air infiltration may be a problem, along with condensation and water penetration under and through the frame. And if the doors don't have proper locks, they could present a security hazard.

• Check for welded corners on the mainframe and sash. Unlike frames that are screwed together, welded construction virtually eliminates air and moisture penetration through the frame.

• Select thermal glazing that is securely affixed to the frame with heavy-duty weatherstripping at all points.

• Touch the frame to make certain it feels warm to the touch. Frames that feel hot or cold will conduct unwanted heat in the summer and cold in the winter. Furthermore, they're likely to invite condensation problems.

• Look for the ANSI/AAMA certification label. This label assures that the door has been tested and approved according to rigid industry performance standards.

• Choose a reputable dealer and installer who will back up the product.

We use only patented Von Schrader dry foam equipment

Only the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor applies a dirt emulsifying dry foam, brushes it thoroughly into the carpet and removes both foam and dirt immediately before it can sink back down into the carpet. This simultaneous operation is an important benefit. Only the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor has this patented feature. Because only foam is used, your carpet is ready for use in an hour or so. And there is no danger of shrinkage, dry-rot, browning or mildew.

REMEMBER

"Steam" is just a lot of water. "Rotary brushes" just take dirt for a joy ride. "Hand application" only does superficial cleaning. Only the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor shampoos deeply with a dry foam and then gets rid of the foam along with the dirt.

INDOORS AND OUT. Home improvement and repair projects will account for more than $80 billion this year, according to figures recently released by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

An important question: Which home improvements are best?

Residential remodeling and repair work are booming. In fact, figures recently released by the U.S. Department of Commerce showed that more than $80 billion will be spent this year on home improvements and repairs.

A big factor in the remodeling surge is that many homeowners are staying in their present homes longer and are therefore fixing and improving them more than in the past. With the interest in home improvements, come questions from concerned homeowners as to which projects offer the most value.

The following is a listing of four different project types — additions, minor remodeling, outdoor and energy saving — which are expected to give the most return at resale. Figures were compiled by the CertainTeed Home Institute from Remodeling Contractor magazine.

Additions

Additions are the most popular type of remodeling projects homeowners engage in today and they also offer the most value. The best additions are fireplaces, full baths, greenhouses and skylights.

Fireplaces average $3,000 to install, and offer an average value at resale of $4,000, a 133 percent return on your investment.

The average cost to add a full bathroom today is $7,500, but it offers a resale value of $8,000. If your home doesn't have two bathrooms, and you find you always wish it did, now's the time to add one.

Minor remodeling projects

Other home improvements besides additions that have gained popularity are minor kitchen and bath oriented projects. Improving cabinets, counters, wallcoverings or paint and installing an energy efficient range may cost you about $7,000, but the return at resale is $6,500.

In the bathroom, consider such items as a new bath or whirlpool tub and new fixtures. The average cost of a project like this is $6,000, but its value at resale is $4,500.

Energy-saving projects

Adding extra insulation to a home to bring it up to today's energy standards is a very easy task and it also provides a good return on your investment. The average cost of adding insulation to your home is $1,200 but the average return at resale is $1,000.

Upgrading your insulation with CertainTeed Fiber Glass Insulation is also important because, according to a recent survey by Professional Builder magazine, energy efficiency is still a top priority among new home buyers.

Therefore, prospective buyers may ask about insulation levels, heating costs and the overall energy efficiency of your home.

For more information on energy saving home improvements write for the "Energy Facts" brochure, CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Raiders Stun Waltham, 6-4

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's baseball team, after dropping a pair of heartbreakers last week to Brookline and Newton North, bounced back Monday and surprised highly-ranked Waltham, 6-4, in a stunning Suburban League upset to improve to 5-8. Waltham was leading the league going into the game.

Leo Donovan's Raiders will be at Brookline Friday, will host Brockton's powerhouse Monday at Adams Field and will be home to Medford in a makeup of a rained-out game Tuesday at Adams.

"This was just a great win for us," said Donovan following Monday's game. "Waltham ranks with Brockton and Cambridge Rindge and Latin as the Suburban League's top clubs and last week they defeated Brockton and Cambridge back-to-back."

"We have received three outstanding pitching performances in a row from Mark DiMattio, Dan Santry and Bill McDougall and it was a shame we lost to Brookline and Newton North, especially Newton North. We had that game won with two outs in the last inning but an error enabled Newton to win it and spoil a great effort by Santry."

DiMattio pitched an excellent game Monday, giving Waltham seven hits, striking out two and walking three. He was given some potent support at the plate and some excellent defensive support.

Waltham scored a run in the top of the sixth inning to move to within a run, 5-4. With the tying run on second, right fielder Jack Mullen made a spectacular diving catch to prevent the tying run from scoring. North added an insurance run in the bottom of the inning and DiMattio had little trouble retiring Waltham in the seventh.

Shortstop Neil Hatfield had an excellent afternoon for the Raiders.

Steve Happas had two hits and two runs scored, McDougall had a double and a single, DiMattio two singles and two RBI, Santry two singles and two RBI, Billy Murphy and Steve Rabbs a single each and freshman Jeff Calvert had an RBI.

Last Friday at Newton Santry pitched an outstanding game and North led, 3-2, going into the bottom of the seventh.

After a walk and stolen base, the next two batters were retired. It looked like the Raiders had the win but an infield error enabled the tying run to score and the next batter hit the first pitch for a game-winning two-run homer.

"This was our most disappointing loss of the season," Donovan said. "It looked like we had the game won only to give them another chance and it proved fatal. Santry did a great job pitching and didn't deserve to lose."

Happas had two hits as did Santry. Billy Wysocki had a double and Hatfield, McDougall, DiMattio and Calvert all had singles.

Earlier in the week McDougall pitched a fine six-hitter and struck out 10 but North dropped a 2-1 squeaker to Brookline. Brookline scored both runs in the third inning and they held up.

North scored its lone run in the sixth when Happas singled, was bunted to second, stole third and scored on a passed ball.

Friday Deadline For Rickson Tickets

Friday is the deadline for ordering tickets for the retirement party for Ken Rickson to be held Wednesday, May 27, at the Neighborhood Club.

Tickets are $25 which includes dinner and a gift. Checks should be made payable to the Ken Rickson Retirement Party and should be mailed to Mrs. Greta Leone, Business Office, Quincy Public Schools, 70 Coddington Street, Quincy 02169. She can be called at 471-0100, extension 427.

A social hour will be

Q-N Night Game Shifted

evening at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7.

Rickson retired in February after a variety of duties in the Quincy schools including physical education instructor, basketball coach, assistant to Munroe McLean, director of athletics, physical education and health; coordinator of physical education and reading and math teacher in the elementary schools while earning his doctorate in motor learning and motor behavior at Boston University.

night at 7 p.m. was shifted to 3:30 in the afternoon due to a Pops Concert

Quincy Upsets Cambridge

Quincy's baseball team came up with its biggest win of the season Monday, upsetting Cambridge Rindge and Latin, the third place team in the Suburban League, 9-6, to improve to 8-4 and keep its Eastern Mass. Tournament hopes alive.

Bob Sylvia's Presidents, who must win four of their remaining eight games to qualify for the tournament, will host Newton North Friday at Adams Field and will be at Waltham Tuesday.

Dan Biagini, who has been red hot with the bat, hit a two-run homer in the first inning to give Quincy a 2-0 lead. The Presidents led, 5-1, in the bottom of the sixth when Cambridge exploded with five runs to take a 6-5 lead.

In the top of the seventh Biagini, Tom Logan and Steve Austin all walked to fill the bases and T.J. Steen hit a two-run double to give Quincy the lead and it added two more insurance runs.

Larry Beguiere, who had won two games in relief, started his first game and pitched well for 5.23 innings. Steen relieved and got the save, thanks in a large part to a spectacular catch in right field by Jim Dennis, who went in when Steen took over for Beguiere.

"We felt we had to win this game and the boys really responded," said a happy Sylvia. "Beguiere pitched well in his first start and Biagini, Steen and Jay Lespasio came up with key hits. The lower part of our batting order came through in fine style."

Last Saturday Quincy defeated Brookline, 4-1, with Wayne Chambers pitching six excellent innings. Lespasio pitched the seventh inning.

"Wayne pitched very well and we just took him out to give Lespasio a chance to pitch," said Sylvia. "Lespasio, who has snapped out of a slump, had a key triple. This was a dull game and we played just good enough to win."

In their previous game the Presidents lost to second-place Brockton, 7-2, as they were held to three hits.

Quincy scored both its runs in the third inning when Nick Dragone walked. Ed Flavin singled to left, Biagini singled in Dragone and Flavin scored on an error.

Raiderettes Win Streak Snapped By Waltham

All good things must come to an end as the North Quincy girls' softball team found out Monday.

After sweeping to 10 straight wins, the Raiderettes suffered their first loss of the season, bowing to Waltham, 8-5.

Barbara Webster's North girls, needing only one win in seven remaining games to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament, played Quincy yesterday (Wednesday), will host Brookline Friday at Mitchell/McCoy Field, will play at Brockton Monday and will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday at Mitchell/McCoy.

"This was a case of Waltham getting the key hits and we not getting them," Webster said. "We had plenty of chances but left too many men on base."

Kristin Drake, the top pitcher in the Suburban

League, who has pitched every win, finally lost. Nancy Flukes, Colleen Hannon, Nancy Leonard, Crystal Moffet and Ann McGuigan came up with key hits. McGuigan, who has caught Drake all season, turned in another fine game behind the plate.

Last Friday North blanked Newton North, 5-0, as Drake pitched a three-hitter for her third successive shutout.

The Raiderettes scored all five runs in the fourth inning when Ann Anderlionis, who had returned for the first time only two games earlier, drove in three runs with a double.

Neither team could get any offense going until North's big fourth.

In the top of the inning Newton took advantage of an error, a single and a walk to load the bases with one out. The threat ended when Drake threw out Jodi Rogers trying to score on a bunt and Moffet snared a line drive at second to end the inning.

In North's half Karen Reister and McGuigan led with walks and Moffet's infield hit loaded the bases. Tricia Grant drove in the first run with an infield hit and Leonard walked to make it 2-0. Anderlionis then drove a 3-2 pitch into center field for a double and three insurance runs.

Earlier in the week Drake just missed a no-hitter as North rolled over Brookline, 17-0.

Drake allowed one hit and struck out four for her ninth win in a row.

Leonard went 5-for-5 with four RBI to lead the 19-hit attack, Anderlionis had three hits and four RBI and Flukes and Lisa Mitton each had two hits and two RBI.

Leonard is the number two batter in the Suburban League with a .500 average, Hannon is number four at .444 and Flukes is number five at .438.

Pettinelli Receives First Munroe MacLean Award

Guido "Buddy" Pettinelli has been presented the first Munroe D. MacLean Award by the Quincy High School basketball program.

The award was created to honor a former Quincy High basketball player who over the years has given back to the community outstanding achievement and service.

The award was presented by former Quincy coach and present assistant director of community relations at Boston University Joe Amoroso.

Amoroso told of Pettinelli's many achievements and what he has meant to so many people he has touched in life.

Pettinelli, one of the organizers of the Quincy High School Basketball Alumni Club, accepted the award, saying it was a great honor, especially having known the late Munroe MacLean personally and saying what an outstanding man he was.

"This will be an annual ward," said Quincy coach John Franceschini. "I hope it will be presented for many years to come. No finer person than Guido Pettinelli could have been the first recipient."

Bunker Standout At Dartmouth

Junior centerfielder Chris Bunker of Quincy has been named Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League (EIBL) Co-Player of the Week for his outstanding play for Dartmouth College.

Bunker's bat helped Dartmouth to a sweep of Yale on the first weekend of EIBL games. In the first game, the Quincy native hit a grand slam to cap a six-run first inning which led to an 8-4 win. In the second game, his home run in the fourth inning broke a 3-3 tie to give Dartmouth the lead for good in a 5-3 victory.

After four EIBL games, Bunker was the League's third-leading hitter, going 5-10 at the plate for a .500 batting percentage. He also had six RBI's and five runs.

Dartmouth is off to one of its best starts in recent years with a 6-0 EIBL record and 12-8 overall slate.

Bunker is a graduate of North Quincy High School where he won three letters in baseball and served as captain his senior year. He also was named to the All-Scholastic baseball team as well as being selected League MVP both junior and senior years. He also was a standout for the Morrisette Legion team.

Bunker has career plans in business and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bunker of Quincy.

Seamans Selected For 100-Mile Endurance Run

Bob Seamans of Quincy has been accepted to run in the 1987 Western States 100-mile endurance run Saturday, June 27.

Seamans ran in the race last year and covered 56 miles until forced out with thigh problems.

Last year's race will be seen this Saturday on ABC's Wide World of Sports seen on Channel 5 between 3 and 4:30 p.m.

A runner must finish the race within 30 hours or be taken off the course.

Seamans, an ultra-marathon runner, was the 1980 New England 50-mile masters champion and has completed almost 100 full 26.2 mile marathons.

The Western States Endurance run starts at Squaw Mountain, Calif., and ends at Auburn, Calif. It is one of the most physically taxing events in the world and participation in it presents numerous risks. It is the "ultimate challenge" for the long distance runner.

The run covers difficult mountainous terrain and spans great extremes of altitude and temperatures, ranging from 20 degrees at the start to those exceeding 110 degrees in the shade.

Rattlesnakes, bears and other potentially hazardous forms of wildlife inhabit the trail and have surprised runners in the past. Seamans will be running many miles in the dark with only a flashlight to light his way.

Chretien Opposes Proposal For Business D District

Larry Chretien, candidate for Ward 3 City Councillor, said he is opposed to a proposal to create a new zoning district, Business D, for the Wollaston and North Quincy business centers.

The zoning proposal, submitted by City Councillor John Lydon, would allow buildings of up to 10 stories.

Meanwhile, the group Citizens Against Poor Planning is proposing a six-story limit for the entire city, Chretien noted.

"Quite frankly, the Business D proposal for North Quincy and Wollaston is absurd," said Chretien.

"There's no way that 10-story buildings belong anywhere near those areas. Both of the centers are just too close to what are now quiet neighborhoods."

"If the councillor's proposal is adopted, North Quincy and Wollaston will lose forever their small town characteristics."

"Although the proposal would mostly greatly impact people in other wards, residents of Ward 3 would also suffer," said Chretien.

"I think that a good case can be made for a business D zone in Quincy center, but not for North Quincy and Wollaston. In those areas, I favor a six-story limit."

Buddy Poppy Days In Quincy

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed today (Thursday) through Saturday as Buddy Poppy days in Quincy.

"The annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars has been officially recognized and endorsed by the governmental leaders since 1922," said McCauley.

"VFW Buddy Poppies are assembled by disabled veterans, and the proceeds of this worthy fund-raising campaign are used exclusively for the benefit of disabled and needy veterans and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

"I urge the citizens of this community to recognize the merits of this cause by contributing generously to its support through the purchase of Buddy Poppies," he said.

Students History Fair At Historical Society

The fourth grade school program of the Quincy Historical Society will conclude with a history fair that will open Saturday.

During the past year, students in the city's public and parochial elementary schools learned about Quincy history in a four-day program entitled "Working with Quincy's Past." Each pupil learned about the effects of the environment and natural resources on the economic and social development from 1625 to the present.

Through the examination of artifacts, activities at the museum, and a tour of historic sites, students developed an understanding of the major forces that affected the economic, social, and political life in their hometown.

The projects in the fair will cover a wide range including models of historic houses, murals, and dioramas of historic sites. They will be on display from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 16, and 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday, May 18 through Friday, May 22 at Adams Academy, 8 Adams St.

A special performance will occur Saturday, May 16 at 1 p.m. Fifth graders from Quincy Public Schools, under the direction of music specialist Gay Carboneau will perform the "Abigail Adams Cantata" Written by Mrs. Marjorie Jeffries of Milton, the words, set to music, detail the life of Mrs. Adams.

Members and the public are invited.

The program is sponsored, in part, by grants from the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a State Agency, and the Quincy Arts Council.

'Magic Of Christmas' Winning Theme

Louis and Tricia Bertucci, 74 Dixwell Ave., Quincy Center have been selected as the winners of this year's Quincy Christmas Festival Committee's "Theme Contest" with their entry entitled "The Magic of Christmas."

"They were very pleased and anxiously look forward to their personal participation in this year's parade," said general chairman George White when informing the Bertucci's of their winning entry.

White said this year's theme contest had the greatest response ever.

Mrs. Frances Flynn, committee float coordinator, noted, "Each year this theme contest continues to involve more public participation, even though this makes the process of selecting the winner more difficult. We hope in future years it will continue to increase in response."

Theme contest entries were received from 20 different communities with one response from New York.

White said "the committee was extremely pleased with the number of entries." He also said that the theme selected, "The Magic of Christmas," "offers any organization building a float for this year's parade much latitude and flexibility in complying with the parade theme."

The best overall float will be awarded a $1,250 cash prize and the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy; second place $600, third place $400 and fourth place, $250.

Floats will be judged on how creatively they meet the theme criteria.

All organizations will be notified and parade entry forms will be mailed.

Mrs. Flynn requests organizations return these forms as soon as possible. Last year, a float participating waiting list had to be established.

No Interruption In Trash Collection

Pickup of residential trash in Quincy was not expected to be interrupted following the city's closing of its 110 acre landfill in West Quincy Monday in compliance with an order by a superior court judge late last week.

At a press conference Monday, Mayor Francis McCauley said that rubbish will still be picked up by Browning Ferris Industries which will transport it to other landfills.

It will cost the city $69 a ton, or about $1.2 million for six months, according to McCauley who said that the initial money will come from the landfill account.

The additional money was passed by the City Council Monday night in the fiscal 1987-1988 budget.

Public Works Commr.

Paul Anderson said that pickups had been reported a "shade later" in the day, but "nothing major."

He said residents could address inquiries to his department.

In ordering the landfill closed, Superior Court Judge Cortland Mathers criticized the way Quincy has operated the dump and called it "an ecological disaster."

The mayor has maintained that the landfill is not causing any "great environmental problems."

Mathers also said that the city could not go ahead with plans to dump in what is known as the Phase III area of the landfill until a number of conditions are met and approved by the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering.

The superior court judge also ordered Quincy to make interim improvements such as provisions to release methane gas.

Real Estate Tax Bills

Ready For Mail

Second half property tax bills are expected to be in the mail by the end of the week, according to Mayor Francis McCauley. The bills will be due 30 days after they are mailed, McCauley said.

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City Council unanimously passed a municipal budget of $96,058,260 for 1987-1988 Monday night, but not before it cut $84,800 from the amount Mayor Francis McCauley had proposed.

The cut included $34,800 in raises for department heads proposed by the mayor, as well as a salary decrease for the treasurer collector initiated by the council.

Councillor John J. Lydon, Jr., moved to cut the raises and said he "couldn't go along with them."

They included $2,000 raises for the mayor's executive secretary and administrative assistant, $2,000 raises for three assessors as well as $5,000 for overtime; $3,000 raise for the personnel director; $2,000 raise for the director of data processing; $5,000 raise for the building inspector; $2,000 raise for the recreation director; $2,000 raises for the commissioner and deputy commissioner of public works.

In addition, $3,800 was cut from the salary of Treasurer-Collector Dana Childs.

At an earlier budget hearing, $50,000 had been cut from judgements, losses and claims.

Mayor Francis McCauley said he was disappointed that the council didn't pass what he considered "modest" raises for department heads.

"But the council has that right," said McCauley.

However, he did say that he was "really upset and concerned" about the cut in the salary of Childs who he said has done "an excellent job."

McCauley said the council's action was in reaction to his not reappointing

Franklin Jay treasurer-collector and hiring Childs to replace him earlier this year.

The council protested the action at the time.

The mayor called Childs "an innocent victim" who would lose about $75 a week in pay as a result of the cut.

"For the council to do something like that is completely unwarranted and unfair," he said.

The mayor said, however, he was pleased that the budget was passed by the council within the 45 days allotted. That time period would end Thursday.

McCauley noted that he may have to go back to the council later for more money to truck the city's residential trash out of Quincy if the landfill does not reopen.

"Other than that, the budget will meet the needs of the city," he said.

School Superintendent Field Narrowed

The School Committee was expected to narrow down the number of finalists for the appointment of new school superintendent from seven to two or three at its meeting last night (Wednesday) in the Quincy High School Method Center.

The new superintendent will replace John Osterman who is resigning effective Oct. 1.

Mayor Francis McCauley said he expects a final decision to be made in early June.

Salary for the position will be in the high $60,000s or low $70,000s, according to McCauley who said he would favor a three-year contract for the appointee.

McCauley said that when the School Committee narrowed down the finalists last night, it would determine whether other interviews would be held, or the candidates visited at their places of employment.

The seven candidates include one woman, according to McCauley. The only local applicant is Dr. Richard Chrystal, Quincy's assistant school superintendent, he said.

All have doctorate degrees, said McCauley.

According to McCauley, one-hour interviews with the candidates were held on Tuesday and Thursday last week.

Among those attending in addition to the mayor and school committee were John Buckley, Quincy Education Association president and George McCarthy, City Wide Parents Organization president.

Planning Board Hearing Thursday

The Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room at new City Hall on a subdivision of "The Falls" on Quincy Ave. filed by Fox Properties.

Memorial Day Parade, Ceremonies Monday

Rev. James C. Tuxbury of St. John's Church, past national Chaplain of the American Legion will be the keynote speaker Monday, May 25 at Quincy's Memorial Day parade and ceremonies sponsored by the Quincy Veteran's Council.

Parade units will assemble at 9:30 a.m. at School St. and the Ross Parkingway and will step off at 10:30 a.m. down School, Hancock, Washington, Coddington and Sea Sts. to Mount Wollaston Cemetery where the ceremonies will take place.

The parade will rest at Quincy Square while wreaths are placed on the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams at United First Parish Church.

The Memorial Day services will be held from the World War II Podium in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Fr. Tuxbury, a native of Lynn, and a Navy veteran, attended St. John's University School of Theology and was ordained a Catholic Priest in 1963 for the Diocese of Bismarck, North Dakota. He was the National Chaplain of the American Legion during the years 1976-77, and is currently serving as the Mass. Dept. Chaplain of the American Legion.

The Memorial Day observance actually will begin the day before, Sunday, May 24 when the Quincy Legion Post 95 will assemble at the United First Parish Church, Quincy Square, for the traditional exercises of the Grand Army of the Republic.

They will then escort Sunday School children to Hancock Cemetery to decorate the graves of the veterans and all are invited to attend services in the United First Parish Church at 11 a.m.

The Bryan VFW Post and auxiliary will proceed on Sunday, May 24 to the Boulder and Doughboy Monument at Adams Academy, the GAR Monument in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, and Shea Memorial at South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Also on Sunday, May 24 at 7 p.m. the Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post and the Quincy

To Reopen As Gift Center Winfield House To Close Aug. 2 After Half Century

The Winfield House Restaurant, a landmark in Wollaston for 50 years, will close its doors Sunday, Aug. 2.

The 101-year-old Victorian house will reopen in October as the Winfield Gift Emporium, according to Loren Strout, spokesman for the family-owned business which employs three generations.

The nearby Egg and I coffee shop, which the Strout family leaves out, and the Presidents City Motel, which it operates, will continue in operation, Strout said.

Employees were informed of the news at a private meeting earlier this week.

According to Strout, a number of factors contributed to the decision to close the restaurant which was opened by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Strout, in 1937.

Mrs. Strout is still active in the business.

"Increasing costs such as taxes, insurance, produce, as well as the shortage in available employees in the service industry are making it impossible for us to maintain the high standards we require of our restaurant at a price that the public can afford," explained Strout.

"Rather than compromise our standard of an excellent dining experience, at an affordable price, we have decided to close the business."

"The hours required by my mother and myself have never decreased and are getting worse."

"In the 50 years of business at the restaurant, the work load is staggering."

Strout said that the family used to operate the restaurant 365 days a year from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m., raise chickens and grow crops at the same time.

It is now closed Sundays, Mondays and holidays, but the two are still putting in 14 to 18 hour days.

"It was a very difficult decision to make for both of us, especially for Mrs. Strout, but then neither of us are getting any younger," he said.

"In my case, I have a growing family with a wife and four children that sometimes don't see me for days on end, and my house is only two miles from the restaurant."

"We cannot see any improvement in the future, thus the decision had to be made."

Strout noted that the restaurant's customers ranged from a prince and princess to community leaders, baseball teams and wedding parties.

It has served people from 30 states and from every continent in the world, he said.

"We have 50 years of memories that we will never forget," said Strout.

"There has been a lot of laughter, and tears in 50 years. For at least two generations of our family, it's the only way of life with which we have been familiar."

Strout continued, "All these events, people and faithful employees over the years have made all this possible."

"And to all of these people, we say a very emotional thank you and a very, very sad 'we're sorry'."

Before it closes, the Winfield House Restaurant will celebrate its 50th anniversary on July 26, Aug. 1, with different parties.

The public celebration will be from July 30 to Aug. 1. Details will be announced.

The Winfield Gift Emporium will feature gift items, souvenirs from around the world.

We're Glad You Asked!

IS IT WRONG TO CRY?

When a friend or loved one dies, it is only natural for your emotions to give way to grief and for you to cry.

Tears are therapeutic in more ways than many of us realize. They give us an emotional outlet, providing us with specific physical action we can perform. At the realization that the loved one is gone, tears may come easily for both adult and child and this is good! Children may even be encouraged to let out their feelings of grief by crying.

Most do not need extra encouragement since it is so natural to weep in sorrow. It is not unbecoming to cry at the death of a loved one or a dear friend. It's a misconception that "big boys shouldn't cry." This is all a part of the early 20th Century training in the old school of the "stiff upper lip" and "grin and bear it." If there is an emotional hurt, then the pain should be recognized, acknowledged, and expressed - in this case, through tears. Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome in private or publicly through this column.

Lydon Predicts Business D District To Be Rejected

"I would say that the proposal will be voted down by the City Council," said Councillor John Lydon, Jr., after residents packed the Council Chambers at City Hall Monday night to overwhelmingly oppose a Business D district in North Quincy and Wollaston.

No action was taken as the meeting was a public hearing.

The Business D category had been introduced by Mayor Francis McCauley to ensure that major development would continue in the Quincy Center business area.

Lydon said he proposed that it be extended to business areas in Wollaston and North Quincy so that the business community would retain rebuilding rights in case of a catastrophe.

As it was proposed for North Quincy and Wollaston, it was never intended for 10-story buildings," said Lydon, who was only joined in supporting the proposal by apartment house owner Roger Lyons.

"Business D zoning is designed to circumvent the citizen's petition for a six story limitation," said Arthur Chandler, president of the Quincy Citizens Association. "This proposal will destroy the quality of life we're trying to retain," said William Reardon.

"We're quite content with the way we live now," said Dennis Kennedy of Tyler St.

Planning Director Richard Meade said the mayor was opposed to extending Business D to North Quincy and Wollaston.

"It's important to preserve the historic and aesthetic nature of Quincy," said Atty. Kevin Burke.

Michael Condon said, "Quincy is a city of people, not high rises."

"It's an easy decision to make based on testimony," said Dan O'Sullivan of Elm Ave., a former state representative from Dorchester who entertained the crowd with his rhetoric.

"You should say, 'the ball game is over, slow down,'" said Sullivan.

"All we want is a quiet place to live," said John Howard, an architect from Wollaston. "Anyone with common sense doesn't want a Manhattan-type city."

A total of 188 people signed in opposition.

Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro praised the people who attended.

"This is what members of the City Council enjoy seeing," said DeCristofaro. "I think the people have spoken and that's exactly the way it should go."

Traffic Conditions At Squantum Doughnut Shop To Be Monitored

By JANE ARENA

The City License Board Tuesday continued for one month a hearing on traffic conditions at Squantum Donuts, Inc., 388 East Squantum St.

The board said it has received a number of complaints from Squantum residents about dangerous traffic conditions in the area.

Residents complain cars are turning illegally off Quincy Shore Dr. toward one entrance of the establishment and are also cutting off traffic heading north out of Squantum on East Squantum St.

They also complain cars are parking along the causeway, despite prominent no parking signs, when the doughnut shop's parking lot is filled.

Owner of the shop, Paul P. Govostes, told the board he wants to find a solution to the traffic problem. He said he has spoken with Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley about possible solutions and that he would welcome any suggestions.

He also told the board he would like to expand his parking lot but that the land directly around the site is controlled by the federal government which makes it difficult for him to acquire the needed space.

Rona Goodman, president of the Squantum Community Association, suggested that the entrance on Quincy Shore Dr. be used solely as an entrance and that the East Squantum St. side be used for the exit.

Nutley said this would not be a final solution as the Squantum exiting traffic is the worst part of the traffic problem.

The City Planning Department has drawn up a proposal which would entirely close off the entrance on the East Squantum St. side of the establishment and widen East Squantum St. to allow for another lane of traffic.

In an effort to test that suggestion, the License Board recommended that the East Squantum St. entrance be eliminated by use of barriers and that barriers also be erected along East Squantum St. to stop illegal parking there. The traffic flow will be monitored for a period of one month at which time the hearing will continue.

The board also told Govostes that he must meet with Squantum residents in order to more fully understand their specific complaints.

Seniors MBTA Fare Registration

An MBTA registration team will be at the Quincy Drop In Center, High School Ave. Thursday, May 28, to issue identification cards permitting senior citizens to ride MBTA rapid transit lines and local buses for reduced rates.

With the cards, senior citizens may ride rapid transit lines and local buses for 10 cents at all times.

Citizens who have special needs certification forms completed by their physician can also obtain a special needs identification card. These cards are valid at all times and allow the bearer to ride a 60-cent subway route or 50-cent bus route for 10 cents. If the fare exceeds that amount, the cardholders pay half-fare.

Eligible citizens from Quincy and surrounding towns will be able to register between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

To be eligible for a senior citizen reduced fare identification card, which contains the name and address of the holder and a color photograph for positive identification, senior citizens must bring proof of age - 65 years or older - such as a birth certificate, baptismal record, or driver's license; proof of residency such as a driver's license, utility bill, library card, or charge plate; and a 50 cents cash fee.

Medicare cards will not be accepted as proof of age.

"I urge all senior citizens to take advantage of our discount program," said MBTA General Manager James F. O'Leary. "To make it easier to register, MBTA personnel will be making regional visits to communities throughout the year."

The MBTA stressed that senior citizens who already have a reduced fare identification card do not need to register again.

Eligibility for a handicapped citizen reduced fare identification card requires completion of the MBTA Special Needs Certification Form by a physician, with the exception of the category of eligibility for mental retardation.

Applications for retarded citizens may be completed by a licensed psychologist or licensed social worker.

Certification forms can be obtained by calling 722-5438 or writing the Certification Program, c/o MBTA Sales & Marketing, 10 Park Plaza, Room 5610, Boston, MA 02116.

Veterans with 70 per cent or more disability can receive a special needs photo identification card with documentation from the U.S. Veterans Administration.

A Two-Way Look At Hart

As a state senator and former newspaperman, Paul Harold can take a two-story look at the cause of Gary Hart's political downfall.

Harold, who started as a writer for The Quincy Sun in 1971 was asked how he would feel if he were a reporter and assigned to stake-out Hart and Donna Rice.

"I wouldn't take the assignment to stake out in front of someone's house for eight hours," he says.

"There's a point where it downgrades the conduct of the ones being watched and the ones doing the watching. It makes a journalist a third rate private eye. 'It's like asking a lawyer to sit in the bushes to see if some guy is cheating on his wife.'"

Harold says he feels the episode was "an extreme lack of judgement" on the part of Hart "and extreme attention to his personal life on the part of the press."

Harold says the press really overdid it when they had helicopters hovering over Hart's Colorado home after the story broke "hoping to get a picture of his wife, Lee, sticking her head out the window."

"The press's function is to expose corruption and ineptness in public office. It crosses a fine line looking between a person's private life and his ability to perform in public office."

Harold, who was a Hart supporter in 1984 and was with him this year until the sudden end says:

"I think he could have gone all the way and would have made a good president. He has a world vision of matters. He is tremendously capable."

With Hart out of the race, Harold will join the camp of Gov. Michael Dukakis. Moving over with him is Essex County Dist. Atty. Kevin Burke.

"The Hart people will pretty much scatter," he predicts. "But a certain number of them are disillusioned and may not go with anyone. They might not want to get involved with anyone now."

Harold says Hart is down to earth person. He recalls letting Hart and his wife use his Martha's Vineyard cottage after the 1984 Democratic convention.

"He even cut the grass," Harold says. "And his wife did the laundry."

While with the Sun, Harold created the Quincy's Yesterdays column and pinched-hit with "Sunbeams."

He also covered the 1972 and 1976 Democratic National Conventions filing stories to The Sun on the nominations of George McGovern and Jimmy Carter. He also covered state conventions - both Democrat and Republican.

But as he looks back now perhaps his most important story was the one he dug about a move to put Squantum into the South Boston senate district.

Arthur Tobin was Quincy senator then. He did Tobin a favor because, as a result of the story, the move was derailed.

Harold didn't know it at the time but he was also doing himself a favor. He's the senator now and Squantum remains in his district.

ONE OF QUINCY'S most familiar - and respected - political names is heading up Kevin Burke's bid for the open Ward 5 City Council seat.

Her husband who was affectionately known as "Mr. Democrat" was active in city, county and state political circles. And Caroline was active with him.

LaRaia Brings Back Plan To Revitalize Downtown Retail District

A plan to revitalize the Quincy Center retail district was re-introduced by mayoral candidate Joseph LaRaia at a $500 a plate fund-raising dinner last week at The Gazelle, North Quincy.

Over $30,000 was raised at the private dinner, bringing to over $50,000 the total raised, according to LaRaia. Committee spokesman James Eddy, also campaign coordinator.

LaRaia, a city councillor at large, addressed the gathering of Quincy merchants and business people along with key members of his campaign staff.

He said his plan, developed when he was mayor 10 years ago, would create a new retail district within a covered mall located in the parking lot bounded by Cottage Ave., Hancock St., Revere Rd. and the Quincy Courthouse.

The mall would contain a mix of retail, specialty and food shops, as well as a convention center and hotel, he said.

A major element of LaRaia's plan is a cross town connector which would link the Southern Artery and Burgin Parkway. It would go through the vacant lot of the former Kincaide's Furniture Building, he said.

"I'mphas is been placed on the development of office space and high-priced condos for the affluent at the expense of community concerns," said LaRaia.

"We have been catering to the desires of a handful of special interests for too long without balanced concern to the community."

"Our position is clearly one that will provide a people-oriented downtown comprised of a healthy mix of uses that complement, rather than compete."

"We propose turning the Hancock Parking lot and adjoining properties into a complex which offers a new major retail center, specialty shopping, a much-needed hotel and civic center complex," LaRaia said.

"A merchandise mart and food fair, similar to Quincy Market in Boston, would provide a host of new food opportunities for our residents and visitors alike."

LaRaia said that the present 280-space parking lot would be replaced by a multi-level 400 car garage which would offer free parking.

"We are convinced, more than ever, that free parking to Quincy shoppers is essential to a successful business climate," said LaRaia. "This is one of the major reasons that Broomfield shopping is so popular.

"It is not only essential, but also economically feasible."

According to LaRaia, the recent fire which destroyed Kincaide's furniture presents a "great opportunity" to the city to take the land by eminent domain and go forward with the cross-town connector road.

"If this opportunity is not seized by the present administration, they will be closing the front door to the future development of our downtown," said LaRaia.

"This issue cuts across political considerations. It is too important to the survival of our city to play political football with it."

When the plan was first presented, Cadillac Fairview, one of the largest developers in North America, had agreed to undertake the six-phase project as soon as the city created a non-political, non-profit citizens development organization, according to LaRaia.

He said succeeding administrations have chosen other priorities.

At a press conference on the plan this week, LaRaia said, "Quincy Center is at a low ebb in its retail attractiveness."

"We have a good economy, we could have a revitalized shopping area for residents and others.

"Unless we do something, we might as well give it up to developers for office buildings."

LaRaia said the plan has support from people ranging from shoppers to residents to officials.

He was asked about the strong opposition voiced against the cross town connector when it was first proposed.

"I think most of those people who had concerns have dwindled down to almost nothing," said LaRaia.

"Change is difficult for anyone to accept. But if you can accomplish the greater good, you ought to pursue it."

LaRaia said that most of the financing would be private, state funds could "dress up" the area, and Quincy's share would be the parking lot it owns.

"People associated with the proposal are working on it now," he said. "If I am elected, in January we wouldn't have to start from scratch. We could start very quickly."

He said the project would take a maximum of three years, and land takings by the city could be possible.

"In the final analysis, it will be posed before the public for support," LaRaia said.

Shipyard Wins Contract For Jumbo Tanker

The Fore River Shipyard received a contract to build a 29,250-ton tanker, the largest such craft it has ever undertaken.

The 644-foot ship would be capable of carrying 254,800 barrels of oil with a maximum speed of 16 knots.

The owner of the tanker was not disclosed nor was the value of the contract but unofficial estimates placed it at $6,250,000.

Meanwhile, the American Export liner SS Constitution left its berth at Fore River for company trials off Cape Cod.

Officials denied that she would attempt to break the record of her sister ship SS Independence which did 26.105 knots during trials off Rockland, Me., in December.

Judge Closes Landfill But No Interruption In Trash Collection

counsel Peter Koff obtained a stay from the court earlier this week through May 28 on certain aspects of the items required by DEQE.

The attorneys were also scheduled to determine what the state's "real" intent is regarding the landfill, according to Anderson.

"I've felt for quite some time that they don't really, truly want to help us," said Anderson, who explained that it wouldn't make sense for the city to spend more money to try to reopen the landfill if the chances of success are slim.

McCauley said that it would cost between $750,000 to $1 million to prepare plans to try to get approval for expansion of the landfill.

"Will the DEQE give us a chance, or is it a stacked deck?" asked McCauley.

Anderson said that if he had to make a recommendation to the mayor now, he would probably have to go with the "most irresponsible approach" and "not handle our own waste but send it to another city or town."

"We've never attempted to solve our problems with waste disposal at other's expense," said Anderson, "but it's almost easier to take the irresponsible approach."

He said he would have to roll a pair of dice to answer whether the landfill will ever reopen.

"We've spent hundreds of thousands of dollars trying to comply with DEQE regulations," said Anderson.

"It seems that every time we try to comply, there is another roadblock."

"We're not going to spend the taxpayers' money on plans if they are not going to be approved by the DEQE."

"I've been in government 20 years, and I've learned that when the DEQE says 'we want to help you,' you better put your chest protector on backwards."

The landfill was opened by the city in 1971 under the administration of Mayor James McIntyre. Quincy made a commitment to close it by December, 1993.

A New Bread Dough It's Quick And Easy

Although I have printed a recipe for a quick calzone and pizza dough in this column, which I use very frequently, I came across a new bread dough that was very successful this past week. The only thing different from the quick dough is that it eliminates the oil and adds more liquid and flour. I couldn't believe how easy it was, you may substitute rye or wheat flour instead of using white flour. Here is the recipe.

CRUSTY BREAD

Six cups flour
1 Tbsp sugar
1 Tbsp salt
1 pkge of dry yeast
2 cups of warm water
1 beaten egg

In the water, add the yeast, stir and then add the sugar and salt. Gradually add the flour until mixture can be handled. Put some flour on a board or surface and knead for a couple of minutes. Put back in the bowl and cover with a towel. Let rise on top of the stove until dough is twice the size.

Pound the dough down and let set for another ten minutes. Then put in a bread pan (a meatloaf pan will do). Brush with beaten egg. Bake in a 400 degree F oven for about 45 minutes or until the top is brown. (When you put the dough in the pan, fill the pan halfway, as it will rise more).

With this mixture you make a large loaf and a small loaf depending on the size of your pans. Good luck!

(Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at That's Italian, Franklin St., South Quincy; Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point and Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount.)

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It will be said on this Memorial Day, as it has been said of many others, that we treat it too lightly, that in search of pleasure we neglect its purpose. Well, perhaps one does wish for a bit more old-fashioned "patriotism" with time reserved for the traditional rituals of respect for the heroes of the past...

But let us not be too cynical in this regard, either. For there is scarcely an American, we believe, who will not pause at some point during this observance to pay tribute in his own way to those who fought, bled and died for our nation. As with most everything else, "Patriotism" has changed in form and expression. Time has marched on in this respect, too.

Nonetheless, the overwhelming majority of our citizens, young and old, love their country, honor much of its past and are prayerful of its future.

And so on this Memorial Day, let us salute all those who have borne the battles and paid the costs for the freedom that contemporary America accepts as its legacy...

Children's Day At Squantum First Church Sunday

"How God Tells Us What To Do Next" was the title of the sermon preached Sunday at both morning services of the First Church of Squantum by the church pastor, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin.

Craig Zachring was guest organist for the morning and Janet Williamson played the piano. The hymns were "God of Grace and God of Glory," "Be Thou My Vision," and "Lead On, O King Eternal." For the offertory anthem, the Chancel Choir sang "In Thee Is Gladness" by Giovanni Gastoldi.

Sandra and Deborah Stohlborg were greeters for the morning. Tore Wallin and Steward Scott were ushers, and the Fellowship Hour was hosted by Janet Townsend and Patti Hurd.

Lorraine Josslyn, Rene Johnson, and Steward and Mary Scott were greeters Sunday afternoon for visitors to the church during the community "open house" at North Quincy and Wollaston churches sponsored by the Inter-Church Council.

Children's Day will be observed Sunday, May 24. A special service at 10:30 a.m. and a Sunday School picnic will mark the end of Sunday School classes for the school year.

Although there will be no formal Sunday School classes at the church until they resume again in the fall, parents will still be provided with child care during the second service each Sunday.

Besides the traditional service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, the guitar service will be held as usual at 8:30 a.m.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Neighbor's Attention Crime Prevention

Be familiar with your neighbor's car. Be in the habit of copying down the registration numbers of any strange vehicles in your neighborhood that arouse your suspicion.

Know your neighbor's and their friends so that you can recognize a stranger in the area. Burglars frequently enter homes in full view of neighbors who believe he she is just a friend of the neighbor.

When you leave your home, night or day, let your neighbor know. Tell him/her if you are expecting deliveries, maintenance men or friends, do not leave a note saying when you will return.

Keep an eye on your neighbor's home, even when he/she does not request it. Park your car in your neighbor's driveway while he/she is away and ask your neighbor to do the same for you in your absence.

Check your neighbor's home at odd hours, and pick up the mail and any unexpected deliveries cluttering the front steps. Some people prefer this to the Police Check because it is less conspicuous than having a police car out front and an officer walking about shaking doors.

You should call the police department and inform them that your home will be vacant so that an officer on patrol can keep an eye on the house and property.

Some other things which you can do to give the appearance that your neighbor is still home, when he is away, may include hanging clothes out on his/her line to dry, mowing the lawn, or shoveling the snow from the walks.

When you go away, remember to leave a telephone number with a neighbor so that you can be reached in case of an emergency.

The above are all examples of neighborhood Watch. Join Neighborhood Watch-it works.

Spring

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Cool tips...

Evaluating your air conditioning needs: Advance planning key

With spring around the corner, now is the time to evaluate your air conditioning needs and determine the best option for your home.

Often, people put off buying an air conditioner until the temperature soars — then rush out to get the first model that promises some relief.

Buying an air conditioner does not have to be confusing or difficult. In fact, a little advanced planning can help you select the unit best suited for your home and lifestyle.

Room air conditioners provide flexible, energy-efficient cooling when and where needed. Two kinds of window-installed room air conditioners are available.

"Portable" models, such as the Carry Cool™ room air conditioners from General Electric, plug into a standard 115-volt outlet and can be carried from room to room, or taken to a summer house on weekends.

Larger units are permanently installed for the summer and include both 115-volt and 230/208-volt models.

To determine your cooling needs, first make a rough sketch of the room or rooms and mark the dimensions — length, width and height. Add window and door locations, check if the area is insulated and determine the exposure to the sun.

Finally, consider how the room is generally used (by two or more people, for entertaining, cooking, exercising, etc.).

From the above information, a dealer can select the appropriate cooling capacity by determining how many units of heat, or BTUs (British Thermal Units), the air conditioner must remove per hour.

The next factor to consider is the EER, or energy efficiency rating. It is determined by dividing the cooling capacity in BTUs per hour by the watts required to run the unit. Any rating of 7.5 or higher is considered "high efficiency."

Many models have features to help conserve energy: "Automatic fan" or "energy-saver switch" circulates air with a "fan only" cycle — useful when a cooling cycle selection is not necessary.

You can also save on energy costs by choosing a lower more efficient cooling setting — up to five percent for each degree.

Sound insulation is another important factor to consider, especially in a bedroom unit. Although a certain amount of fan and air-movement noise is unavoidable, you want quiet working parts and no vibration noise. General Electric uses a rotary compressor on most of its models that is much quieter than the conventional type.

Remember, the time to consider service facilities and warranties is before you buy, not after you have a problem.

General Electric has the largest manufacturer-owned and factory-authorized service organization in the industry. It also offers either full or limited written warranties on all room air conditioners. Details are available at your dealer or by calling the GE Answer Center™ toll free at (800) 626-2000.

MODERN SHINGLES THAT ARE DESIGNED TO LAST

Asphalt shingles are designed to provide excellent service for up to 25 years or more.

To help determine the kind of protection you are buying, remember that the cost of application is often the same, regardless of the life expectancy of the roofing.

To estimate the probable annual cost of a new roof, add the cost of labor and materials and divide the result by the number of years the shingles are expected to last.

Shades that turn off summer heat

"We want to keep the sun out and cool air in." "We'd like to keep our rooms cooler without blocking all natural sunlight." These comments are being echoed by consumers, as they plan ways to keep their homes cooler while reducing air conditioning costs.

A source for energy savings can be found at windows. Now, as consumers look to cool down their homes, they can also dress up their windows.

Pleated fabric shades were invented by Verosol to insulate homes stylishly on scorching summer days. In fact, a recent study of rooms subjected to intense summer sunlight found that Verosol's metallized pleated shades were the most effective of seven window coverings tested in keeping rooms cooler.

The metallized pleated fabric shades reduce directly-transmitted solar energy by up to 80 percent. Other window treatments tested ranged from draperies to aluminum blinds. In addition, research shows that, during winter months, pleated shades provide insulation equal to a storm window.

The key to the energy efficiency of pleated shades can be traced to an ultrathin layer of aluminum bonded to the fabric. In addition to keeping rooms cooler in summer, metallized pleated shades protect against sunlight which can fade furnishings.

Consumers, troubled by other window treatments that soil easily and are difficult to clean, have discovered that metallized pleated shades actually repel dust and require little care.

While pleated shades are quite functional, fashion remains a significant reason for their surging popularity. Pleated shades offer a stylish, flexible design in colors and textures that complement any decor from Art Deco living rooms to country kitchens.

Also, while taking the heat off homes, sheer metallized pleated shades allow a view to the outside so that the beauty of a window can still be appreciated. Pleated shades are also available in opaque fabrics for optimum privacy.

Pleated shades by Verosol USA are available in more than 300 colors. For the retailer nearest you, contact the Marketing Department at Verosol USA Inc., 224 RIDC Park West Drive, Pittsburgh, PA 15275 or call 800-252-2512.

Simplify spring and summer

When spring and summer come, it's time to hit the great outdoors. Improving outdoor living areas and casual entertaining are key priorities among homeowners and apartment dwellers, according to Rubbermaid.

"Seeing the trends toward outdoor living, whether it's in a backyard, a balcony outside a condo, or simply a small area exposed to the sky, we know consumers are looking for both beauty and convenience in their home accessories," says Robin Kelly, product manager for Rubbermaid's SUNDIAL Casual Furniture.

This product line, entering the market place for the first time this year, is said to be extremely tough, durable and easy to clean. Priced affordably, this line includes stacking chairs, five position chairs, loungers and tables in three sizes, plus cushions and umbrellas.

The product resists rust and chlorine, salt or harsh chemicals. Cushions and umbrellas are a vinyl-coated polyester fabric that resists bacteria and fungus growth.

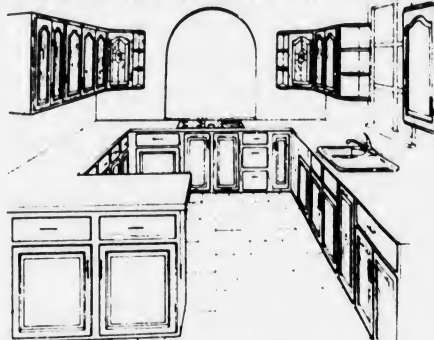

Colors are UV stabilized to resist fading and nylon stitching helps assure long life. Cushions are also reversible for extended life and have an optimum blend of fiberfill for resilience, quick drying and mildew resistance.

Stacking chairs come in white, like other products in the line, and also slate blue, wineberry, buttercream and fuchsia.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Spring cleaning—doing it the easy way

Did dirt and grime have a busy winter at your home? If so, there's no need to panic. Spring cleaning can be made easier — and your load will be lightened — by these cleaning tips from the experts at The Eureka Company.

- A well-stocked, centralized cleaning center is a housecleaner's best friend. Everything you need should be on hand. Clean rags for dusting, all-purpose cleaners and detergents, brushes of all sizes, a basket to carry everything in, and a vacuum cleaner with a set of attachments.

- You can make short work of accumulated dust and grit on floors, furniture, walls and ceiling with the aid of a vacuum cleaner correctly equipped for your home and lifestyle.

In general, an upright vac with an agitator brush-beater bar is best for wall-to-wall carpeting, while a canister vac is recommended for cleaning bare floors and hard-to-reach above the floor places.

Power Team models (canister-upright combination) such as Eureka's Express are suited for all types of cleaning, from carpets and bare floors to above the floor jobs like tables, lamps, drapes, windowsills, etc. Cordless, lightweight vacs are mighty handy for cleaning surface litter and dry spills from carpets, area rugs and bare floors.

- Clean a room from top to bottom. First, gather all the cleaning supplies you'll need. This will help you save extra steps between cleaning closet and excavation site. Then, clear the room of messy clutter — redistributing bric-a-brac after you've cleaned.

Pull furniture away from walls, turn back carpet edges, choose a starting point, and simply work your way around the room. Dust settles downward, so door frames come first and floors last.

We use only patented Von Schrader dry foam equipment

Only the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor applies a dirt emulsifying dry foam, brushes it thoroughly into the carpet and removes both foam and dirt immediately before it can sink back down into the carpet. This simultaneous operation is an important benefit. Only the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor has this patented feature. Because only foam is used, your carpet is ready for use in an hour or so. And there is no danger of shrinkage, dry-rot, browning or mildew.

REMEMBER
"Steam" is just a lot of water. "Rotary brushes" just take dirt for a joy ride. "Hand application" only does superficial cleaning. Only the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor shampoos deeply with a dry foam and then gets rid of the foam along with the dirt.

THE ULTIMATE IN COOKING CONVENIENCE: Maytag's eye-level microwave oven/range. The cooking center combines the best of both worlds — microwave cooking and conventional cooking — in an efficient space-saving design.

Compact cooking center is ideal for tight spaces

Not enough room in your kitchen? Well, welcome to the club! It's no secret that, for the majority of people, there never seems to be enough space for all the pots, pans, dishes and other items that are so essential to their cooking needs.

One solution to the problem is space-saving appliances, such as a convenient eye-level microwave oven/range or a new narrow 20 inch range, available from Maytag.

The range with the eye-level microwave oven offers the best of both worlds: microwave cooking and conventional cooking. The exciting part about this design is that there no longer is a need to sacrifice precious counter space, since the microwave oven takes a "second story" position above the Maytag range.

In addition to freeing your countertop, the microwave oven offers four programmable memory levels with 10 power settings and a temperature probe with a "cook and hold" feature.

But that's just the beginning. The bottom half of the cooking center is highlighted by a range built with quality features like Maytag's two coat, porcelain enamel finish, and other conveniences such as a "delay start" control that enables you to automatically start and stop the oven to suit your busy schedule.

As an answer to messy cleanups, the gas and electric models provide parts that are easy to remove, and the electric model also is available with a continuous clean oven.

The 20 inch ranges are available in gas or electric models and are ideal for small apartments, mobile homes or any kitchen where space is at a premium.

A year ago the Seniors upset the North Quincy High girls' softball team but last week the girls, who have qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament, romped to an unofficial 25-8 victory.

Seniors taking part in the game were Fage, Terry Zinc, Edward Flynn, Romano DePaoli, Gino Michelutti, Collins, Carlson, Luca Morano, Coughlin, Fred Coolen, E.P. Condon, Frank Murano, Merton Pomfret, Joseph Erickson, George Conway, Charlie Lewis, Warren Kirkland, Luke Mullin and Moody.

DON STRONG, who organized the Senior Olympics and directed last week's activities together with Barry Welch and Brian Buckley, seems pleased with the record turnout.

Raiderettes Qualify For E. Mass. Tourney

The North Quincy girls' softball team qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament last week when it pounded Quincy, 16-1.

Monday the Raiderettes dropped a 2-1 squeaker to Brockton in the best game of the year, making their record 11-2.

The North girls played Cambridge Rindge and Latin yesterday (Wednesday), will be at Newton North next Tuesday and will host Waltham next Thursday at Mitchell McCoy Field. They also have two rained-out games to make up.

"The Brockton game was just a fantastic game with superb pitching and outstanding defense," said North coach Barbara Webster.

Kristin Drake, who has pitched every game for North, turned in another super performance, giving up five hits, striking out four and walking two. Brockton's Chris Kent, also one of the better pitchers in the Suburban League, held North to four hits, struck out eight and walked three.

North scored its run in the first inning and Brockton scored its two in the third on a two-run double.

Shirley Flukes, Colleen Hannon, Crystal Moffet and Ann McGuigan had North's hits, all singles. Flukes also was robbed twice by outstanding catches of line drives by Brockton infielders.

Last week Drake pitched a one-hitter in North's breeze over Quincy.

Flukes had two doubles and a single and drove in five runs. Ann Anderionis had a two-run double and an RBI single and Karin Reister and McGuigan each had three hits.

First Ladies Win But Frustration Follows

The Quincy girls' softball team continues to suffer through a frustrating season, but the First Ladies finally captured its first win of the season last week.

The Quincy girls ended an eight-game losing streak by defeating Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 11-8, but then were walloped by North Quincy, 16-1, and bowed to Newton North, 14-3, dropping their record to 1-10.

The First Ladies will be at Brookline Friday, will host Brockton Tuesday at Faxon Field and will play at Cambridge next Thursday, May 28.

In the win over Cambridge Terry Duggan had four hits, drove in five runs and scored four. Sue Cullen had an RBI hit and scored three times and Christine Menz and Nancy Sizzero each drove in a run.

Duggan had the only hit off Kristin Drake in the loss to North Quincy, which qualified for the Eastern Mass. tournament with the victory. Lisa Zambruno scored the lone run after reaching on a walk.

Newton North scored eight runs, five of them unearned, in the fourth inning and they were more than enough to top Quincy.

Tracy Chappette had two hits and an RBI for Quincy. Camie Levangle was the losing pitcher, giving up seven

Newton North Cools Quincy's Tourney Hopes

By TOM SULLIVAN

If Quincy's baseball team, which missed the Eastern Mass. tournament by one victory last season, and doesn't make it this year, most of the credit (or blame, depending upon how you look at it) must go to Newton North.

After upsetting Cambridge Rindge and Latin for their biggest win of the season, the Presidents needed four wins in eight games to qualify for post-season action.
